PREFACE

THE text of these tales is that of Helm's second edition of the Metamorphoses. The few changes that have been introduced are noted in the commentary. The spelling and punctuation have been made to conform to that of the other books in this Series.

Purser's edition of Cupid and Psyche has been of great assistance in preparing the notes upon that portion of the text. Butler's translations of the Metamorphoses and the Apology have been used and his renderings have been often adopted in the introductory study.

In the few cases where expurgation seemed advisable the point of the tale has in no instance been affected. In the one case where expurgation would have spoiled the story the editor has included the text, but without commentary. This was done that a complete view of the short story as found in Apuleius might be presented.

As the stories are of unequal merit and interest, the following are cited as the best of the collection : Diophanes the Chaldean, The Robber's Tale, The Tragedy of Tlepolemus and Charite, The Lost Slippers, Cupid and Psyche.

The editor wishes to express his thanks to Professor John C. Rolfe, the general editor, for the valuable assistance he has given.

INTRODUCTION

APULEIUS. HIS LIFE AND WORKS

APULEIUS, sometimes called Lucius¹ Apuleius, although there is some doubt as to the correctness of the prænomen, was one of the most picturesque figures and bizarre authors in the whole range of literature. He was born about 125 A.D., the exact year being uncertain.

Ancient authors in general are rather reticent with regard to their personal history, and our information on this point from other sources is apt to be meagre. Cicero, whose life is better known to us than that of many a statesman of modern times, Horace, rich in personal reminiscence, Pliny, charmingly affected and loquacious, and Apuleius, who takes us fully into his confidence, form a quartet of striking exceptions to this rule.

The Apology, the Florida, and the last part of the Metamorphoses, three of the works of Apuleius, are the sources of most of our information as to his life. He was an African, a native of the Roman colony of Medaura in Numidia, and it is interesting to note that twenty miles to the north was situated Thagaste, the birthplace of St. Augustine, another famous African. The family of Apuleius was one of wealth and influence. His father, as one of the two chief magistrates of the flourishing Roman colony, held an office corresponding in the provincial city to that of consul at Rome. At his death, he left his son a fortune of about one hundred thousand dollars, a sum of perhaps triple the purchasing power of such an amount at the present time.

Apuleius, during his earlier years, attended school at Carthage. Then, following what had become an almost universal custom with young men of means who had literary instincts, he sojourned at Athens to complete his education. Here he devoted himself to the study of philosophy, rhetoric, geometry, music and poetry, accumulating those vast stores of information which are in evidence everywhere in his works. The next few years he passed in extensive travel, and in this way spent a large portion of the fortune left him by his father.

On returning from the east he met at Corinth a body of priests of Isis, who succeeded in gaining so strong a hold upon his lively imagination that he was initiated into the mysteries of the service of Isis. Journeying then to Rome, he became a devoted worshipper at the Roman temple of the goddess in the Campus Martius. Soon his rest was troubled by visions and it was apparent that divine will desired his further initiation into the mysteries of Osiris. As his funds were now exhausted, he amassed means to defray this additional expense by devoting himself to the practice of his profession, that of a lawyer. It may be remarked that Apuleius possessed, in addition to his literary ability, a very practical talent for making money, and as often as he cared to devote his energies to that end, was successful.

It was at this period that Apuleius perfected his Latin by becoming more conversant with Roman usage, for strange to relate, the medium in which he produced such marvellous results was probably not his native tongue. He was of course familiar with Greek, the literary tongue of the east. We are not certain as to what language he spoke in his youth; although it may have been a provincial Latin or Greek, it is most probable that it was Punic, a Semitic tongue of the same group as Hebrew. Apuleius may have composed his romance, the Metamorphoses, during the Roman sojourn, but it is more reasonable to suppose that he wrote it on his return home. An inveterate traveller, he was constantly moving from one point of interest to another until the period of his marriage.

It was while returning from a trip to Alexandria, the capital of Egypt, that Apuleius fell ill at Oea, the modern Tripoli, where the remarkable incidents occurred which gave occasion for the composition of the Apologia, or Apology, a unique volume of human experience and the sole extant specimen of forensic oratory from the period of the empire.

It appears that in his student days Apuleius had been on terms of close intimacy with a certain Pontianus who lived in Oea with his mother Pudentilla, who had lost her husband some thirteen years before. Her father-in-law had become very pressing in his endeavors to have her ally herself with another of his sons, Cincius, that her wealth might not be lost to his family. He was able to hold over the lady the threat of disinheriting her two sons, Pontianus and Pudens, as he had been appointed their guardian by his son's will. It was therefore fortunate for Pudentilla that he died at this critical moment.

The lady so long a widow, now freed from embarrassing importunity, felt disposed to follow her own inclination in the choice of a second husband. Her sons were not averse to such a reasonable wish, but inasmuch as their hopes of ultimately attaining independent fortune rested upon the disposition which their mother should make of her wealth, they were desirous, Pontianus in particular, that the choice of their mother should fall upon some one who would be well disposed toward them. At this juncture Apuleius appeared at Oea. What more natural than that his former student friend should call upon the indisposed traveller and upon his recovery entertain him at the home of his mother and persuade him to remain at Oea during the winter?

Although Pontianus had ulterior motives, he was sufficiently wise to conceal them until a favorable occasion for their disclosure presented itself. Apuleius had delivered during his stay one of the public lectures for which he was so famous, and had aroused his auditors to a high pitch of enthusiasm. At the close of the lecture the people entreated him to do their city the honor of becoming one of its citizens. This was Pontianus' opportunity. He proposed that Apuleius marry his mother Pudentilla, thereby acceding to the request of the citizens to make Oea his home, consummating the wishes of the widow, and freeing his friend from the apprehension of an uncongenial step-father.

The lady was no longer in the first flush of youth nor, we are told, was she fair to look upon. Apuleius married her, however, and soon came to esteem her for her qualities of mind and heart. He settled down and we hear of no more travelling. But there was trouble brewing. A third brother of Pudentilla's first husband, angered because she had rejected his brother Cincius, joined with Pontianus' father-in-law, who had great expectations in regard to the wealth of his son-in-law's mother, to vent their resentment upon Apuleius. Accusations were brought against him that he had won the heart of the widow by sorcery, that he was a man of immoral life, and that he had married the mature lady solely for her wealth.

The trial took place at Sabrata and was presided over by Claudius Maximus, proconsul of Africa, who was attending the assizes there. It will be remembered that in the time of the republic the office of proconsul of Africa was one of the most dignified and lucrative at the disposal of the state and that it still retained something of its ancient prestige.

Apuleius, it appears, had no difficulty in refuting the charges, and secured an acquittal. In view of his overpowering curiosity with regard to magic and his interest in it, one may readily believe that he did dabble in it, but the particular charges on this occasion appear to have been frivolous and absurd. The crass indecency of portions of the Metamorphoses indicates a moral sense none too delicate, but as to the charge that he married for money, the most that ought to be said is that this consideration probably influenced him. Despite the acquittal, he left Oea, and settled in Carthage, where he gained great fame as poet, philosopher, and rhetorician. It is to the public lectures which he delivered while at Carthage that we owe the work known as the Florida, nosegays culled from these flowery productions. Carthage so esteemed him that she raised a statue in his honor and gave him the office of chief priest of the province, which conferred upon the holder the leading place in the provincial council.

Apuleius was a voluminous writer. There are extant in addition to the three works already mentioned one on the life and philosophy of Plato, one on the demon of Socrates, and one on the universe. None of these latter works is of any value and no one save the specialist would be repaid for the time spent in perusing them. The Apology, however, as a document of human experience, and as a specimen of forensic oratory and the Metamorphoses for its intrinsic merit and interest, and as a precursor of the modern novel, are exceptions, and deserve attention. Many other works of Apuleius have perished, for he wrote on mathematics, music, astronomy, medicine, botany, and zoölogy. We hear also of the Hermagoras, a collection of ancient love stories.

He was much admired during his life and his fame survived him. He possessed vast stores of ill-digested information and was characterized by a vivid imagination, just such qualities as would appeal to a decadent age, for such it was in the history of Latin literature.

The works of Apuleius were known to St. Augustine, also a native of Africa, who flourished some three hundred years later. Of these works the Metamorphoses is by far the most important, and it constitutes one of the curiosities of literature. In style we know of nothing so cloying, rhythmic and mellifluous. The prose of D'Annunzio has something of the same effect and is touched with the same taint of decadence.

It was long thought and is still maintained in some quarters, that there was such a phenomenon as African Latinity, a product of purely African growth with a richness and profusion of color largely due to the Semitic element in the blood of the people. It is now generally conceded that the style of Apuleius, mainly characterized by archaisms, floridity and rhythm, is nothing more than an extreme example of the Asiatic school of writing, so well known in strictly classical times both in the prose of Greece and Rome, a style that had its influence even on Cicero.

One may not be utterly lost, artistically speaking, if one does take a certain pleasure in the literary form in which such a work as the Metamorphoses is cast; but a little goes a good way. If continued, it becomes wearisome and cloying. It is therefore best appreciated in the short story and it is in this form that it is used in the Metamorphoses; for, as we shall see, this work is little more than a collection of such stories loosely joined together. There is also this to be said, that the style in which the Metamorphoses is composed is perfectly adapted to that romance which is to a large extent unreal, mystical and fantastic.

The Metamorphoses was known as the "Golden Ass" of Apuleius: ass, because the hero Lucius, as the result of clumsy dabbling in magic, was transformed into that beast instead of into a bird as he had intended; golden, suggesting the idea of excellence, perhaps a hint of the romantic. Walter Pater conveys the idea when, in Marius the Epicurean, he entitles the chapter describing the influence upon the boy Marius of the perusal of this romance, The Golden Book.

There is a work falsely attributed to Lucian entitled Lucius, or the Ass. This story, in so far as it has to do with the transformation and the results, is essentially that told by Apuleius, but the style is absolutely different and the episodes characteristic of the latter work are lacking.

It is generally supposed that both stories were derived from a lost work of which mention is made, The Ass of Lucius of Patras. However this may be, we are justified in saying that the unique qualities of Apuleius' story are due solely to his own talents.

The eleventh book of the Metamorphoses changes from the collection of short stories which we shall presently discuss, to a narration which we seem justified in considering a personal account of religious experience, and we find a curious identification of Lucius the hero, and Apuleius, the author of the work.

THE ORIGIN AND EXTENSION OF THE TERM "MILESIAN TALE"¹

Short stories of amours, adventure and magic, such as have for ages flourished in the Orient, became known to the Greeks of Asia Minor. Collections of these tales may have been written down and given the name of the city or region in which they were compiled or whose life they purported to depict. Thus we hear of Milesian Tales. Such tales spread to Italy and become popular in Magna Graecia even before they flourished in Greece proper, and the city of Sybaris lent its name to the Sybaritic Tales.² Mention is also made of Trojan, Pallenian, Naxian, Sicilian, and Bithynian collections.³

Since the tale of the Matron of Ephesus in the Satyricon of Petronius (generally regarded as giving a fair idea of what Milesian tales were like) would in all probability belong to an Ephesian collection, and since the extant specimen of the Sybaritic contains nothing strikingly characteristic,⁴ not even

² Sybaritic Tales are mentioned by Elian, Historiae Variæ 14, 20. The story he cites is the sole extant specimen, and it is mildly facetious in character.

⁴ But see Rohde, Der Griechische Roman, 587.

the element of lewdness which is supposed to be an essential of the Milesian tale, it seems probable that these different classes were but different names for a general class of stories, the main or sole purpose of which was entertainment.¹ It was quite natural that those gifted and impressionable Ionians of Miletus should excel in this type of story and that the word "Milesian" should come to stand for the whole genre. These Milesian tales are of considerable interest as the forerunners of the more elaborate Greek Romances² which flourished from the second to the fifth centuries, of which the Daphne and Chloe of Longus is the best known. They are the prototypes of those tales so popular in France and Italy, of which Boccaccio's are the most famous.

Parthenius, Virgil's Greek teacher, has been thought to give the clearest idea of what the Milesian tales were, as the following quotation from Dunlop's History of Fiction shows.³ "But though the Milesian tales have perished, of their nature some idea may be formed from the stories of Parthenius of Nicaea, many of which, there is reason to believe, are extracted from these ancient fables, or at least are written in their spirit."

It is indeed likely that those tales, the scene of which is laid in Miletus, and the themes of which are for the most part of inconstancy, were derived directly from collections of Milesian tales. It is also true that notes either by Parthenius or by a later hand, were prefixed to several of the tales, stating that they were taken from Milesian collections. However, it is well known that Parthenius explicitly stated that he com-

² The 3d edition (1914) of Rohde's work cited above contains a résumé by Schmid of the latest discoveries and theories in regard to the Greek Romances.

The most illuminating work, however, on the Greek novel is the extensive study which forms the introduction to Calderini's translation, Le avventure di Cherea e Calliroe, Turin 1913.

³ Dunlop's History of Fiction (revised by Wilson), Vol. I, chap. 1, p. 11.

posed these thirty-six skeleton tales called Erotic Experiences for his friend the Latin poet, Cornelius Gallus, to serve as material for elegies and other poems. The very meagreness of those which can with certainty be called Milesian, prevents their giving us an adequate notion of what Milesian tales were.

The German scholar, Christ, in his *History of Greek Literature*¹ suggests that the story of the Matron of Ephesus in Petronius furnishes us a good example of the Milesian tale and this is undoubtedly correct in the early and restricted meaning of the term. To this we may add the story of the Lad of Pergamus and The Solicitous Mother in the same work. Christ seems also to make a proper distinction, when he says that the forerunners of the Greek novel were the Milesian Tales of Aristides and the Erotic Experiences of Parthenius.

Plutarch, in his Life of Crassus,² indicates clearly the unsavory character of the early Milesian tale. He says, in speaking of the events following the defeat of Crassus, the Roman general at Carrhae, “but the vizier, calling together the senate of Seleusia, laid before it certain books, the work of Aristides, his Milesiaca; these had not been forged, but had really been found in the baggage of Roscius, and gave the vizier a good opening for directing insulting remarks against the Romans, who not even in time of war could refrain from such writings and doings.”

It will be well to note that the word used to designate Milesian tales in the passage just cited is Milesiaca, the Greek neuter plural of the adjective meaning Milesian, and that this is the word usually although not exclusively employed in Greek in referring to them.

We are to understand that the tales were normally written in prose. Dunlop's remark to the effect that a couplet in Ovid,

² Plutarch, Crassus, 32.

Iunxit Aristides Milesia carmina secum Pulsus Aristides nec tamen urbe sua est, would indicate that some of these tales had been written in verse, is of course based upon the reading carmina, "songs" or "poems." The reading now universally accepted is crimina, "charges." The passage therefore states that the slanderous or rather scandalous Milesian tales which Aristides wrote in connection with his history (for so we understand the words iuxit secum) did not cause his banishment.¹

The only evidence that these tales appeared in poetic form is derived from such poems as Phaedrus III, 10, and Babrius 116, where the subject is quite in the style of the early lewd Milesian tale. This, however, is inadequate evidence on which to base a statement that Milesian tales as such were sometimes written in metrical form. That poets of the type of Phaedrus and Babrius should select as a subject for a poem a Milesian theme of the earlier type is quite natural. Had Cornelius Gallus composed elegies upon those themes furnished him by Parthenius, and purporting to be derived from Milesian sources, we should hardly classify them as Milesian tales.

This same Aristides is mentioned by Ovid in another couplet wherein he states that Sisenna, a Roman writer, translated² Aristides and that the latter inserted risqué stories³ in his

² There are preserved of this translation nine short fragments. Of these only numbers 1, 2 and 9 are suggestive of the character of the tales.

(1) Nisi comminus excidisset, quanti dantur? tanti inquit Olumpias; simul hoc dicens suavium dedit; indicating a love tale.

(9) indicative of their lewdness; Fr. Hist. Rom. Peter, Vol. I, 2d ed. 297.

Historiae turpes inseruisse iocos. Trist. II, 443.

Rohde, Rhein. Mus. 48, 128, understands historiae to mean Sisenna's activity as an historian. Our interpretation is that of Heinsius and supports our understanding of the phrase secum in the couplet previously cited.

history. Chassang¹ suggested that Aristides may have written a history of Miletus and may have cited numerous tales illustrative of Milesian life. This suggestion of Chassang is now quite convincing, since it has been definitely ascertained that the term Milesiaca was applied to local histories of Miletus.²

This view is still further supported by the fact that Aristides wrote a number of local historical works of which the titles and some fragments have been preserved. Compare, therefore, his title, Milesiaca, which we conjecture to be primarily an historical work, with his Italica, Sikelica and Persica, which we know to be historical works.³

We seem therefore reasonably justified in stating definitely that the term Milesiaca was first applied to local histories of the city, and then to tales illustrative⁴ of Milesian life and characterized by lubricity, such tales in fact as are referred to in Plutarch.

That Aristides was the collector of these tales rather than their author, and that the term came to be applied to lewd stories in general are at least suggested by a passage in the Amores of Lucian.⁵ It is generally conceded that this work is falsely attributed to Lucian, but for our purpose the particular author is a matter of indifference. A character in the work, speaking of certain lewd stories, said that he might well believe that he were Aristides listening in delight to Milesian tales.

² Vogt, Jahrb. f. Phil. Suppl. XXXVII, 699. For the general subject of local histories see Christ, op. cit. 575. Cf. also, Rohde, 3d ed., Schmid's appendix, p. 617.

⁵ Amores, I.

The first step therefore, in the use of the term Milesiaca, was its application to local histories of Miletus; the second step, its use to signify stories illustrative of Milesian life and generally characterized by lubricity. The third and last step in the extension of the term is suggested by a passage in the life of Albinus in the Augustan Histories.¹ In a letter sent to the Senate by Severus, he remarks that among other facts he is grieved to see that many of them praise Albinus for his devotion to literature, while as a matter of fact he, interested in childish nursery rhymes, wastes his time on the tales of Apuleius, and in literary dilettantism.² Now in the Latin, the adjective Milesia with the word fabula or historia understood is usually employed to signify "Milesian Tale." In the passage to which reference is made, the phrase inter Milesias Punicas Apulei sui is used, and the word Milesias has to such an extent lost its original meaning "Milesian," that it is used as a noun and is itself modified by the adjective Punicas. The two words mean "African Tales of Apuleius," so called of course because Apuleius was a native of Africa. A prettier bit of evidence could not be adduced to prove that the word Milesia is here used in the general sense of tale; and this is the third step in the application of the term.

The interesting question arises as to how early this broader interpretation was applied to the term, for it is highly probable that such a meaning would be acquired only by gradual growth. There is nothing very conclusive on this point, but we may venture a suggestion. The episode of Cupid and

² In an earlier chapter, II, of the same work, we learn that Albinus' interest in Milesian tales was not confined to reading them: Milesias nonnulli eiusdem esse dicunt, quarum fama non ignobilis habetur quamvis mediocriter scriptae sunt.

*Psyche*¹ in Apuleius is called by him a Milesian Tale.² This tale is undoubtedly of popular origin, and in no sense an invention of Apuleius. The treatment of the myth as an erotic romance is quite in the style and taste of the Alexandrian School, which in its first or literary period flourished from about 323 to 30 b.c. If this story in the form transmitted by Apuleius owes its peculiar treatment as an erotic romance to the influence of Alexandria, we may place it before 30 b.c. and perhaps well along toward 100 b.c., the conjectured time of Aristides'³ death.

It may therefore be safe to say that the term Milesian was applied certainly in the second century A.D. and perhaps as early as 100 b.c., to any tale written or narrated for entertainment and was, indeed, the short story of antiquity. That this last statement is true will be seen more clearly after an examination of the Metamorphoses, popularly known as the Golden Ass of Apuleius, the immediate precursor of the Greek Romance. There is, however, this difference among others between the Metamorphoses as a whole and the Greek Romances: the Greek works are erotic romances; in Apuleius love is entirely episodic.

That the work of Apuleius is nothing but a collection of loosely connected Milesian tales in the broader sense of the term is clearly indicated by the author himself in his intro-

J. E. Schroeder's De amoris et Psyches Fabella Apuleiana nova quadam ratione explicata, is an application of Freud's sex obsession theory to the tale.

² Apul. Met. IV, 33, propter Milesiae conditorem. Some suppose that the word Milesiae refers to the work as a whole. It seems more natural to understand it as referring to the particular tale then being told. This interpretation is at least supported by the fact that the shrine of Apollo near Miletus has been mentioned just previously in connection with this story. It is also significant that the singular, Milesia, is used in this connection, while the plural is used in the passage cited from the life of Albinus.

ductory remarks, where he writes: "I will now string together various tales in that Milesian style which is familiar to you."¹ As a matter of fact, the story of the Metamorphoses told by Lucius, a young Greek, in the first person, from the beginning of his adventures to the end, when he makes his entrance into the order of the priests of Isis, serves as a means of joining together a number of stories on a wide range of subjects. These are in part stories of experiences of Lucius himself and partly narratives entirely distinct from the main plot, but told by characters appearing in it. This device is familiar to us from its use in the Decameron of Boccaccio. It is therefore by an examination of this treasure-house that we form our clearest conception of the scope and character of the Milesian tales as the term seems to have been used shortly after the time of Aristides. There are readily detected thirteen tales entirely distinct from the main narrative; fifteen, if we divide the robber's tale into its three separate parts.

These tales are exceedingly varied in character. There is the early lubricious Milesian type as exemplified by the Tale of the Tub and the Fuller's Wife, both of which reappear in Boccaccio; the merely risqué type, such as that of the Lost Slippers; the tale of the Enamoured Stepmother; the cruel vengeance of the Jealous Wife; several tales of witchcraft, undoubtedly of folklore origin; the celebrated tale of Cupid and Psyche; the elaborately tragic story of Tlepolemus and Charite; and several others.

The plots vary from that of a simple incident as narrated in the tale of Diophanes, the Chaldaean, to the intricate and involved plot of the tale of the Jealous Wife. In length they run from about a page of the Teubner text to the fifty pages of Cupid and Psyche.

¹ Apul. Met. I, I, At ego tibi sermone isto Milesio varias fabulas conseram. These words, together with the evidence cited in connection with the story of Cupid and Psyche and with that of the passage from the life of Albinus, seem to prove the point conclusively.

THE APULEIAN SHORT STORY

In reading over these tales with an idea of classification, one finds that love or one of its debased relations, passion or lust, may be said to form the foundation for the greater number of them. But one loses sight of this in wonder at the involved plot. Many of the tales show much unconscious humor which renders them highly entertaining; in some of the others we enjoy laughing with the author instead of at him.

Diophanes the Chaldean.—The tale of the false prophet simply makes an appeal to one's sense of humor. A merchant whose only stock in trade is his nimble wit, and whose place of business is any street corner, professes to be able to foretell fortunate dates for journeys, and is prospering exceedingly.

A grateful merchant has just received definite information as to exactly the best moment for dispatching a vessel laden with rich merchandise and is generously counting out a hundred pieces of gold for the seer, when the latter, feeling his cloak pulled from behind, turns, recognizes an old friend, and engages enthusiastically in conversation with him. "And tell me," says the friend, "how did your journey speed after I left you?"

The seer carried away by the memories of his terrible misfortunes overwhelms his friend with a sad tale of shipwreck and loss of property which left him only his life to be grateful for. Loud and mocking laughter from the throng about causes him to turn in time to see his disillusioned patron hurriedly seizing his gold and departing.

The Lost Slippers.—The story of Senator Barbarus in the tale of the Lost Slippers, his jealousy of his beautiful wife, and the pleasant dénouement owing to the quick wit of her lover, emphasizes this gentleman's cleverness to such an extent that jealousy, intrigue and unfaithfulness become minor incidents of the history.

That his beautiful wife may not even be looked upon by any one other than himself is the chief desire of Senator Barbarus. In a necessary absence he confides her to the care of a confidential slave, who is strictly warned not to lose sight of her; indeed, not to loose his grasp of her garment in his master's absence.

A young man who has heard rumors of the lady's beauty, offers the slave a large sum of money for himself and another for his mistress if she consents to receive him as a lover during her husband's absence. Cupidity triumphs over the virtue of both slave and lady. The lover is admitted, the doors barred, but soon the master unexpectedly returns. The lover hastily escapes by a back door; the master comes in somewhat suspicious because of the locked door and the delay. In the morning he sees a pair of slippers in his wife's room. He orders the slave bound and is leading him to the torture when the lover, seeing the sad procession, hurls himself upon the bound slave, beating him and demanding his slippers which he says the slave stole at the baths the day before.

The senator with that readiness to be convinced of the falsity of his suspicions which goes far toward making such a tale move smoothly, has the slave unbound, bids him return the slippers, and feels gratitude toward the young man who has saved him from ill treating a faithful servant.

The Robber's Tale.—The humor of the robbers' tales, the three told by a member of the band, seems to lie mainly in one's constant and somewhat ludicrous feeling of surprise at being given the robber's point of view in sharp contrast to the conventional attitude of the possessor of portable property.

The first tale is of the bravery and death of Lamachus. The robbers approaching Thebes, inquire as to the financial rating of the inhabitants and decide to turn their attention to a certain miser.

In the dead of night the leader approaches the humble dwelling. He put his hand through the orifice intended for the insertion of the key, meaning to raise the bars. We are told that he does this "in all the confidence of his tried valor." But the miser, "that vilest of all two-footed things," was ready for him. In a silence which seemed to the narrator inexcusably deceitful, he crept to the door and drove a spike through the hand of the brave Lamachus, pinning him to the door. Then the miser, ascending to the roof, called upon his neighbors for aid.

It is significant that he did not call for aid against the robbers, but asked them to aid him in putting out a sudden fire which from his house, where it had started, would threaten theirs. This appeal to self interest was successful. As the neighbors gathered, the robbers were in a quandary. They must decide between saving themselves and deserting their comrade. Finally they struck off the arm at the shoulder, and took with them all that was left of their brave comrade.

It is explained that the wound was swathed in cloths "lest the blood might betray our course." However, Lamachus could not keep up. He begged his comrades to kill him. When no one of them would do this, he kissed his sword again and again and drove it into his breast with the hand that was left him. They committed his body to the sea "and there lies our brave Lamachus with a whole element for his grave."

The next of the robber band to lose his life seems to have been at fault in two respects. He was careless, for his comrade tells us that upon breaking into an old woman's cottage, he should have strangled her. He neglected this precaution and proceeded to throw her belongings out of the window to the other members of the band who waited below.

When everything was gone except the coverlet which enwrapped the old woman sleeping all this time, the robber fell a victim to his second failing. He was too greedy, for he felt that he must have the coverlet. So he threw the occupant of the bed upon the floor. The "wicked old woman" promptly asked him why he was presenting all her belongings to her rich neighbors, whose house the window overlooked.

Aleimus was of so simple a mind that he was deceived by the cunning of this wily speech. He leaned out of the window; that aged sinner gave him a push, and he fell upon a stone and broke and shattered the framework of his ribs. He lived long enough to tell his comrades what had happened. Then he gave up the ghost and they buried him as they had Lamachus.

We can but feel that the narrator has cleverly led up to a climax, for the third tale is much more elaborate than the other two. We are presented with a picture of a show of gladiators to be given by Demochares of Plataea and hardly enough can be said in praise of his gentle birth, his great generosity and his wealth.

He has collected skilled gladiators, experienced huntsmen, horribly guilty criminals, these last to be used as a feast for the wild beasts. A wonderful contrivance of towers built of wood, resembling a house on wheels, decorated with paintings, is used as an ornamental cage for wild beasts.

Here follows a description of the animals. We learn that Demochares "had been at great pains to procure these noble sepulchres for the condemned felons, importing them even from foreign lands." But he specialized in bears and bears did not thrive. In every open space of the town they lay dying in agony. In spite of the fact that the bears succumbed to a pestilence, the poor people hastened to partake of these banquets spread thus freely for them.

And now the stage being set, the actors appear. Two of the robbers conceive a brilliant plan for making some of the wealth of the good Demochares their own. Carrying the carcase of a very big bear to their abode, they skin it carefully, leaving the head and claws entire. While the skin dries, they enjoy a diet of the flesh and perfect their plan. Some one very brave and strong is to hide himself in the skin and assume the appearance of a bear. He is to be introduced into the house of Demochares, and in the dead of the night to admit his comrades.

There are many volunteers, but Thrasyllus is chosen. Sewn into the skin, his head pushed into the cavity of the mouth, holes pierced in the eyes and nostrils that he may not be suffocated, he is placed, now a "perfect" beast, in a cage.

And now the subtlety of the plot becomes evident. The robbers learning of a friend of Demochares, a hunter, forge a letter from him in which he begs Demochares to accept the first fruits of a hunting trip, the bear. The recipient, delighted, gives orders to place the new bear with the others. But when he is reminded by the robbers that the other bears are ill, and that the new bear will be better out of the sun for a time, in his house for choice, Demochares, with a commendable readiness to act upon a suggestion, promptly has the bear placed in the house.

Everything seems propitious. The robbers strolling into the country find an ancient tomb, and wrenching the tops from the coffins, prepare to use them as a repository for the rich booty they anticipate. Coming at the appointed time, they find that Thrasyllus has done his part; the guards are dead and the doors open.

According to their plan, the robbers, with as much treasure as they can carry, hasten to the tomb to deposit it, leaving only one man on guard, for they argue that any one who might awaken and see the fierce bear roaming about would hasten to barricade himself in his own apartment.

A slave does awake, but does not react as expected. He runs away indeed, but only to alarm the household. A mob of men gathers, every one armed. Shaggy dogs are there. The narrator, hiding behind a door, witnesses the thrilling conflict. Thrasyllus never for one moment forgets his character. He fights like a wild beast. The description of his brave struggle is harrowing. Finally "mangled by hound's teeth and maimed by steel, yet he roared and bellowed continually with the voice of a wild beast; he endured his sufferings with noble constancy, and though he yielded up his life to fate, he made fame his own for ever."

The Three Brothers. — A gloomy recital of murder and suicide is the tale of the three brothers. These young men, sons of a wealthy farmer, hasten to the support of a poor friend who is in danger of being deprived of his small property by a rich tyrant.

The oppressor, reminded by the youngest of the brothers that the law is no respecter of persons and will protect the poor against the brutality of the rich, becomes so angry that he looses against the poor man and his friends a number of great savage dogs.

One brother is pulled down and killed, in spite of the fact that the others hasten to his rescue. After the second brother is slain by a spear, the third, feigning to be wounded, avenges his brothers by killing the tyrant and then, before he can be taken by the slaves who rush upon him, ends his own life. This is the most depressing of all the stories.

Eaten Alive. — Another, hardly less dark in hue, is that of the slave who was devoured by ants. A certain slave, who had entire charge of his master's household, loved a free woman belonging to a neighboring family.

His wife, a slave of the same household as himself, was so angered because of his unfaithfulness to her, that she burned all his account books and indeed all the contents of the house. Then she hanged herself and her child.

The master, to punish the slave whose conduct had impelled his wife to this action, had him stripped and smeared all over with honey. Then he was bound to a hollow fig-tree which was infested with ants. Attracted by the smell of the honey, they fastened upon the body of the slave in swarms. The man's flesh was stripped from his bones, which were left gleaming white on the tree.

In two of the stories under discussion, the witch motif is brought out most prominently. While the superstructure of the first tale rests upon the scorned affection and that of the second upon the illieit love of the respective heroines, both stories impress us principally because of the grawsome details of the lopping off of noses and ears, the tearing out of hearts, and the changing of shape which are characteristic of the true witch tale.

Tale of Aristomenes, the Commercial Traveler.—With a minuteness of detail which goes far to make one feel that all that follows is authentic, Aristomenes, a commercial traveller, tells of his arrival in Hypata, how his business there had sped, how, wearied, he went to the baths "just as the evening star was rising." And how surprised he was at the sight of his friend Socrates clad only in filthy rags.

When he had given Socrates all the home news and had fed and clothed him, he was rewarded for his kindness by the history of all that had befallen his friend. Socrates on his way home from Macedonia, whither he had gone on business, planned to stop at Larissa to witness a show of gladiators, when he was attacked by robbers and lost everything that he possessed.

Arriving at an inn, he was fed, comforted, and accepted as a lover by the landlady, whose name was Meroe. She had taken all his earnings, even all the clothes the robbers had left him; but when Aristomenes characterized her and her conduct in an uncomplimentary manner, poor Socrates hastened to exclaim, "Not a word against that divine woman, lest the recklessness of your speech do you a hurt!"

Thereupon Socrates described the power of Meroe. "She can call down the sky, hang earth in heaven, freeze fountains, melt mountains, raise the spirits of the dead; send gods to hell, put out the stars and give light to Tartarus itself."

"I beseech you," said Aristomenes not unreasonably, "clear away your tragic curtain, roll up your drop scene and speak in ordinary language." Thus besought Socrates told of the horrors wrought by Meroe and of the dread punishment meted out to any who tried to oppose her. Much terrified, Aristomenes felt that the witch probably already knew all that they had been saying. He counselled flight at dawn but found that Socrates, very tired and having drunk much wine, was already asleep. So Aristomenes made everything as secure as possible, placing his truckle against the door.

He was barely asleep when the hinges were broken, the doors battered to the ground and his bed overturned. Falling to the ground he was shielded by the bed, and saw two women enter. One carried a bright lantern, the other a sponge and naked sword. Meroe, standing by Socrates' bed, said to her companion, "This, sister Panthia, is my sweet Endymion, my Ganymede, who has made light of my love, and not content with slandering me, he now seeks to fly from me, while I like a second Calypso, deserted by the wily Ulysses, must bewail my loneliness for ever." She also made it quite clear to Aristomenes that she knew of his presence and of the fact that he had proposed the departure.

As she talked she became enraged and proposed killing him at once, but the "good Panthia" expressed a preference for tearing Socrates limb from limb, and Meroe finally decided that Aristomenes might live so that there would be some one to bury Socrates. Plunging her dagger into Socrates' throat, she caught the blood in a bladder, then thrust her hand into the wound and dragged forth his heart.

All the time Socrates continued to utter a shriek which gurgled indistinctly through the wound. The good Panthia used her sponge to "block the wound where it gaped widest," but she adjured it to have a care lest, "child of the sea, thou cross running water."

Then the witches departed, the doors rose up and resumed their former position and became bolted and barred.

Aristomenes for the second time decided to fly. The porter refused to open the door of the inn and became unpleasantly personal in his inquiries as to the safety of Socrates.

With no course left to him but to return to the scene of the murder, Aristomenes decided to end his life. Taking the rope from the truckle bed, he cast one end over a beam and made the other into a noose. Then he climbed upon the bed to launch himself to destruction, but as he pushed away the support, the rope broke and he fell upon Soerates. They rolled together to the floor. Just then the porter burst into the room, loudly demanding the man who had been in such a hurry to depart. Socrates arose. He complained of the noise which had broken in upon his delightful sleep. Aristomenes was so overjoyed to find Socrates alive and to know that he could not now be accused of murder that he embraced and kissed his friend, much to the indignation of the latter.

Aristomenes urged that they start at once. Once well on the way, he looked curiously at Soerates. No wound, no sponge. He told himself that he had taken too much wine, and confided to Socrates that he had passed a dreadful night filled with horrid dreams. Soerates said that he too had a dream in which he thought that his throat was cut. He added that he was even then faint and needed food to restore his strength. So they sat under a tree to eat their breakfast and Socrates became thinner and thinner while his face grew yellow and his strength failed fast. Then he became very thirsty and went to a nearby stream to drink. But as he knelt, "a wound gaped wide and deep in his throat," a sponge dropped out and the body would have fallen into the stream had not Aristomenes dragged it to the top of the bank. After bewailing his comrade he laid him in the shallow grave predicted by Meroe.

Telyphron's Tale of the Witches.—The second witch tale is of a much more complicated nature. The favorite feature of the supernatural is introduced, and the climax is as great a surprise to the reader as it was to the narrator of the tale.

Telyphron, a young man, tells us of his adventures. Reaching Larissa in the course of his travels, he found himself in pressing need of money. Hearing a crier offering his own price to anyone who would watch a corpse, he somewhat flippantly asked a passerby if the corpses were in the habit of running away.

The man rebuked Telyphron, reminding him that he was young and a stranger sojourning in the place peculiarly known as the home of witches. The witches, he said, lay in wait to mutilate the faces of the dead in order to procure ingredients for their magic charms. If a watcher allowed the face of a corpse to be mutilated, he must allow portions to be cut from his own face to replace those taken.

Undismayed, Telyphron offered his services to the crier, who at once led him to the beautiful lady whose husband was dead. In the presence of seven witnesses the widow made an inventory of the features and their condition at the time of Telyphron's arrival. The door locked, Telyphron, much exhausted, went to sleep soon after he had driven away a weasel which had approached and looked fixedly at him.

He did not awaken until dawn, when, filled with fear lest the corpse had been mutilated, he rushed to look at it and found that it was unimpaired. When the widow entered with her witnesses she was overjoyed, ordered the watcher paid, and said that she should count him among her friends in the future. Telyphron's reply to the effect that she might count upon him whenever she had need of his services was considered of such ill omen that the lady's servants set upon him, beat and bruised him and tore his clothes.

As he was recovering from this hard treatment, the funeral procession of the young man passed through the market place. An old man, weeping and tearing his hair, threw his arms about the bier, and accused the widow of the dead man of having murdered him that she might have his money and please her lover. The widow denied her guilt, appealing with tears to all the gods of heaven.

Thereupon the old man produced an Egyptian prophet, who had agreed to recall the dead man to life for a brief space. After an impressive ceremonial, the corpse sat up, begging to be allowed to rest. But the prophet angrily commanded him to throw light upon the mystery of his death. Thereupon the dead man wearily said that his wife had poisoned him that she might give herself to her lover. There ensued an argument between the wife, who maintained her innocence, and the corpse, and each had supporters in the throng about.

Finally, to prove his truthfulness, the corpse promised to tell something that he alone knew. He said that the witches had thrown a pall over the watcher of the night before. Then they had repeatedly called the name of the corpse until he felt that he must rise and go to them.

Strange to relate, his name and that of the watcher were identical, and it was the latter who finally arose and went to the door. There, reaching through the chink of the door, the witches had lopped off the nose and ears of the young man, and in order that he might not discover his loss, had put features made of wax in place of those they had taken.

Upon hearing this astounding statement, Telyphron put his hands to his ears and they dropped off; to his nose, and it fell off. He had no heart to return to his home, and was from then an exile.

The Jealous Wife. — Of all these stories, none of which is poor in plot, the tale of the woman who murdered her husband's sister is most notable because of its wealth in this respect.

A woman, whose husband is about to start on a journey, is told by him that if their child soon to be born is a girl, it must be put to death. When the girl baby is born, the mother cannot bear to have it killed. She places it in the family of a neighbor to be reared.

When the girl has grown to a marriageable age, the fact that she can give her daughter no dowry so oppresses the mother that she confides the whole story to her son. He promptly agrees to take the girl into his family, provide her with a dowry and marry her to one of his own dear friends.

It is necessary to conceal the identity of the girl, and his wife becomes jealous of her. Going into the country, she sends a faithful slave with a message to the girl, requesting her to come unattended to the country house. Since her brother's signet ring is shown her when the message is delivered, the girl, who is devoted to her brother, has no hesitation in obeying his command.

The jealous wife springs upon her from ambush, ill treats and wounds her and finally, in spite of the fact that the girl discloses the true relationship between herself and her assailant's husband, murders her in a manner too horrible to relate.

The husband and the young girl's fiancé bury her, and the brother is so affected by grief that he becomes ill. The wife goes to a physician and offers him a large sum of money if he will sell her some poison. In the presence of the household the physician offers the sick man the cup. To his horror, the wife demands that he take part of the draught as proof that he has no intention of poisoning her husband.

The physician, speechless before the audacity of this abandoned woman, drinks part of the poison, offering the remainder to the sick man, who takes it readily. The wife manages to keep the physician in the house so long that he cannot save his life by an antidote. He lives long enough, however, to tell his wife what has happened and to bid her collect the reward promised him.

When the physician's widow asks for the money, it is promised her at once and she is asked if she cannot find a little more of the same potion. Overjoyed at the promise of payment, she brings the whole casket.

With this power for evil in her hands, the wicked woman decides to murder her little daughter who will otherwise inherit her father's property. Arranging a luncheon party, she poisons not only her daughter, but the physician's widow as well. The child dies at once, but the older victim lives long enough to tell the governor about the crimes, and their perpetrator is sentenced to be thrown to the wild beasts.

In addition to the fact that this somewhat tiresome tale has such an involved plot, one notices the effect upon the narrator as the story proceeds and the full enormity of the wickedness of the principal character affects his judgment. When the physician is applied to for the poison, we are told that he is notorious for his perfidious villainies; when, tricked by the woman to whom he has sold the poison, he dies, he is that “most admirable physician.”

The Enamoured Step-mother.—Only second to the tale just told for depth of wickedness in its heroine, is that of the stepmother who loved her husband's son. If the author had been upholding the truth of the assertion that “hell hath no fury like a woman scorned,” he could have brought forward no more convincing incidents.

The stepmother is beautiful and the mother of a son, but her passion for her stepson is so great that she is ill because of it. The stepson is pictured as a model youth devoted to his books. When his stepmother declares her passion, he promptly suggests that they must say nothing more of it until his father goes away.

It is his intention to go away himself to escape the unwelcome advances of his father's wife, but before he can do so, his father goes upon a long journey. When the stepmother is taught by the numerous excuses returned in answer to her various messages that her affection is unwelcome, her love turns to bitterest hate.

The usual faithful slave procures the usual poison to administer to the offender, but it is taken by the younger son, who dies. The father, hastily summoned, is told a horrible tale of the depravity of his elder son. Because his stepmother repelled his advances, he has poisoned her son in revenge, and now plots to destroy her because she has detected his guilt. Beside himself with grief, the poor father buries his dead son; then he rushes into the market place, demanding the punishment of the living one.

The trial is held. The stepmother's faithful slave testifies that the young man, angered because of his stepmother's obduracy, had procured poison which he commanded the slave to give to the little brother; that he offered a rich reward and threatened death if his command were not obeyed. That finally he had administered the potion with his own hand, fearful lest the slave should not do so.

The senators, all believing in the guilt of the accused, were about to condemn him to death, when the most respected of them, putting his hand over the mouth of the vase into which the voting pebbles were to be cast, told a strange story.

The slave had applied to him for a swift poison for which he offered to pay a large sum. He had given the potion, but as his suspicions had been aroused, he had made an excuse by which he had managed to have the slave's seal affixed to the bag of coins paid him. Although the seal affixed to the bag of coins proved to be the same as that on the slave's ring, the latter still maintained the truth of his story.

Then the physician said that the drug which he had given to the slave was mandrake, which did not kill but induced a deep sleep. If it had been administered to the boy, he would now be on the point of awaking. They went to the tomb and found the boy just emerging from the trance.

The slave was sentenced to be crucified; the stepmother was banished for life; the father who had believed himself bereft of both sons, was now happy in their possession.

The Tragedy of Tlepolemus and Charite. — The story of Tlepolemus and Charite, their love for each other and their death, and of the villain of the piece, Thrasyllus, is the most symmetrically developed of all the tales we are to consider.

Charite, beautiful and charming, after being sought in marriage by many suitors, is married to Tlepolemus. Thrasyllus, violently in love with her, has been rejected by her parents because of his dissipated life and evil associates. His passion for the bride of Tlepolemus does not wane, and he ingratiates himself with the wedded pair and becomes an intimate of the husband.

Together they go to hunt roe deer, for Charite fears some injury to her husband if he seek fiercer game. Tlepolemus and Thrasyllus are mounted, their servants on foot. Suddenly a wild boar springs from the forest. "With mighty muscles standing out, with bristling hair rising along his spine, he rushes out, gnashing his teeth in his rage, foaming at the mouth, while his eyes seem to flash forth flame."

Upon the proposal of Thrasyllus, the friends start in pursuit of the boar. It turns upon Tlepolemus and he, hard pressed, calls to his friend for aid. The servants have already run away. Thrasyllus attacks instead of aiding Tlepolemus, and maims his horse. Fearful lest the tusks of the furious boar may not inflict fatal wounds, he adds several thrusts of his spear.

When Charite learns of the death of her husband, she rushes wildly through the street to throw herself upon his body, and is only prevented by force from joining him in death. It is Thrasyllus who later rouses her to take some interest in life. And when she seems reconciled to live, he urges his proposals upon her and this time with the consent of her parents.

And now the shade of Tlepolemus appears to Charite in her sleep and tells her of the guilt of Thrasyllus. Her whole energy seems now to be directed to revenge. She conceals her loathing of her wicked suitor, and gives hopeful promises for the future. But when he urges her to accept him at once as her lover, she apparently yields, only stipulating that he come secretly, since her husband's death is so recent.

On his arrival, a servant plies him with drugged wine. When he is unconscious, Charite blinds him by plunging through his eyes again and again, a pin from her hair. Then, in spite of those who would have restrained her, Charite kills herself at her husband's tomb and Thrasyllus, awaking to the horror of all that he has done, has himself locked in the tomb of those he has so wronged, and dies of starvation.

The Tale of the Tub and the Fuller's Wife. — The tale of the Tub and the story of the Fuller's Wife serve to bring into prominence that element of lubricity which is recognized as one of the characteristics of the early Milesian tale. The tale of the Tub is well known, as Boccaccio has used it in his Decameron. The story of the Fuller's Wife is an involved tale of intrigue, and it also appears in the Decameron.

Cupid and Psyche. — The far-famed tale of Cupid and Psyche is one of the best-known tales of antiquity. It has inspired many a work of art, and if known to comparatively few in the original, the exquisite translation of it in Walter Pater's Marius the Epicurean, La Fontaine's version, and perhaps above all, for English readers, the poetical rendering of William Morris in the Earthly Paradise have made it well known in modern times. It is undoubtedly folklore in origin but worked over into the form of an erotic romance with a very slight element of allegory.

With the possible exception of the tale of Diophanes, the Chaldaean, these are tales of action. One readily sees the tremendous possibilities open to a narrator of vivid imagination. When Socrates tremblingly tells of the dread deeds of the witch in punishing her enemies, the reader is tempted to add something of his own, so stimulated are his inventive powers.

The supernatural element is a favorite and striking feature, and the shades have as much individuality as their prototypes. At times the appearance of the shade was necessary, as in the second witch's tale. In the instance cited, the husband's spirit came unwillingly, but having come, argued vigorously with the wife who had poisoned him, and then and there to prove his veracity, furnished the point of the whole tale by disclosing what the witch had done to Telyphron. In striking contrast, the shade of Tlepolemus need not have come at all, for Charite must already have suspected what he came to disclose. But he was a gentle, affectionate, resigned spirit, and a decided aid in adding to the thrill which these tales could not have failed to induce.

In the story of the Lost Slippers, the central figure is, rather surprisingly, the lady's lover. His ready wit and kind heart, as shown in saving a slave from torture, make him a personality, a rare thing in the stories under discussion, in which characterization is noticeably absent. Another personality is Charite, a well delineated character, and the fact that she is a virtuous wife is something of a relief after one has read so many accounts of readily accepted lovers and deceived husbands.

With very few exceptions we are shown puppets whose strings are pulled by the author. As a result there is manifest a striking readiness to act in a way to promote the plot. And such a wealth of plot! The villains are nearly all feminine and are painted as absolutely unscrupulous. Confidential slaves abound who are ever ready to plan murders and to bring necessary potions from unscrupulous physicians.

In these days of psychological studies the very objectivity of these always simple, though involved tales is somewhat restful. One can feel sure that the person who is to be deceived will yield readily to the most transparent attempt to hoodwink him; that the good will ultimately triumph in almost every case; that punishments will be blood-curdling in their cruelty; that ghosts will walk, and that while robbers nearly always die, yet undying fame is theirs forever. We gain, too, an interesting picture of the time. In those days in Thessaly, the land of magic, where wild beasts, robbers, inky blackness and every kind of danger threatened from without, these melodramatic tales told in wayside inns by commercial travellers, by servants, sometimes even by one of the leading characters, could rarely fail to produce the most telling effect.

I

TALE OF ARISTOMENES THE COMMERCIAL TRAVELER

Sed ut prius noritis cuiatis sim; Aegiensis; audite et quo quaestu me teneam: melle vel caseo et huiuscmodi cauponarum mercibus per Thessaliam, Aetoliam, Boeotiam ultro citro discurrens. Comperto itaque Hypatae, quae civitas cunctae Thessaliae antepolle, caseum recens et sciti 5 saporis admodum commodo pretio distrahi, festinus adcucurri id omne praestinaturus.

Sed, ut fieri adsolet, sinistro pede profectum me spes compendii frustrata est; omne enim pridie Lupus negotiator magnarius coemerat. Ergo igitur inefficaci celeritate fatigatus commodum vespera oriente ad balneas processeram; ecce Socraten contubernalem meum conspicio. Humi sedebat scissili palliastro semiamictus, paene alias lurore, ad miseram maciem deformatus, qualia solent fortunae decermina stipes in triviis erogare. Hunc talem, quamquam 15 necessarium et summe cognitum, tamen dubia mente propius accessi.

gaudiis a suis sibi parentibus hilarare compellitur. At tu hic larvale simulacrum cum summo dedecore nostro viseris."

"Aristomene," inquit, "ne tu fortunarum lubricas ambages et instabiles incursiones et reciprocas vicissitudines ignoras!"

5 et cum dicto sutili centunculo faciem suam iam dudum punicantem prae pudore obtexit ita, ut ab umbilico pube tenus cetera corporis renudaret. Nec denique percessus ego tam miserum aerumnae spectaculum iniecta manu ut adsurgat enitor.

10 At ille, ut erat, capite velato, "Sine, sine," inquit, "frustratur diutius trophaeo Fortuna, quod fixit ipsa."

Effeci sequatur et simul unam e duabus laciniis meis exuo eumque propere vestio dicam an contego, et illico lavacro trado, quod unctui, quod tersui ipse praeministro, sordium 15 enormem eluviem operose effrico, probe curato, ad hospitium lassus ipse fatigatum aegerrime sustinens perduco, lectulo refoveo, cibo satio, poculo mitigo, fabulis permulceo.

Iam adlubentia proclivis est sermonis et ioci et scitum etiam cavillum, iam dicacitas intimida, cum ille imo de 20 pectore cruciabilem suspiritum ducens, dextra saeviente frontem replaudens: "Me miserum," infit, "qui, dum voluptatem gladiatorii spectaculi satis famigerabilis consector, in has aerumnas incidi. Nam ut scis optime, secundum quaestum Macedoniam profectus, dum mense decimo ibidem 25 attentus nummatior revortor, modico prius quam Larissam accederem, per transitum spectaculum obiturus in quadam avia et lacunosa convalli a vastissimis latronibus obsessus atque omnibus privatus tandem evado et utpote ultime affectus ad quandam eauponam Meroen, anum sed ad 30 modum scitulam, devoto eique causas et peregrinationis diurnae et domitionis anxiae et spoliationis miserae refero; quae me nimis quam humane tractare adorta, ceneae gratae atque gratuitae applicat. Et statim miser, ut cum illa adquievi, ab unico congressu annosam ac pestilentem servitutem contraho et ipsas etiam lacinias, quas boni latrones contegendo mihi concesserant, in eam contuli, operulas etiam, quas adhuc vegetus saccariam faciens merebam, quoad me 5 ad istam faciem quam paulo ante vidisti bona uxor et mala fortuna perduxit."

"Pol quidem tu dignus," inquam, "es extrema sustinere, si quid est tamen novissimo extremius, qui voluptatem veneriam et scortum scortum lari et liberis praetulisti." 10 At ille digitum a pollice proximum ori suo admovens et in stuporem attonitus "Tace, tace," inquit et circumspiciens tutamenta sermonis: "Parce," inquit, "in feminam divinam ne quam tibi lingua intemperante noxam contrahas."

"Ain tandem?" inquam, "potens illa et regina capona 15 quid mulieris est?"

"Saga," inquit, "et divina, potens caelum deponere, terram suspendere, fontes durare, montes diluere, manes sublimare, deos infimare, sidera extinguere, Tartarum ipsum inluminare." 20

"Oro te," inquam, "aulaeum tragicum dimoveto et si parium scaenicum complicato et cedo verbis communibus."

"Vis," inquit, "unum vel alterum, immo plurima eius audire facta? Nam ut se ament efflictim non modo incolae, verum etiam Indi vel Aethiopes utriusque vel ipsi 25 Anticthones, folia sunt artis et nugae merae. Sed quod in conspectum plurium perpetravit, audi.

"Cauponem quoque vicinum atque ob id aemulum deformavit in ranam et nunc senex ille dolio innatans vini sui, adventores pristinos in faece submissus officiosis roncis 30 raucus appellat. Alium de foro, quod adversus eam locutus esset, in arietem deformavit et nunc aries ille causas agit.

“Quae cum subinde faceret ac multi nocerentur, publicitus indignatio percrebruit statutumque ut in eam die altera severissime saxorum iaculationibus vindicaretur. Quod consilium virtutibus cantionum antevortit et ut illa Medea unius dieculae a Creone impetratis indutiis totam eius domum filiamque cum ipso sene flammis coronalibus deusserat, sic haec devotionibus sepulchralibus in scrobem procuratis, ut mihi temulenta narravit proxime, cunctos in suis sibi domibus tacita numinum violentia clausit, ut toto biduo non claustra perfringi, non fores evelli, non denique parietes ipsi quiverint perforari, quoad mutua hortatione consone clamitarent quam sanctissime deierantes sese neque ei manus admolituros et, si quis aliud cogitarit, salutare laturos subsidium. Et sic illa propitiata totam civitatem absolvit.

Haec adhuc me suadente insolita vinolentia ac diurna fatigatione pertentatus bonus Socrates iam sopitus stertebat altius. Ego vero adducta fore pessulisque firmatis grabatulo etiam pone cardines supposito et probe adgesto super eum me recipio. Ac primum piae metu aliquantis per vigilo, dein circa tertiam ferme vigiliam paululum coniveo. Commodum quieveram, et repente impulsu maiore quam ut latrones crederes ianuae reserantur, immo vero fractis et evolsis funditus cardinibus proster- 5 nuntur. Grabatulus alioquin breviculus et uno pede mutilus ac putris impetus tanti violentia prosternitur, me quoque evolutum atque excussum humi recidens in inversum coperit ac tegit.

Tunc ego sensi naturalitus quosdam affectus in con-10 trarium provenire. Nam ut lacrimae saepicule de gaudio prodeunt, ita et in illo nimio pavore risum nequivi continere, de Aristomene testudo factus. Ac dum in fimum deiectus obliquo aspectu, quid rei sit, grabatuli sollertia munitus opperior, video mulieres duas altioris aetatis; 15 lucernam lucidam gerebat una, spongiam et nudum gladium altera. Hoc habitu Socratem bene quietum circumstetere.

Infit illa cum gladio “Hic est, soror Panthia, carus Endymion, hic Catamitus meus, qui diebus ac noctibus inlusit aetatulam meam, hic qui meis amoribus subterhabit non 20 solum me diffamat probris, verum etiam fugam instruit. At ego scilicet Ulixi astu deserta vice Calypsonis aeternam solitudinem flebo.” Et porrecta dextera meque Panthiae suae demonstrato, “At hic bonus,” inquit, “consiliator Aristomenes, qui fugae huius auctor fuit et nunc morti proximus iam humi prostratus grabatulo subcubans iacet et haec omnia conspicit, impune se laturum meas contumelias putat. Faxo eum sero, immo statim, immo vero iam nunc, ut et praecedentis dicacitatis et instantis curiositatis paenitentiat.” 30

inquietus super dorsum meum palpitando saltaret. At bona Panthia “Quin igitur,” inquit, “soror Meroe, hunc primum bacchatim discerpimus.”

Ad haec Meroe—sic enim reapse nomen eius tunc 5 fabulis Socratis convenire sentiebam—‘Immo,’ ait, ‘su-persit hic saltem, qui miselli huius corpus parvo contumulet humo,’ et capite Socratis in alterum dimoto latus per iugulum sinistrum capulo tenus gladium totum ei de-mergit et sanguinis eruptionem utriculo admoto excipit 10 diligenter, ut nulla stilla compareret usquam.

Haec ego meis oculis aspexi. Nam etiam, ne quid demutaret, credo, a victimae religione, immissa dextera per vulnus illud ad viscera penitus, eorū miseri contubernalis mei Meroe bona scrutata protulit, cum ille in petu teli prae-15 secata gula vocem, immo stridorem incertum per vulnus effunderet et spiritum rebulliret. Quod vulnus, qua maxime patebat, spongia offulciens Panthia “Heus tu,” inquit, “spongia, cave in mari nata per fluvium transeas.” His editis abeunt.

20 Commodum limen evaserant, et fores ad pristinum statum integrae resurgunt; cardines ad foramina resident, ad postes repagula redeunt, ad claustra pessuli recurrent.
At ego, ut eram, etiam nunc humi projectus, inanimis, nudus et frigidus immo vero semimortuus, verum etiam ipse mihi 25 supervivens et postumus vel certe destinatae iam cruci candidatus, “Quid,” inquam, “me fiet, ubi iste iugulatus mane paruerit? Cui videbor veri similia dicere proferens vera?
‘Proclamares saltem suppetiatum, si resistere vir tantus mulieri nequibas; sub oculis tuis homo iugulatur, et siles?
30 Cur autem te simile latrocinium non peremit? Cur saeva cru delitas vel propter indicium sceleris arbitro pepercit?
Ergo quoniam evasisti mortem, nunc illo redi.’”

Haec identidem mecum replicabam, et nox ibat in diem. Optimum itaque factu visum est anteluculo furtim evadere et viam licet trepido vestigio capessere. Sumo sarcinulam meam, subdita clavi pessulos reduco; at illae probae et fideles ianuae, quae sua sponte reseratae nocte fuerant, 5 vix tandem et aegerrime tunc clavis suaे crebra immissione patefiunt.

Et "Heus tu, ubi es?" inquam; "valvas stabuli absolve, antelucio volo ire." Ianitor pone stabuli ostium humi cubitans etiam nunc semisomnus: "Quid? tu," inquit, 10 "ignoras latronibus infestari vias, qui hoc noctis iter incipis? Nam etsi tu alicuius facinoris tibi conscius scilicet mori cupis, nos eucurbitae caput non habemus, ut pro te moriamur." "Non longe," inquam, "lux abest. Et praeterea quid viatori de summa pauperie latrones auferre possunt? 15 An ignoras, inepte, nudum nec a decem palaestratis despoliari posse?"

Ad haec ille marcidus et semisopitus in alterum latus evolutus "Unde autem," inquit, "scio, an convectore illo tuo, cum quo sero devorteras, iugulato fugae mandes prae- 20 sidium."

Illud horae memini me terra dehiscente ima Tartara inque his canem Cerberum prorsus esurientem me prospexisse. Ac recordabar profecto bonam Meroen non misericordia iugulo meo pepercisse, sed saevitia cruci me 25 reseruasse. In cubiculum itaque reversus de genere tumultuario mortis mecum deliberabam.

Sed cum nullum aliud telum mortiferum Fortuna quam solum mihi grabatum subministraret, "Iam iam grabatule," inquam, "animo meo carissime, qui mecum tot aerum- 30 nas exanclasti conscius et arbiter, quae nocte gesta sunt, quem solum in meo reatu testem innocentiae citare possum, tu mihi ad inferos festinanti sumministra telum salutare"; et cum dicto restim, qua erat intextus, adgredior expedire ac tigillo, quod fenestrae subditum altrinsecus prominebat, innecta atque obdita parte funicula et altera 5 firmiter in nodum coacta ascenso grabatulo ad exitium sublimatus et immisso capite laqueum induo. Sed dum pede altero fulcimentum, quo sustinebar, repello, ut ponderis deductu restis ad ingluviem adstricta spiritus officia discluderet, repente putris alioquin et vetus funis dirumpitur 10 atque ego de alto recidens Socraten — nam iuxta me iacebat — superruo cumque eo in terram devolvor. Et ecce in ipso momento ianitor introrumpit exerte clamitans "Ubi es tu, qui alta nocte immodice festinabas et nunc stertis involutus?"

Ad haec nescio an casu nostro an illius absono clamore 15 experrectus Socrates exsurgit prior et "Non," inquit, "in merito stabularios hos omnes hospites detestantur. Nam iste curiosus dum importune irrumpit — credo studio rapiendi aliquid — clamore vasto marcidum alioquin me altissimo somno excussit."

20 Emergo laetus atque alacer insperato gaudio perfusus et "Ecce, ianitor fidelissime, comes et pater meus et frater meus, quem nocte ebrius occisum a me calumniabar," et cum dicto Socratem deosculabar amplexus. At ille odore alioquin spurcissimi humoris percussus, quo me Lamiae 25 illae infecerant, vehementer aspernatur: "Apage te," inquit, "fetorem extremae latrinae" et causas coepit huius odoris comiter inquirere. At ego miser adficto ex tempore absurdo ioco in alium sermonem intentionem eius denuo derivo et innecta dextra "Quin imus," inquam, "et itineris 30 matutini gratiam capimus."

Sumo sarcinulam et pretio mansionis stabulario persoluta capessimus viam.

Aliquantum processeramus, et iam iubaris exortu cuncta conlustrantur. Et ego curiose sedulo arbitrabar iugulum comitis, qua parte gladium delapsum videram, et mecum “Vesane,” aio, “qui poculis et vino sepultus extrema somniasti. Ecce Socrates integer, sanus, incolumis. Ubi vulnus, 5 ubi spongia? ubi postremum cicatrix tam alta, tam recens?” Et ad illum: “Non,” inquam, “immerito medici fidi cibo et crapula distentos saeva et gravia somniare autumant; mihi denique, quod poculis vesperi minus temperavi, nox acerba diras et truces imagines optulit, ut adhuc me credam eruore 10 humano aspersum atque impiatum.”

Ad haec ille subridens “At tu,” inquit, “non sanguine, sed lotio perfusus es, verum tamen et ipse per somnum iugulari visus sum mihi. Nam et iugulum istum dolui et eor ipsum mihi avelli putavi, et nunc etiam spiritu deficior et genua quatior et gradu titubo et aliquid cibatus refovendo spiritu desidero.”

“En,” inquam, “paratum tibi adest ientaculum” et cum dicto manticam meam humero exuo, caseum cum pane propere ei porrigo et “Iuxta platanum istam residamus” aio. 20

Quo facto et ipse aliquid indidem sumo eumque avide esitantem aspiciens aliquanto intentiore macie atque pallore buxeo deficientem video. Sic denique eum vitalis color turbaverat, ut mihi prae metu, nocturnas etiam Furias illas imaginanti, frustulum panis, quod primum sumpseram, quamvis 25 admodum modicum mediis faucibus inhaereret ac neque deorsum demeare neque sursum remeare posset. Nam et crebritas ipsa commeantium metum mihi cumulabat. Quis enim de duobus comitum alterum sine alterius noxa peremptum crederet? Verum ille ut satis detruncaverat cibum, 30 sitire inpatienter cooperat; nam et optimi casei bonam partem avide devoraverat, et haud ita longe radices platani lenis fluvius in speciem placidae paludis ignavus ibat argento vel vitro aemulus in colore.

“En,” inquam, “explere latice fontis lacteo.”

Adsurgit ille et opportus paululum planiorem ripae mar-ginem complicitus in genua adpronat se avidus adfectans poculum. Necum satis extremis labiis summum aquae ro-rem attigerat, et iugulo eius vulnus dehiscit in profundum patorem et illa spongia de eo repente devolvitur eamque parvus admodum comitatur crux. Denique corpus exani-matum in flumen paene cernuat, nisi ego altero eius pede retento vix et aegre ad ripam superiorem adtraxi, ubi de-fletum pro tempore comitem misellum arenosa humo in amnis vicinia sempiterna contexi.

Ipse trepidus et eximie metuens mihi per diversas et avia solitudines aufugi et quasi conscius mihi caedis humanae, reicta patria et lare, ultroneum exilium amplexus, nunc Aetolian novo contracto matrimonio colo.

DIOPHANES THE CHALDEAN

Nam die quadam cum frequentis populi circulo conceptus coronae circumstantium fata donaret, Cердо quidam nomine negotiator accessit eum, diem commodum peregrinationi cupiens. Quem cum electum destinasset ille, iam deposita crux, iam profusis nummulis, iam dinumeratis centum denariis, quos mercede divinationis auferret, ecce quidam de nobilibus adulescentulus a tergo adrepens eum lacinia prehendit et conversum amplexus exosculatur artissime.

At ille ubi primum consaviatus eum iuxtim se ut adsidat effecit, attonitus repentinae visionis stupore et praesentis negotii quod gerebat oblitus, infit ad eum : “Quam olim quidem exoptatus nobis advenis ?”

Respondit ad haec ille alias, “Commodum vespera oriente. Sed vicissim tu quoque, frater, mihi memora quem ad modum exinde, ut de Euboea insula festinus enavigasti, et maris et viae confeceris iter.”

Ad haec Diophanes ille Chaldaeus egregius mente viduus necdum suus “Hostes,” inquit, “et omnes inimici nostri tam diram, immo vero Ulixeam peregrinationem incident. Nam et navis ipsa, qua vehebamur, variis turbinibus procellarum quassata, utroque regimine amisso aegre ad ulterioris ripae marginem detrusa, praeceps demersa est et nos omnibus amissis vix enatavimus.

“Quodcumque vel ignotorum miseratione vel amicorum benivolentia contraximus, id omne latrocinalis invasit manus, quorum audaciae repugnans etiam Arignotus unicus frater meus sub istis oculis miser iugulatus est."

Haec eo adhuc narrante maestro Cерdo, ille negotiator correptis nummulis suis, quos divinationis mercedi destinaverat, 5 protinus aufugit. Ae dehinc tunc demum Diophanes expergitus sensit imprudentiae suaे labem, cum etiam nos omnis circumsecus adstantes in clarum cachinnum videret effusos.

TELYPHRON'S TALE OF THE WITCHES

Pupillus ego Miletus profectus ad spectaculum Olympicum cum haec etiam loca provinciae famigerabilis adire cuperem, peragrata cuncta Thessalia fuscis avibus Larissam accessi. Ac dum singula pererrans tenuato admodum viatico, paupertati meae fomenta conquiror, conspicor medio 5 foro procerum quendam senem. Insistebat lapidem claraque voce praedicabat, si qui mortuum servare vellet, de pretio liceretur. Et ad quempiam praetereuntium "Quid hoc," inquam, "comperior? Hicine mortui solent aufugere?"

"Tace," respondit ille, "nam oppido puer et satis pere- 10 grinus es meritoque ignoras Thessaliae te consistere, ubi sagae mulieres ora mortuorum passim demorsicant, eaque sunt illis artis magicae supplementa."

Contra ego "Et quae, tu," inquam, "dic sodes, custodela ista feralis?" "Iam primum," respondit ille, "perpetem 15 noctem eximie vigilandum est exertis et inconivis oculis semper in cadaver intentis nec acies usquam devertenda, immo ne obliquanda quidem, quippe cum deterrimae versipelles in quodvis animal ore converso latenter adrepant, ut ipsos etiam oculos Solis et Iustitiae facile frustrentur; nam 20 et aves et rursum canes et mures, immo vero etiam muscas induunt. Tunc diris cantaminibus somno custodes obruunt. Nec satis quisquam definire poterit quantas latebras nequissimae mulieres pro libidine sua comminiscuntur.

“Nec tamen huius tam exitiabilis operaे merces amplior quam quaterni vel seni ferme offeruntur aurei. Ehem, et, quod paene praeterieram, si qui non integrum corpus mane restituerit, quidquid inde decerptum deminutumque fuerit, 5 id omne de facie sua desecto sarcire compellitur.”

His cognitis animum meum commasculo et ilico accedens praeconem, “Clamare,” inquam, “iam desine. Adest custos paratus, cedo praemium.”

“Mille,” inquit, “nummum deponentur tibi. Sed heus
10 iuvenis, cave diligenter principum civitatis filii cadaver a malis Harpiis probe custodias.”

“Ineptias,” inquam, “mihi narras et nugas meras. Vides hominem ferreum et insomnem, certe perspicaciorem ipso Lynceo vel Argo et ocaleum totum.”

15 Vix finieram, et ilico me perducit ad domum quampiam, cuius ipsis foribus obseptis per quandam brevem posticulam intro vocat me et conclave quoddam obseratis luminibus umbrosum aperiens demonstrat matronam flebilem fusca veste contectam, quam propter adsistens “Hic,” inquit, “auctoratus ad custodiam mariti tui fidenter accessit.” At illa crinibus antependulis hinc inde dimotis etiam in maerore luculentam proferens faciem meque respectans “Vide oro,” 20 inquit, “quam expergite munus obeas.”

“Sine cura sis,” inquam, “modo corollarium idoneum 25 compara.”

Sic placito consurrexit et ad aliud me cubiculum inducit. Ibi corpus splendentibus linteis coopertum, introductis quibusdam septem testibus, manu revclat et diutine super fletu, obtestata fidem praesentium singula demonstrat anxie, 30 verba concepta de industria quodam tabulis praenotante.

“Ecce,” inquit, “nasus integer, incolumes oculi, salvae aures, inlibatae labiae, mentum solidum. Vos in hanc rem, boni Quirites, testimonium perhibetote," et cum dicto consignatis illis tabulis facessit.

At ego : "Iube," inquam, "domina, cuncta quae sunt usui necessaria nobis exhiberi."

"At quae," inquit, "ista sunt ? "

"Lucerna," aio, "praegrandis et oleum ad lucem luci sufficiens et calida cum oenophoris et calice cenarumque reliquiis discus ornatus."

Tunc illa capite quassanti, "Abi," inquit, "fatue, qui in domo funesta cenas et partes requiris, in qua totius iam 10 diebus ne fumus quidem visus est ullus. An istuc comisatum te venisse credis? Quin sumis potius loco congruentes luctus et lacrimas ?" Haec simul dicens respexit ancillulam et "Myrrhine," inquit, "lucernam et oleum trade confestim et inclusō custode, cubiculo protinus facesse."

Sic desolatus ad cadaveris solacium perfictis oculis et obarmatis ad vigilias animum meum permulcebam cantationibus, cum ecce crepusculum et nox proiecta et nox altior et dein concubia altiora et iam nox intempesta. Mihique oppido formido cumulatior quidem, cum repente introrepens 20 mustula contra me constitit optutumque acerrimum in me destituit, ut tantilla animalis prae nimia sui fiducia mihi turbarit animum. Denique sic ad illam "Quin abis," inquam, "inpurata bestia, teque ad tui similes musculos recondis, antequam nostri vim praesentariam experiaris? Quin 25 abis?"

Terga vortit et cubiculo protinus exterminatur. Nec mora, cum me somnus profundus in imum barathrum repente demergit, ut ne deus quidem Delphicus ipse facile discerneret, duobus nobis iacentibus, quis esset magis mortuus. Sic inanimis et indigens alio custode paene ibi non eram.

Commodum noctis indutias eantis perstrepebat eristatae cohortis. Tandem exasperitus et nimio pavore perterritus cadaver accurro et ammoto lumine revelataque eius facie rimabar singula, quae cuneta convenerant; ecce uxor misella 5 flens cum hesternis testibus introrumpit anxia et statim corpori superruens multumque ac diu deoseculata sub arbitrio luminis recognoscit omnia.

Et conversa Philodespotum requirit actorem, ei praecipit, bono custodi redderet sine mora praemium. Et oblato 10 statim "Summas," inquit, "tibi, iuvenis, gratias agimus et hercules ob sedulum istud ministerium inter ceteros familiares dehinc numerabimus."

Ad haec ego insperato luero diffusus in gaudium et in aureos refulgentes, quos identidem manu mea ventilabam, attonitus "Immo," inquam, "domina, de famulis tuis unum putato, et quotiens operam nostram desiderabis, fidenter impera."

Vix effatum me statim familiares omen nefarium exsecreati raptis eiusque modi telis inseuntur; pugnis ille 20 malas offendere, scapulas alias cubitis inpingere, palmis infestis hie latera suffodere, calcibus insultare, capillos distrahere, vestem discindere. Sic in modum superbi iuvenis Adonei vel musici vatis Pipleii laceratus atque disceptus domo proturbor.

25 Ac dum in proxima platea refovens animum infausti atque improvidi sermonis mei sero reminiscor dignumque me pluribus etiam verberibus fuisse merito consentio, ecce iam ultimum defletus atque conclamatus processerat mortuus rituque patrio, utpote unus de optimatibus, pompa 30 funeris publici ductabatur per forum.

Occurrit atratus quidam maestus in lacrimis genialem canitiem revellens senex et manibus ambabus invadens torum voce contenta quidem, sed adsiduis singultibus impedita “Per fidem vestram,” inquit, “Quirites, per pietatem publicam perempto civi subsistite et extremum facinus in nefariam scelestamque istam feminam severiter vindicate. Haec enim nec ullus alius miserum adulescentem, sororis 5 meae filium, in adulteri gratiam et ob praedam hereditariam extinxit veneno.”

Sic ille senior lamentabiles questus singulis instrepebat. Saevire vulgus interdum et facti verisimilitudine ad criminis credulitatem impelli. Conclamat ignem, re-10 quirunt saxa, parvulos ad exitium mulieris hortantur. Emeditatis ad haec illa fletibus quamque sanctissime poterat adiurans cuncta numina tantum scelus abnuebat.

Ergo igitur senex ille “Veritatis arbitrium in divinam providentiam reponamus. Zatchlas adest Aegyptius pro-15 pheta primarius, qui mecum iam dudum grandi praemio pepigit reducere paulisper ab inferis spiritum corpusque istud postliminio mortis animare,” et cum dicto iuvenem quempiam linteis amiculis iniectum pedesque palmeis baxeis inductum et adusque deraso capite producit in 20 medium.

Huius diu manus deosculatus et ipsa genua contingens “Miserere,” ait, “sacerdos, miserere per caelestia sidera, per inferna numina, per naturalia clementa, per nocturna silentia et adyta Coptica et per incrementa Nilotica et 25 arcana Memphytica et sistra Phariaca. Da brevem solis usuram et in aeternum conditis oculis modicam lucem infunde. Non obnitimus nec terrae rem suam denegamus, sed ad ultiōnis solacium exiguum vitae spatium deprecamur.”

versus incrementa solis augusti tacitus imprecatus venerabilis scaenae facie studia praesentium ad miraculum tantum certatim adrexit.

Immitto me turbae socium et pone ipsum lectulum editorem quendam lapidem insistens cuncta curiosis oculis arbitrabar, iam tumore pectus extolli, iam salubris vena pulsari, iam spiritu corpus impleri: et adsurgit cadaver et profatur adulescens “Quid, oro, me post Lethaea pocula iam Stygiis paludibus innatantem ad momentariae vitae reductis officia? Desine iam, precor, desine ac me in meam quietem permitte.”

Haec audita vox de corpore, sed aliquanto propheta commotior “Quin refers,” ait, “populo singula tuaque mortis illuminas arcana? An non putas devotionibus meis posse 15 Diras invocari, posse tibi membra lassa torqueri?”

Tunc uxor egregia capit praesentem audaciam et mente 20 sacrilega coarguenti marito resistens altercat. Populus aestuat, diversa tendentes, hi pessimam feminam viventem statim cum corpore mariti sepeliendam, alii mendacio cadaveris fidem non habendam.

Sed hanc cunctationem sequens adulescentis sermo distinxit; nam rursus altius ingemesceens “Dabo,” inquit, “dabo vobis intemeratae veritatis documenta; perlucide quod prorsus aliis nemo cognoverit indicabo.” Tunc digito me demonstrans, “Nam cum corporis mei custos hic sagacissimus exortam mihi teneret vigiliam, cantatrices anus exuvias meis 30 imminentes atque ob id reformatae frustra saepius, cum industriam sedulam eius fallere nequivissent, postremum injecta somni nebula eoque in profundam quietem sepulto me nomine ciere non prius desierunt, quam dum hebetes artus et membra frigida pigris conatibus ad artis magicae nituntur obsequia.

“ Hic utpote vivus quidem, sed tantum non sopore mortuus, quod eodem mecum vocabulo nuncupatur, ad suum nomen 5 ignarus exsurgit et in exanimis umbrae modum ultroneus gradiens, quamquam foribus cubiculi diligenter obelusis, per quoddam foramen prosectis naso prius ac mox auribus vicariam pro me lanienam sustinuit. Utque fallaciae reliqua convenirent, ceram in modum prosectorum formatam aurium 10 ei adplicant exāmussim nasoque ipsius similem comparant. Et nunc adsistit miser hic praemium non industriae sed debilitationis consecutus.”

Hic dictis perterritus temptare formam adgredior. Injecta manu nasum prehendo, sequitur; aures pertracto, 15 deruunt. Ac dum directis digitis et detortis nutibus praesentium denotor, dum risus ebullit, inter pedes circumstantium frigido sudore defluens evado. Nec postea debilis ac sic ridiculus lari me patrio reddere potui, sed capillis hinc inde laterum deiectis aurium vulnera celavi, nasi vero 20 dedecus linteolo isto pressim agglutinato decenter obtexi.

THE ROBBER'S TALE

Vix enim Thebas heptapylos accessimus quod est huic disciplinae primarium studium, sedulo fortunas inquirebamus popularis; nec nos denique latuit Chryseros quidam nummularius copiosae pecuniae dominus, qui metu officiorum 5 ac munerum publicorum magnis artibus magnam dissimulabat opulentiam. Denique solus ac solitarius, parva, sed satis munita domuncula contentus, pannosus alioquin ac sordidus, aureos folles incubabat.

Ergo placuit ad hunc primum ferremus aditum, ut con-
10 tempta pugna manus unicae nullo negotio cunctis opibus otiose potiremur. Nec mora, cum noctis initio foribus eius praestolamur, quas neque sublevare neque dimovere ac ne perfringere quidem nobis videbatur, ne valuarum sonus cunctam viciniam nostro suscitaret exitio.

15 Tunc itaque sublimis ille vexillarius noster Lamachus spectatae virtutis suae fiducia, qua clavi immittendae foramen patebat, sensim immissa manu claustrum evellere gestiebat. Sed dudum scilicet omnium bipedum nequissimus Chryseros vigilans et singula rerum sentiens, lenem gradum 20 et obnixum silentium tolerans paulatim adrepit grandique clavo manum ducis nostri repente nisu fortissimo ad ostii tabulam offigit et exitiabili nexu patibulatum relinquens gurgustioli sui tectum ascendit atque inde contentissima voce clamitans rogansque vicinos et unum quemque proprio nomine ciens et salutis communis admonens diffamat incendio repentino domum suam possideri. Sic unus quisque proximi periculi confinio territus suppetiatum decurrunt anxii.

Tunc nos in ancipiti periculo constituti vel opprimendi nostri vel deserendi socii, remedium e re nata validum eo 5 volente comminiscimur.

Antesignani nostri partem qua manus umerum subit, ictu per articulum medium temperato, prorsus abscidimus atque ibi brachio relicto, multis laciniis offulso vulnere, ne stillae sanguinis vestigium proderent, ceterum Lamachum raptim 10 reportamus. Ac dum trepidi religionis urguemur gravi tumultu et instantis periculi metu terremur ad fugam nec vel sequi propere vel remanere tuto potest vir sublimis animi virtutisque praecipuus, multis nos adfatibus multisque precibus querens adhortatur per dexteram Martis, per 15 fidem sacramenti, bonum commilitonem cruciatu simul et captivitate liberaremus. Cur enim manui, quae rapere et iugulare sola posset, fortem latronem supervivere? Sat se beatum, qui manu socia volens occumberet. Cumque nulli nostrum spontale parricidium suadens persuadere posset, 20 manu reliqua sumptum gladium suum diuque deosculatum per medium pectus ictu fortissimo transadigit. Tunc nos magnanimi ducis vigore venerato corpus reliquum veste lintea diligenter convolutum mari celandum commisimus.
Et nunc iacet noster Lamachus elemento toto sepultus. 25

Et ille quidem dignum virtutibus suis vitae terminum posuit. Enim vero Alcimus sollertibus coeptis minus saevum Fortunae nutum non potuit adducere. Qui cum dormientis anus perfracto tuguriolo conseedisset cubiculum superius iamque protinus oblisus faucibus interstinguere eam de-30 buisset, prius maluit rerum singula per latiorem fenestram forinsecus nobis scilicet rapienda dispergere.

Cumque iam cuncta rerum naviter emolitus nec toro quidem aniculae quiescentis parcere vellet eaque lectulo suo devoluta vestem stragulam subductam scilicet iactare similiter destinaret, genibus eius profusa sic nequissima illa 5 deprecatur “Quid, oro, fili, paupertinas pannosasque resculas miserrimae anus donas vicinis divitibus, quorum haec fenestra domum prospicit ?”

Quo sermone callido deceptus astu et vera quae dicta sunt credens Alcimus, verens scilicet ne et ea quae prius miserat, 10 quaeque postea missurus foret, non sociis suis, sed in alienos lares iam certus erroris abiceret, suspendit se fenestra sagaciter perspecturus omnia, praesertim domus attiguae, ut dixerat illa, fortunas arbitraturus. Quod eum strenue quidem, set satis improvide conantem senile illud facinus, 15 quanquam invalido, repentino tamen et inopinato pulsu nutantem ac pendulum et in prospectu alioquin attonitum praeceps inegit.

Qui praeter altitudinem nimiam super quendam etiam vastissimum lapidem propter iacentem decidens perfracta 20 diffusaque crata costarum rivos sanguinis vomens imitus narratisque nobis quae gesta sunt, non diu cruciatus vitam evasit. Queim prioris exemplo sepulturae traditum bonum secutorem Lamacho dedimus.

Tunc orbitatis duplici plaga petiti iamque Thebanis conati- 25 bus abnuentes Plataeas proximam concendimus civitatem.

Ibi famam celebrem super quodam Demochare munus edituro gladiatorium deprehendimus. Nam vir et genere primarius et opibus plurimus et liberalitate praecipuus digno fortunae suaे splendore publicas voluptates instruebat. Quis tantus 30 ingenii, quis facundiae, quis singulas species apparatus multiugi verbis idoneis posset explicare? Gladiatores isti famosae manus, venatores illi probatae pernicitatis, alibi noxii perdita securitate suis epulis bestiarum saginas instruentes; confixilis machinae sublicae, turres structae tabularum nexibus ad instar circumforaneae domus, floridae picturae, decora futurae venationis receptacula. Qui praeterea numerus, quae facies ferarum! Nam praecipuo studio 5 forinsecus etiam advexerat generosa illa damnatorum capitum funera.

Sed praeter ceteram speciosi munera supellecilem totis utecumque patrimonii viribus immanis ursae comparabat numerum copiosum. Nam praeter domesticis 10 venationibus captas, praeter largis emptionibus partas amicorum, etiam donationibus variis certatim oblatas tutela sumptuosa sollicite nutriebat. Nec ille tam clarus tamque splendidus publicae voluptatis apparatus Invidiae noxios effugit oculos. 15

Nam diutina captivitate fatigatae simul et aestiva flagrantia maceratae, pigra etiam sessione languidae, repentina correptae pestilentia paene ad nullum redivere numerum. Passim per plateas plurimas cerneret iacere semivivorum corporum ferina naufragia. Tunc vulgus ignobile, quos 20 inculta pauperies sine delectu ciborum tenuato ventri cogit sordentia supplementa et dapes gratuitas conquerire, passim iacentes epulas accurrunt. Tunc e re nata subtile consilium ego et iste Babulus tale comminiscimur.

Unam, quae ceteris sarcina corporis praevalebat, quasi 25 cibo parandam portamus ad nostrum receptaculum eiusque probe nudatum carnis corium servatis sollerter totis unguibus, ipso etiam bestiae capite adusque confinium cervicis solido relicto, tergus omne rasura studiosa tenuamus et minuto cinere perspersum soli siccandum tradimus. 30

disponimus sacramentum, ut unus e numero nostro, non qui corporis adeo, sed animi robore ceteris autistaret, atque is in primis voluntarius, pelle illa contectus, ursae subiret effigiem domumque Democharis inlatus per opportuna 5 noctis silentia nobis ianuae faciles praestaret aditus. Nec paucos fortissimi collegii sollers species ad munus obeundum adrexerat. Quorum prae ceteris Thrasyleon factionis optione delectus ancipitis machinae subivit aleam.

Iamque habili corio et mollitie tractabili vultu sereno 10 sese recondit. Tunc tenui sarcimine summas oras eius adaequamus et iuncturae rimam, licet gracilem, setae circumfluentis densitate saepimus, ad ipsum confinium gulæ, qua cervix bestiae fuerat execta, Thrasyleonis caput subire cogimus parvisque respiratui circa nares et oculos datis 15 foraminibus fortissimum socium nostrum prorsus bestiam factum immittimus caveae modico praestinatae pretio, quam constanti vigore festinus inrepsit ipse.

Ad hunc modum prioribus inchoatis sic ad reliqua fallaciae pergimus. Seiscitati nomen cuiusdam Nicanoris, qui 20 genere Thracio proditus ius amicitiae summum cum illo Demochare colebat, litteras adfingimus, ut venationis suaे primitias bonus amicus videretur ornando muneri dedicasse. Iamque provecta vespera abusi praesidio tenebrarum Thrasyleonis caveam Demochari cum litteris illis adulterinis 25 offerimus; qui miratus bestiae magnitudinem suique contubernalis opportuna liberalitate laetus iubet nobis protinus gaudii sui gerulis decem aureos, ut ipse habebat, e suis loculis adnumerari.

Tunc, ut novitas consuevit ad repentinæ visiones animos 30 hominum pellere, multi numero mirabundi bestiam confluebant, quorum satis callenter curiosos aspectus Thrasyleon noster impetu minaci frequenter inhibebat; consonaque civium voce satis felix ac beatus Demochares ille saepe celebratus, quod post tantam cladem ferarum novo proventu quoquo modo fortunae resisteret, iubet novalibus suis confestim bestiam summa cum diligentia deportari. Sed suscipiens ego, “Caveas,” inquam, “domine, fraglantia solis et 5 itineris spatio fatigatam coetui multarum et, ut audio, non recte valentium committere ferarum. Quin potius domus tuae patulum ac perflabilem locum, immo et lacu aliquo conterminum refrigerantemque prospicis? An ignoras hoc genus bestiae lucos consitos et specus roridos et fontes 10 amoenos semper incubare?”

Talibus monitis Demochares perterritus numerumque perditorum secum recensens non difficulter adsensus, ut ex arbitrio nostro caveam locaremus, facile permisit. “Sed et nos,” inquam, “ipsi parati sumus hic ibidem pro cavae 15 ista excubare noctes, ut aestus et vexationis incommodo bestiae fatigatae et eibum tempestiuum et potum solitum accuratius offeramus.”

“Nihil indigemus labore isto vestro,” respondit ille, “iam paene tota familia per diutinam consuetudinem nu-20 triendis ursis exercitata est.”

Post haec valefacto discessimus et portam civitatis egressi monumentum quoddam conspicamur procul a via remoto et abdito loco positum. Ibi capulos carie et vetustate semitectos, quis inhabitabant pulverei et iam cinerosi 25 mortui, passim ad futurae praedae receptacula reseramus et ex disciplina sectae servato noctis inlunio tempore, quo somnus obvius impetu primo corda mortalium validius invadit ac premit, cohortem nostram gladiis armatam ante ipsas fores Democharis velut expilationis 30 vadimonium sistimus.

Nec setius Thrasyleon examussim capto noctis latrocinali

momento prorepit cavea statimque custodes, qui propter sopiti quiescebant, omnes ad unum, mox etiam ianitorem ipsum gladio conficit clavique subtracta fores ianuae repandit nobisque prompte convolantibus et domus alveo 5 receptis demonstrat horreum, ubi vespera sagaciter argentum copiosum recondi viderat. Quo protinus perfracto confertae manus violentia, iubeo singulos commilitonum asportare quantum quisque poterat auri vel argenti, et in illis aedibus fidelissimorum mortuorum occultare propere 10 rursumque concito gradu recurrentis sarcinas iterare; quod enim ex usu foret omnium, me solum resistentem pro domus limine cuncta rerum exploraturum sollicite, dum redirent. Nam et facies ursae mediis aedibus discurrentis ad proterrendos, si qui de familia forte evigilassent, videbatur op- 15 portuna. Quis enim, quamvis fortis et intrepidus, immani forma tantae bestiae noctu praesertim visitata non se ad fugam statim concitaret, non obdito cellae pessulo pavens et trepidus sese cohiberet?

His omnibus salubri consilio recte dispositis occurrit 20 scaevus eventus. Namque dum reduces socios nostros suspensus opperior, quidam servulum strepitu scilicet vel divinitus inquietus proserpit leniter visaque bestia, quae libere discurrens totis aedibus commeabat, premens obnixum silentium vestigium suum replicat et utcumque cunctis in 25 domo visa pronuntiat.

Nec mora, cum numerosae familiae frequentia domus tota completur. Taedis, lucernis, cereis, sebaciis et ceteris nocturni luminis instrumentis clarescunt tenebrae. Nec inermis quisquam de tanta copia processit, sed singuli 30 fustibus, lanceis, destrictis denique gladiis armati muniunt aditus. Nee secus canes etiam venaticos auritos illos et horricomes ad comprimentam bestiam cohortantur. Tunc ego sensim gliscente adhuc illo tumultu retrogradi fuga domo facesso, sed plane Thrasyleonem mire canibus repugnantem, latens pone ianuam ipse, prospicio. Quamquam enim vitae metas ultimas obiret, non tamen sui nostrique vel pristinae virtutis oblitus iam faucibus ipsis hiantis 5 Cerberi reluctabat.

Scaenam denique, quam sponte sumpserat, cum anima retinens nunc fugiens, nunc resistens variis corporis sui schemis ac motibus tandem domo prolapsus est. Nec tamen, quamvis publica potitus libertate, salutem fuga 10 quaerere potuit. Quippe cuncti canes de proximo angportu satis feri satisque copiosi venaticis illis, qui commodum domo similiter insequentes processerant, se obmiscent agminatim. Miserum funestumque spectamen aspexi, Thrasyleonem nostrum catervis canum saevientium cinctum 15 atque obsessum multisque numero morsibus laniatum.

Denique tanti doloris impatiens populi circumfluentis turbelis immisceor et in quo solo poteram celatum auxilium bono ferre commilitoni, sic indaginis principes dehortabar: “O grande,” inquam, “et extremum flagitium, 20 magnam et vere pretiosam perdimus bestiam.”

Nec tamen nostri sermonis artes infeliciissimo profuerunt iuveni; quippe quidam procurrens e domo procerus et validus incunctanter lanceam mediis iniecit ursae praecordiis nec secus alias et ecce plurimi, iam timore discusso, 25 certatim gladios etiam de proximo congerunt.

Enimvero Thrasyleon egregium decus nostraе factionis tandem immortalitate digno illo spiritu expugnato magis quam patientia neque clamore ac ne ululatu quidem fidem sacramenti prodidit, sed iam morsibus laceratus ferroque 30 laniatus obnixo mugitu et ferino fremitu praesentem easum generoso vigore tolerans gloriam sibi reservavit, vitam fato reditit. Tanto tamen torrore tantaque formidine coetum illum turbaverat, ut usque diluculum, immo et in multum diem nemo quisquam fuerit ausus, quamvis iacentem, bestiam vel digito contingere, nisi tandem pigre ac timide 5 quidam lanius paulo fidentior, utero bestiae resecto, ursae magnificum despoliavit latronem.

Sic etiam Thrasyleon nobis perivit, sed a gloria non perivit. Confestim itaque constrictis sarcinis illis, quas nobis servaverant fideles mortui, Plataeae terminos concito 10 gradu deserentes, istud apud nostros animos identidem reputabamus, merito nullam fidem in vita nostra repperiri, quod ad manis iam et mortuos odio perfidiae nostrae demigrarit. Sic onere vecturae simul et asperitate viae toti fatigati, tribus comitum desideratis, istas quas videtis 15 praedas adveximus.

THE TRAGEDY OF TLEPOLEMUS AND CHARITE

Equisones opilionesque, etiam busequae, fuit Charite nobis, quae misella et quidem casu gravissimo nec vero incomitata Manis adivit. Sed ut cuncta noritis, referam vobis a capite, quae gesta sunt quaeque possent merito doctiores, quibus stilos fortuna subministrat, in historiae specimen chartis 5 involvere.

Erat in proxima civitate iuvenis natalibus praenobilis, quo clarus eo pecuniae fuit satis locuples, sed luxuriae popinalis scortisque et diurnis potationibus exercitatus atque ob id factionibus latronum male sociatus nec non 10 etiam manus infectus humano cruento, Thrasyllus nomine. Idque sic erat et fama dicebat.

Hic, cum primum Charite nubendo maturuisset, inter praecipuos procos summo studio petitionis eius munus obierat et quanquam ceteris omnibus id genus viris anti-15 staret eximiisque muneribus parentum invitaret iudicium, morum tamen improbatus repulsae contumelia fuerat aspersus. Ac dum erilis puella in boni Tlepolemi manum venerat, firmiter deorsus delapsum nutriendis amorem et denegati thalami permiscens indignationem, cruento facinori 20 quaerebat accessum.

Nanetus denique praesentiae suae tempestivam occasionem, seeleri quod diu cogitarat accingitur. Ac die quo praedonum infestis mueronibus puella fuerat astu virtutibus-que sponsi sui liberata, turbae gratulantium exultans insigniter permiscuit sese salutique praesenti ac futurae suboli novorum maritorum gaudibundus ad honorem splendidae prosapiae inter praecipuos hospites domum nostram 5 receptus, occultato consilio sceleris, amici fidelissimi personam mentiebatur.

Iamque sermonibus assiduis et conversatione frequenti, nonnunquam etiam cena poculoque communi carior cariorque factus in profundam ruinam Cupidinis sese paulatim nescius 10 praecipitaverat. Quidni, cum flamma saevi amoris parva quidem primo vapore delectet, sed fomentis consuetudinibus exaestuans inmodicis ardoribus totos amburat homines.

Diu denique deliberaverat secum Thrasyllus, quod nec clandestinis colloquiis opportunum repperiret locum et 15 adulterinae Veneris magis magisque praeclusos aditus copia custodientium cerneret novaeque atque gliscentis affectionis firmissimum vinculum non posse dissociari perspiceret et puellae, si vellet, quanquam velle non posset, furatrinæ coniugalis incommodaret rudimentum; et tamen ad hoc 20 ipsum, quod non potest, contentiosa pernicie, quasi posset, impellitur. Quod nunc arduum factu putatur, amore per dies roborato facile videtur effectu. Spectate denique, sed, oro, sollicitis animis intendite, quorsum furiosae libidinis proruperint impetus.

25 Die quadam venatum Tlepolemus assumpto Thrasyllo petebat indagaturus feras, si quid tamen in capreis feritatis est; nec enim Charite maritum suum quaerere patiebatur bestias armatas dente vel cornu.

Iamque apud frondosum tumulum ramorumque densis 30 tegminibus umbrosum prospectu vestigatorum obseptis capreis canes venationis indagini generosae, mandato cubili residentes invaderent bestias, immittuntur statimque sollertis disciplinae memores partitae totos praecingunt aditus tacitaque prius servata mussitatione, signo sibi repentino reddito, latratibus fervidis dissonisque miscent omnia.

Nec ulla caprea nec pavens dannula nec prae ceteris feris mitior cerva, sed aper immanis atque invisitatus ex- 5 surgit toris callosae cutis obesus, pilis inhorrentibus corio squalidus, setis insurgentibus spinae hispidus, dentibus attritu sonaci spumeus, oculis aspectu minaci flammeus, impetu saevo frementis oris totus fulmineus. Et primum quidem canum procaciores, quae comminus contulerant 10 vestigium, genis hac illae iactatis consecutas interficit, dein calcata retiola, qua primos impetus reduxerat, transabiit.

Et nos quidem cuncti pavore deterriti et alioquin innoxii venationibus consueti, tunc etiam inermes atque inmuniti tegumentis frondis vel arboribus latenter abscondimus. 15 Thrasyllus vero nactus fraudium opportunum decipulum sic Tlepolemum captiose compellat: "Quid stupore confusi vel etiam cassa formidine similes humilitati servorum istorum vel in modum pavoris feminei deiecti tam opimam praedam mediis manibus amittimus? Quin equos inscendimus? 20 Quin ocios indipiscimur? En cape venabulum et ego sumo lanceam" nec tantillum morati protinus insiliunt equos ex summo studio bestiam insequentes. Nec tamen illa genuini vigoris oblita retorquet impetum et incendio feritatis ardescens dente compulso, quem primum insiliat, cuncta- 25 bunda rimatur.

Sed prior Tlepolemus iaculum, quod gerebat, insuper dorsum bestiae contorsit. At Thrasyllus ferae quidem peperecit, sed equi, quo vehebatur Tlepolemus, postremos poplites lancea feriens amputat. Quadrupes reccidens, qua sanguis 30 effluxerat, toto tergo supinatus invitus dominum suum devolvit ad terram.

Nec diu, sed eum furens aper invadit iacentem ac primo lacinias eius, mox ipsum resurgentem multo dente laniavit. Nec coepti nefarii bonum piguit amicum vel suae saevitiae litatum saltem tanto periculo cernens potuit expleri, sed 5 percito atque plagosa crura contegenti suumque auxilium miseriter roganti per femus dexterum dimisit lanceam tanto ille quidem fidentius, quanto crederet ferri vulnera similia futura prosectu dentium. Nec non tamen ipsam quoque bestiam facili manu transadigit.

10 Ad hunc modum definito iuvene, exciti latibulo suo quisque familia maesta concurrimus. At ille quamquam perfecto voto, prostrato inimico laetus ageret, vultu tamen gaudium tegit et frontem adseverat et dolorem simulat et cadaver, quod ipse fecerat, avide circumplexus omnia quidem lugentium officia sollerter adfinxit, sed solae lacrimae procedere noluerunt. Sie ad nostri simultudinem, qui vere lamentabamur, conformatus manus suae culpam bestiae dabat.

Necdum satis scelere transaeto, fama dilabitur et cursus primos ad domum Tlepolemi detorquet et aures infelieis 20 nuptiae pereutit. Quae quidem simul pereepit tale nuntium, quale non audiet aliud, amens et vecordia percita cursuque bacchata furibundo per plateas populosas et arva rurestria fertur insana voce casum mariti quiritanus. Confluunt eivium maestae catervae, secuntur obvii dolore sociato, civitas euneta 25 vacuatur studio visionis.

Et ecce mariti cadaver accurrit labantique spiritu totam se super corpus effudit ac paenissime ibidem, quam devoverat ei reddidit animam. Sed aegre manibus erepta suorum invita remansit in vita, funus vero toto feralem pompam 30 prosequente populo deducitur ad sepulturam.

Sed Thrasyllus nimium nimius clamare, plangere et, quas in primo maerore lacrimas non habebat, iam scilicet crescente gaudio reddere et multis caritatis nominibus Veritatem ipsam fallere. Illum amicum, coactaneum, contubernalem, fratrem denique addito nomine lugubri ciere, nec non interdum manus Charites a pulsandis uberibus amovere, luctum sedare, heiulatum coercere, verbis palpantibus stimulum doloris obtundere, variis exemplis multivagi casus solacia nectere, cunctis tamen mentitiae pietatis officiis studium contrectandae mulieris adhibere odiosumque amorem suum perperam delectando nutrire.

Sed officiis inferialibus statim exactis puella protinus fes-tinat ad maritum suum demeare cunctasque prorsus pertemptat vias, certe illam lenem otiosamque nec telis ullis indigentem, sed placidae quieti consimilem; inedia denique misera et incuria squalida, tenebris imis abscondita, iam cum luce transegerat. 15

Sed Thrasyllus instantia pervicaci partim per semet ipsum, partim per ceteros familiares ac necessarios, ipsos denique puellae parentes extorquet tandem, iam lurore et inluvie paene conlapsa membra lavaero, cibo denique confoveret.
At illa, parentum suorum alioquin reverens, invita quidem, verum religiosae necessitati subcumbens, vultu non quidem hilario, verum paulo sereniore obiens, ut iubebatur, viventium munia, prorsus in pectore, immo vero penitus in medullis luctu ac maerore carpebat animum; et dies totos totasque noctes insumebat luctuoso desiderio et imagines defuneti, quas ad habitum dei Liberi formaverat, adfixo servitio divinis percolens honoribus ipso se solacio cruciabat. Verum Thrasyllus, praeceps alioquin et de ipso nomine temerarius, priusquam dolorem lacrimae satiarent et percitae mentis resideret furor et in sese nimietatis senio lassesceret luctus, adhuc 30 fletem maritum, adhuc vestes lacerantem, adhuc capillos distrahentem non dubitavit de nuptiis convenire et impu-dentiae labe tacita pectoris sui secreta fraudesque ineffabiles detegere. Sed Charite vocem nefandam et horruit et detestata est et velut gravi tonitru procellaque sideris vel etiam ipso diali fulmine percussa corruit corpus et obnubilavit 5 animam.

Sed intervallo revalescente paulatim spiritu, ferinos mugitus iterans et iam scaenam pessimi Thrasylli perspiciens, ad limam consili desiderium petitoris distulit. Tunc inter moras umbra illa misere trucidati Tlepolemi sanie cruentam
10 et pallore deformem attollens faciem quietem pudicam interpellat uxoris: “ Mi coniux, quod tibi prorsus ab alio dici non licebit, etsi pectori tuo iam permarcat nostri memoria vel acerbae mortis meae casus foedus caritatis intercedit,— quovis alio felicius maritare, modo ne in Thrasylli manum
15 sacrilegam convenias neve sermonem conferas nec mensam accumbas nec toro adquiescas. Fuge mei percussoris cruentam dexteram. Noli parricidio nuptias auspicari. Vulnera illa, quorum sanguinem tuae lacrimae proluerunt, non sunt tota dentium vulnera; lancea mali Thrasylli me tibi fecit 20 alienum ” et addidit cetera omnemque scaenam sceleris illuminavit.

At illa, ut primum maesta quieverat toro faciem impressa, etiamnunc dormiens, lacrimis emanantibus genas cohumidat et velut quoddam tormentum inopinatum patiens luctu 25 redintegrato prolixum heiulat discissaque interula decora brachia saevientibus palmulis converberat. Nec tamen cum quoquam participatis nocturnis imaginibus, sed indicio facinoris prorsus dissimulato et nequissimum percussorem punire et aerumnabili vitae sese subtrahere tacita decernit.
30 Ecce rursus improvidae voluptatis detestabilis petitor aures obseratas de nuptiis obtundens aderat. Sed illa clementer aspernata sermonem Thrasylli astuque miro personata instanter garrenti summissequē deprecanti "Adhue," inquit, "tui fratri meique carissimi mariti facies pulchra illa in meis deversatur oculis, adhuc odor cinnameus ambrosei corporis per nares meas percurrit, adhuc formonsus Tlepolemus in meo vivit pectore. Boni ergo et optimi consules, 5 si luctui legitimo miserrimae feminae necessarium concesseris tempus, quoad residuis mensibus spatium reliquum compleatur anni, quae res cum meum pudorem, tum etiam tuum salutare commodum respicit, ne forte immaturitate nuptiarum indignatione iusta manes acerbos mariti ad 10 exitium salutis tuae suscitemus."

Nec isto sermone Thrasyllus sobriefactus vel saltem tempestiva pollicitatione recreatus identidem pergit lingua aestuanti susurros improbos inurguere, quoad simulanter revicta Charite suscipit: "Istud equidem certe magnopere 15 deprecanti concedas necesse est mihi, Thrasylle, ut interdum taciti clandestinos coitus obeamus nec quisquam persentiscat familiarium quoad dies reliquos metiatur annus."

Promissioni fallaciosae mulieris oppressus subcubuit Thrasyllus et prolixe consentit noctemque et operatas exoptat 20 ultro tenebras uno potiundi studio postponens omnia. "Sed heus tu," inquit Charite, "quam probe veste contectus omnique comite viduatus prima vigilia tacitus fores meas accedas unoque sibilo contentus nutricem istam meam opperiare, quae claustris adhaerens excubabit adventui tuo. 25 Nec setius patefactis aedibus acceptum te nullo lumine concio ad meum perducet cubiculum."

Placuit Thrasyllo scaena feralium nuptiarum. Nec sequius aliquid suspicatus, sed expectatione turbidus de diei tantum spatio et vesperae mora querebatur. Sed ubi sol 30 tandem nocti decessit, ex imperio Charites adornatus et nutritis captiosa vigilia deceptus inrepit cubiculum pronus spei.

Tunc anus de iussu dominae blandiens ei furtim de promptis calicibus et oenophoro, quod inmixtum vino soporiferum gerebat venenum, crebris potionibus avide ac secure haurientem mentita dominae tarditatem, quasi parentem 5. adsideret aegrotum, facile sepelivit ad somnum. Iamque eo ad omnes iniurias exposito ac supinato, introvocata Charite masculis animis impetuque diro fremens invadit ac superstis sicarium.

“En,” inquit, “fidus coniugis mei comes, en venator 10 egregius, en carus maritus. Haec est illa dextera, quae meum sanguinem fudit, hoc pectus, quod fraudulentas ambages in meum concinnavit exitium, oculi isti, quibus male placui, qui quodam modo futuras tenebras auspicantes venientes poenas antecedunt. Quiesce securus, beate somniare. Non ego te gladio, non ferro petam; absit, ut simili mortis genere cum marito meo coaequeris. Vivo tibi morientur oculi nec quicquam videbis nisi dormiens. Faxo, feliciorem necem inimici tui quam vitam tuam sentias. Lumen certe non videbis, manu comitis indigebis, Chariten 20 non tenebis, nuptias non frueris, nec mortis quiete recreaberis nec vitae voluptate laetaberis, sed incertum simulacrum errabis inter Orcum et solem et diu quaeres dexteram, quae tuas expugnavit pupulas, quodque est in aerumna miserrium, nescies de quo queraris. At ego sepulchro mei 25 Tlepolemi tuo luminum cruore libabo et sanctis manibus eius istis oculis parentabo. Sed quid mora temporis dignum cruciatum luceraris et meos forsitan tibi pestiferos imaginaris amplexus? Relictis somnolentis tenebris ad aliam poenalem evigila caliginem. Attolle vacuam faciem, vindictam re-30 cognosce, infortunium intellege, aerumnas computa. Sic pudicae mulieri tui placuerunt oculi, sic faces nuptiales tuos illuminarunt thalamos. Ultrices habebis pronubas et orbitatem comitem et perpetuae conscientiae stimulum."

Ad hunc modum vaticinata mulier aeu crinali capite depromta Thrasylli convulnarat tota lumina eumque prorsus exoculatum relinquens, dum dolore nescio erupulam cum 5 somno discutit, arrepto nudo gladio, quo se Tlepolemus solebat incingere, per medianam civitatem cursu furioso propriit se et procul dubio nescio quod scelus gestiens recta monumentum mariti contendit. At nos et omnis populus, nudatis totis aedibus, studiose consequimur hortati mutuo 10 ferrum vesanis extorquere manibus.

Sed Charite capulum Tlepolemi propter assistens gladioque fulgenti singulos abigens, ubi fletus uberes et lamentationes varias cunctorum intuetur, "Abicite," inquit, "importunas lacrimas, abicite luctum meis virtutibus alienum. Vindi-15 cavi in mei mariti cruentum peremptorem, punita sum funestum mearum nuptiarum praedonem. Iam tempus est ut isto gladio deorsus ad meum Tlepolemum viam quaeram."

Et enarratis ordine singulis, quae sibi per somnum nuntiaverat maritus quoque astu Thrasyllo inductum petisset, 20 ferro sub papillam dexteram transadacto corruit et in suo sibi pervolutata sanguine postremo balbuttiens incerto sermone efflavit animam virilem. Tunc propere familiares miserae Charites accuratissime corpus ablutum unita sepultura ibidem marito perpetuam coniungem reddidere. 25

Thrasyllus vero cognitis omnibus, nequiens idoneum exitum praesenti cladi reddere certusque tanto facinori nec gladium sufficere, sponte delatus ibidem ad sepulchrum, "Ultronea vobis, infesti Manes, en adest victima" saepe clamitans, valvis super sese diligenter obseratis inedia 30 statuit elidere sua sententia damnatum spiritum.

EATEN ALIVE

Servus quidam, cui cunctam familiae tutelam dominus permiserat suus quique possessionem maximam illam, in quam deverteramus, villicabat, habens ex eodem famulitio conservam coniugam, liberae cuiusdam extrariaeque mulieris 5 flagrabat cupidine. Quo dolore paecilatus uxor eius insticta cunctas mariti rationes et quicquid horreo reconditum continebatur admoto combussit igne.

Nec tali damno tori sui contumeliam vindicasse contenta, iam contra sua saeviens viscera laqueum sibi nectit infantulumque, quem de eodem marito iam dudum susceperebat, eodem funiculo nectit seque per altissimum puteum adpendicem parvulum trahens praecipitat. Quam mortem dominus eorum aegerrime sustinens adreptum servulum, qui causam tanti seeleris uxori suae praestiterat, nudum ac 15 totum melle perlitum firmiter alligavit arbori ficolneae, cuius in ipso carioso stipite inhabitantium formicarum nidificia borriebant et ultiro citro comineabant multiuuga scaterrigine.

Quae simul dulcem ac mellitum corporis nidorem personis sentiscunt, parvis quidem, sed numerosis et continuis morsiunculis penitus inhaerentes, per longi temporis cruciatum ita, carnibus atque ipsis visceribus adesis, homine consumo membra nudarunt, ut ossa tantum viduata pulpis nitore nimio candentia funestae cohaererent arbori.

THE LOST SLIPPERS

Barbarus iste cum necessariam profectionem pararet pudicitiamque carae coniugis conservare summa diligentia cuperet, servulum suum Myrmecem fidelitate praecipua cognitum secreto commonet suaequa dominae custodelam omnem permittit, carcerem et perpetua vincula, mortem 5 denique violentam defamem comminatus, si quisquam hominum vel in transitu digito tenus eam contigisset, idque deierans etiam confirmat per omnia divina numina.

Ergo igitur summo pavore percussum Myrmecem acer-rimum relinquens uxori secutorem, securam dirigit profec- 10 tionem. Tunc obstinato animo vehementer anxius Myrmex nec usquam dominam suam progredi sinebat et lanificio domestico destictam inseparabilis asidebat ac tantum necessario vespertini lavacri progressu adfixus atque conglu-tinatus extremas manu prendens lacinias, mira sagacitate 15 commissae provinciae fidem tuebatur.

Sed ardentem Philesitheri vigilantiam matronae nobilis pulchritudo latere non potuit. Atque hac ipsa potissimum famosa castitate et insignis tutelae nimietate instinctus atque inflammatus, quidvis facere, quidvis pati paratus, ad 20 expugnandam tenacem domus disciplinam totis accingitur viribus certusque fragilitatis humanae fidei et quod pecuniae cunctae sint difficultates perviae auroque soleant adamanta-tinae etiam perfringi fores, opportune nanctus Myrmecis solitatem, ei amorem suum aperit et supplex eum medellam 25

erueiatui deprecatur; nam sibi statutam deeret amque mortem proximare, ni maturius cupito potiatur; nec eum tamen quicquam in re facili formidare debere, quippe cum vespera solus fide tenebrarum contextus atque absconditus

5 introrepere et intra momentum temporis remeare posset.

His ethuiusce modi suadelis validum addebat cuneum, qui rigentem prorsus servi tenacitatem violenter diffinderet; porrecta enim manu sua demonstrat ei novitate nimia candentes solidos aureos, quorum viginti quidem puellae destinatio asset, ipsi vero decem libenter offerret. Exhorruit Myrmex inauditum facinus et oclusis auribus effugit protinus. Nec auri tamen splendor flammeus oculos ipsius exire potuit, sed quam procul semotus et domum celeri gradu pervectus, videbat tamen decora illa monetae lumina et 15 opulentam praedam iam tenebat animo miroque mentis salo et cogitationum dissensione misellus in diversas sententias carpebatur ac distrahebatur; illic fides, hic lucrum, illie cruciatus, hic voluptas. Ad postremum tamen formidinem mortis vicit aurum.

20 Nec saltem spatio cupidio formonsae pecuniae leniebatur, sed nocturnas etiam curas invaserat pestilens avarita, ut, quamvis erilis eum comminatio domi cohiberet, aurum tamen foras evocaret. Tunc, devorato pudore et dimota cunctatione, sic ad aures dominae mandatum perfert. Nec a 25 genuina levitate descivit mulier, sed execrando metallo pudicitiam suam protinus auctorata est.

Ita gaudio perfusus ad suae fidei praecipitum properat Myrmex, non modo capere, verum saltem contingere, quam exitio suo viderat, pecuniam cupiens, et magnis suis laboribus perfectum desiderium Philesithero laetitia percitus munitat statimque destinatum praemium reposcit, et tenet nummos aureos manus Myrmecis, quae nec aercos norat.

Iamque nocte promota solum perdueit ad domum probeque capite coniectum amatorem strenuum infert adusque dominae cubiculum.

Contra omnium opinionem captata noctis opportunitate improvisus maritus adsistit suae domus ianuam. Iam 5 pulsat, iam clamat, iam saxo fores verberat et ipsa tarditate magis magisque suspectus dira comminatur Myrmeci supplicia.

At ille repentina malo perturbatus et misera trepidatione ad inopiam consilii deductus, quod solum poterat, nocturnas 10 tenebras sibi causabatur obsistere, quin clavem curiose absconditam repperiret. Interdum Philesitherus cognito strepitu raptim tunicas injectus, sed plane p[re]a turbatione pedibus intectis procurrit cubiculo. Tunc Myrmex tandem clave pessulis subiecta repandit fores et recipit etiam tunc 15 fidem deum boantem dominum eoque propere cubiculum petente clandestino transuersu dimittit Philesitherum. Quo iam pro limine liberato securus sui clausa domo rursum se reddidit quieti.

Sed dum prima luce Barbarus procedit cubiculo, videt sub 20 lectulo soleas incognitas, quibus inductus Philesitherus inrepserat suspectisque e re nata quae gesta sunt, non uxori, non ulli familiarium cordolio patefacto, sublatis iis et in sinum furtim absconditis, iusso tautum Myrmeces per servos vineto forum versus adtrahi, tacitos secum mugitus 25 iterans rapidum dirigit gressum, certus solearum indicio vestigium adulteri posse se perfacile indipisci.

Sed ecce per plateam dum Barbarus vultu turgido subductisque superciliis incedit iratus ac pone eum Myrmex vinculis obrutus, non quidem coram noxae prehensus, con- 30 scientia tamen pessima permixtus lacrimis uberibus ac postremis lamentationibus inefficacem commovet misera-tionem, opportune Philesitherus occurrens, quanquam diverso quodam negotio destinatus, repentina tamen facie permotus, non enim deterritus, recolens festinationis suaे delictum ac cetera consequenter suspicatus sagaciter ex-5 templo sumpta familiari constantia, dimotis servulis invadit cum summo clamore Myrmecem pugnisque malas eius clementer obtundens, "At te," inquit, "nequissimum et periurum caput, dominus iste tuus et cuncta caeli numina, quae deierando temere devorasti, pessimum pessime per-10 duint, qui de balneis soleas hesterna die mihi furatus es, dignus, qui et ista vincula conteras et insuper carceris etiam tenebras perferas."

Hac opportuna fallacia vigorati invenis inductus, immo sublatus et ad credulitatem delapsus Barbarus, postliminio 15 domum regressus, vocato Myrmece, soleas illas offerens et ignovit ex animo et uti domino redderet, cui surripuerat, suasit.

THE FULLER'S WIFE

Contubernalis mei fullonis uxor, alioquin servati pudoris ut videbatur, femina, quae semper secundo rumore gloria larem mariti pudice gubernabat, occulta libidine prorumpit in adulterum quempiam.

Ergo nostra repente turbata praesentia, subitario ducta 5 consilio, eundem illum subiectum contegit viminea cavea, quae fustum flexu tereti in rectum aggerata cumulum lacinias circumdatas suffusa candido fumo sulphuris inalbabat, eoque iam ut sibi videbatur, tutissime celato mensam nobiscum secura participat. Interdum acerrimo gravique 10 odore sulphuris iuvenis inescatus atque obnubilatus intercluso spiritu diffuebat, utque est ingenium vivacis metalli, crebras ei sternutationes commovebat. Atque ut primum ex regione mulieris pone tergum eius maritus acceperat sonum sternutationis — quod enim putaret ab ea profectum 15 — solito sermone salutem ei fuerat imprecatus et iterato rursum et frequentato saepius, donec rei nimietate commotus quod res erat tandem suspicatur.

Et impulsa mensa protenus remotaque cavea producit hominem crebros anhelitus aegre reflantem inflammatusque 20 indignatione contumeliae, gladium flagitans, iugulare moriturum gestiebat, ni respecto communi periculo vix eum ab impetu furioso cohibussem adseverans brevi absque noxa nostri suapte inimicum eius violentia sulphuris peritum.

Nec suadela mea, sed ipsius rei necessitate lenitus, quippe iam semivivum, illum in proximum deportat angiportum.
Tum uxorem eius tacite suasi ac denique persuasi secederet paululum atque ultra limen tabernae ad quamquam tantisper 5 deverteret familiarem sibi mulierem, quoad spatio fervens mariti sedaretur animus, qui tanto calore tantaque rabie percussus non erat dubius aliquid etiam de se suaque coniuge tristius profecto cogitare. Talium contubernalis epularum taedio fugatus larem reveni meum.

IX

THE THREE BROTHERS

Namque is adultis iam tribus liberis doctrina instructis et verecundia praeditis vivebat gloriosus. His adulescentibus erat cum quodam paupere modicae casulae domino vetus familiaritas. At enim casulae parvulae conterminos magnos et beatos agros possidebat vicinus potens et dives 5 et iuvenis, sed prosapiae maiorum gloria male utens pollensque factionibus et cuncta facile faciens in civitate; hic hostili modo vicini tenuis incursabat pauperiem pecua trucidando, boves abigendo, fruges adhuc immaturas obterendo.

Iamque tota frugalitate spoliatum ipsis etiam glebulis ex-10 terminare gestiebat finiumque inani commota quaestione terram totam sibi vindicabat. Tunc agrestis, verecundus alioquin, avaritia divitis iam spoliatus, ut suo saltem sepulchro paternum retineret solum, amicos plurimos ad demonstrationem finium trepidans eximie corrogarat. Aderant 15 inter alios tres illi fratres cladibus amici quantulum quantum ferentes auxilium.

Nec tamen ille vesanus tantillum praesentia multorum civium territus vel etiam confusus, licet non rapinis, saltem verbis temperare voluit, sed illis clementer expostulantibus 20 fervidosque eius mores blanditiis permulcentibus repente suam suorumque carorum salutem quam sanctissime adiurans adseverat parvi se pendere tot mediatorum praesentiam, denique vicinum illum auriculis per suos servulos sublatum de casula longissime statimque proiectum iri. 25 Quo dicto insignis indignatio totos audientium pertemptavit animos.

Tunc unus e tribus fratribus incunctanter et paulo liberius respondit frustra eum suis opibus confisum tyranica superbia comminari, cum alioquin pauperes etiam liberali legum praesidio de insolentia locupletum consueverint 5 vindicari. Quod oleum flammae, quod sulphur incendio, quod flagellum Furiae, hoc et iste sermo truculentiae hominis nutrimento fuit.

Iamque ad extremam insaniam vecors, suspendium sese et totis illis et ipsis legibus mandare proclamans, canes pastoricos villaticos feros atque immanes, adsuetos abiecta per agros esitare cadavera, praeterea etiam transeuntium viatorum passivis morsibus alumnatos, laxari atque in eorum exitium inhortatos immitti praecepit. Qui simul signo solito pastorum incensi atque inflammati sunt, furiosa rabie 15 conciti et latratibus etiam absonis horribiles eunt in homines eosque variis adgressi vulneribus distrahunt ac lacerant nec fugientibus saltem compercunt, sed eo magis irritatiores secuntur.

Tunc inter confertam trepidae multitudinis stragem e 20 tribus iunior offenso lapide atque obtunsis digitis terrae prosternitur saevisque illis et ferocissimis canibus instruit nefariam dapem; protenus enim naneti praedam iacentem miserum illum adolescentem frustatim diserpunt. Atque ut eius letalem ululatum cognovere ceteri fratres, accurvunt 25 maestri suppetias obvolutisque lacinia laevis manibus lapidum crebris iactibus propugnare fratri atque abigere canes adgrediuntur.

Nec tamen eorum ferociam vel conterrere vel expugnare potuere, quippe cum miserrimus adulescens ultima voce 30 prolata, vindicarent de pollutissimo divite mortem fratris iunioris, illico laniatus interisset. Tunc reliqui fratres non tam hercules desperata quam ultiro neglecta sua salute con-tendunt ad divitem atque ardentibus animis impetuque vesano lapidibus crebris in eum velitantur. At ille cruentus et multis ante flagitiis similibus exercitatus percussor injecta lancea duorum alterum per pectus medium transadegit. Nec tamen peremptus ac prorsum exanimatus 5 adulescens ille terrae concidit; nam telum transvectum atque ex maxima parte pone tergum elapsum soloque nisu violentia defixum rigore librato suspenderat corpus. Sed et quidam de servulis procerus et validus sicario illi ferens auxilium lapide contorto tertii illius iuvenis dexterum 10 brachium longo iactu petierat, sed impetu casso per extremos digitos transcurrens lapis contra omnium opinionem deciderat innoxius.

Non nullam tamen sagacissimo iuveni proventus humanior vindictae speculam subministravit. Ficta namque 15 manus suae debilitate sic crudelissimum iuvenem compellat: "Fruere exitio totius nostrae familiae et sanguine trium fratrum insatiabilem tuam crudelitatem pasce et de prostratis tuis civibus gloriose triumpha, dum scias, licet privato suis possessionibus paupere fines usque et usque 20 proterminaveris, habiturum te tamen vicinum aliquem. Nam haec etiam dextera, quae tuum prorsus amputasset caput, iniuitate fati contusa decidit."

Quo sermone alioquin exasperatus, furiosus latro rapto gladio sua miserrimum iuvenem manu perempturus invadit 25 avidus. Nec tamen sui molliorem provocarat; quippe insperato et longe contra eius opinionem resistens iuvenis complexu fortissimo arripit eius dexteram magnoque nisu ferro librato multis et crebris ictibus inpuram elidit divitis animam et, ut accurrentium etiam familiarium manu se 30 liberaret, confestim adhuc inimici sanguine delibuto mucrone gulam sibi prorsus exsecuit.

THE ENAMORED STEPMOTHER

Dominus aedium habebat iuvenem filium probe litteratum atque ob id consequenter pietate, modestia praecipuum, quem tibi quoque provenisse cuperes vel tales. Huius matre multo ante defuncta rursum matrimonium sibi re-5 paraverat ductaque alia filium procreaverat aliud, qui adaeque iam duodecimum annum aetatis supercesserat.

Sed noverca forma magis quam moribus in domo mariti praepollens, seu naturaliter impudica seu fato ad extremum impulsa flagitium, oculos ad privignum adiecit. Iam ergo, 10 lector optime, scito te tragodiam, non fabulam legere et a socco ad coturnum ascendere. Sed mulier illa, quamdiu primis elementis Cupido parvulus nutriebatur, inbecillis adhuc eius viribus facile fervorem tenuem deprimens silentio resistebat. At ubi completis igne vesano totis praecordiis 15 inmodice bacchatus Amor exaestuabat, saevienti deo iam succubuit, et languore simulato vulnus animi mentitur in corporis valetudine.

Iam cetera salutis vultusque detrimenta et aegris et amantibus examussim convenire nemo qui nesciat: pallor 20 deformis, marcentes oculi, lassa genua, quies turbida et suspitus cruciatus tarditate vehementior. Crederes et illam fluctuare tantum vaporibus febrium, nisi quod et flebat. Heu medicorum ignarae mentes, quid venae pulsus, quid coloris intemperantia, quid fatigatus anhelitus et utrimquesecus iactatae crebriter laterum mutuae vicissitudines? Dii boni, quam facilis licet non artifici medico, cuivis tamen docto Veneriae cupidinis comprehensio, cum videas aliquem sine corporis calore flagrantem.

Ergo igitur inpatientia furoris altius agitata diutinum 5 rupit silentium et ad se vocari praecipit filium — quod nomen in eo, si posset, ne ruboris admoneretur, libenter eraderet. Nec adulescens aegrae parentis moratus imperium, senili tristitie striatam gerens frontem, cubiculum petit, uxori patris matrique fratris uteumque debitum sistens 10 obsequium. Sed illa cruciabili silentio diutissime fatigata et ut in quodam vado dubitationis haerens omne verbum, quod praesenti sermoni putabat aptissimum, rursum improbans nutante etiam nunc pudore, unde potissimum caperet exordium, decunctatur. 15

At iuvenis nihil etiam tunc sequius suspicatus summisso vultu rogat ultiro praesentis causas aegritudinis. Tunc illa naneta solitudinis damnosam occasionem prorumpit in audaciam et ubertim adlaerimans laciniaque contegens faciem trepida sic eum breviter adfatur: “Causa omnis 20 et origo praesentis doloris et etiam medela ipsa et salus unica mihi tute ipse es. Isti enim tui oculi per meos oculos ad intima delapsi praecordia meis medullis acerrimum com- movent incendium. Ergo miserere tua causa pereuntis nec te religio patris omnino deterreat, cui morituram prorsus 25 servabis uxorem. Illius enim recognoscens imaginem in tua facie merito te diligo. Habes solitudinis plenam fiduciam, habes capax necessarii facinoris otium. Nam quod nemo novit, paene non fit.”

Repentino malo perturbatus adolescens, quanquam tale 30 facinus protinus exhorruisset, non tamen negationis in- tempestiva severitate putavit exasperandum, sed cautae promissionis dilatione leniendum. Ergo prolixè pollicetur et, bonum caperet animum refectionique se ac saluti redderet, impendio suadet, donec patris aliqua profectione liberum voluptati concederetur spatium, statimque se refert

5 a noxio conspectu novercae. Et tam magnam domus cladem ratus indigere consilio pleniore ad quendam compertae gravitatis educatorem senem protinus refert. Nec quicquam diutina deliberatione tam salubre visum quam fuga celeri procellam fortunae saevientis evadere.

10 Sed impatiens vel exiguae dilationis mulier ficta qualibet causa confestim marito miris persuadet artibus ad longissime dissitas festinare villulas. Quo facto maturatae spei vesania praeceps promissae libidinis flagitat vadimonium. Sed iuvenis, modo istud modo aliud causae faciens, execrabilē frustratur eius conspectum, quoad illa, nuntiorum varietate pollicitationem sibi denegatam manifesto perspiciens, mobilitate lubrica nefarium amorem ad longe deterius transtulisset odium.

Et adsumpto statim nequissimo et ad omne facinus
20 emancipato quodam dotali servulo perfidiae suae consilia communicat; nec quicquam melius videtur quam vita miserum privare iuvenem. Ergo missus continuo furcifer venenum praesentarium comparat idque vino diligenter dilutum insontis privigni praeparat exitio. Ac dum de 25 oblationis opportunitate secum noxii deliberant homines, forte fortuna puer ille iunior, proprius pessimae feminae filius, post matutinum laborem studiorum doinum se recipiens, prandio iam capto sitiens repertum vini poculum, 30 in quo venenum latebat inclusum, nescius fraudis occultae continuo perduxit haustu.

Atque ubi fratri suo paratam mortem ebit, examinis terrae procumbit, illicoque repentina pueri pernicie paed-gogus commotus ululabili clamore matrem totamque ciet familiam. Iamque cognito casu noxiae potionis varie quisque praesentium auctores insimulabant extremi facinoris. Sed dira illa femina et malitiae novercalis exemplar unicum non acerba filii morte, non parricidii conscientia, non infor- 5 tunio domus, non luctu mariti vel aerumna funeris commota cladem familiae in vindictae compendium traxit, missoque protinus cursore, qui vianti marito domus expugnationem nuntiaret, ac mox eodem ocios ab itinere regresso personata nimia temeritate insimulat privigni veneno filium 10 suum interceptum.

Et hoc quidem non adeo mentiebatur, quod iam destinatam iuveni mortem praevenisset puer, sed fratrem iuniorem fingebat ideo privigni scelere peremptum, quod eius probrosae libidini, qua se comprimere temptaverat, noluisset 15 succumbere. Nec tam inmanibus contenta mendaciis addebat sibi quoque ob detectum flagitium eundem illum gladium comminari. Tunc infelix duplici filiorum morte percussus magnis aerumnarum procellis aestuat. Nam et iuniorem incoram sui funerari videbat et alterum ob inces- 20 tum parricidiumque capitis scilicet damnatum iri certo sciebat. Ad hoc uxor's dilectae nimium mentitis lamentationibus ad extremum subolis impellebatur odium.

Vixdum pompae funebres et sepultura filii fuerant explicatae, et statim ab ipso eius rogo senex infelix, ora sua 25 recentibus adhuc rigans lacrimis trahensque cinere sordentem canitiem, foro se festinus immittit. Atque ibi tum fletu, tum precibus genua etiam decurionum contingens nescius fraudium pessimae mulieris in exitium reliqui filii plenis operabatur affectibus: illum incestum paterno 30 thalamo, illum parricidam fraterno exitio et in comminata novercae caede sicarium. Tanta denique miseratione tan-taque indignatione curiam, sed et plebem maerens inflammaverat, ut remoto iudicandi taedio et accusationis manifestis probationibus et responsionis meditatis ambagibus cuncti conelamarint lapidibus obrutum publicum malum publice 5 vindicari.

Magistratus interim metu periculi proprii, ne de parvis indignationis elementis ad exitium disciplinae civitatisque seditio procederet, partim decuriones deprecari, partim populares compescere, ut rite et more maiorum iudicio redi¹⁰to et utrimquesecus allegationibus examinatis civiliter sententia promeretur nec ad instar barbaricae feritatis vel tyrannicae impotentiae damnaretur aliquis inauditus et in pace placida tam dirum saeculo proderetur exemplum.

Placuit salubre consilium et illico iussus praeco pronuntiat, patres in curiam convenientre. Quibus protinus dignitatis iure consueta loca residentibus rursum praeconis vocatu primus accusator incedit. Tunc demum clamatus inducitur etiam reus, et exemplo legis Atticae Martiique iudicii causae patronis denuntiat praeco neque principia 20 dicere neque miserationem commovere.

Haec ad istum modum gesta compluribus mutuo sermocinantibus cognovi. Quibus autem verbis accusator urserit, quibus rebus diluerit reus ac prorus orationes altercationesque neque ipse absens apud praesepium scire neque ad 25 vos quae ignoravi possum enuntiare sed quae plane compperi ad istas litteras proferam. Simul enim finita est dicentium contentio, veritatem criminum fidemque probationibus certis instrui nec suspicionibus tantam conjecturam permitti placuit atque illum potissimum servum, qui solus 30 hacc ita gesta esse scire diceretur, sisti modis omnibus oportere.

Nec tantillum cruciarius ille vel fortuna tam magni iudicii vel confertae conspectu curiae vel certe noxia conscientia sua deterritus, quae ipse finxerat, quasi vera, adseverare atque adserere incipit: quod se vocasset indignatus fastidio nevercae iuvenis, quod, ulciscens iniuriam, filii eius mandaverit necem, quod promisisset grande silentii 5 praemium, quod recusanti mortem sit comminatus, quod venenum sua manu temperatum dandum fratri reddiderit, quod ad criminis probationem reservatum poculum nec lexisse suspicatus sua postremum manu porrexerit puer.

Haec eximie ac nimis ad veritatis imaginem verberone 10 illo simulata cum trepidatione proferente finitum est iudicium. Nec quisquam decurionum tam aequus remanserat iuveni, quin eum evidenter noxaea compertum insui culleo pronuntiaret. Cum iam sententiae pares, cunctorum stilis ad unum sermonem congruentibus, ex more perpetuo in 15 urnam aeream deberent conici, quo semel conditis calculis, iam cum rei fortuna transacto, nihil postea commutari licebat, sed mancipabatur potestas capitis in manum carnicis, unus e curia senior prae ceteris compertae fidei atque auctoritatis praecipuae medicus orificium urnae manu con- 20 tegens, ne quis mitteret calculum temere, haec ad ordinem pertulit: "Quod aetatis sum, vobis adprobatum me vixisse gaudeo, nec patiar falsis criminibus petitio reo manifestum homicidium perpetrari nec vos, qui iure iurando adstricti iudicatis, inductos servuli mendacio peierare. Ipse non pos- 25 sum calcata numinum religione conscientiam meam fallens perperam pronuntiare. Ergo, ut res est, de me cognoscite.

"Furcifer iste, venenum praesentarium comparare sollicitus centumque aureos solidos offerens pretium, me non olim convenerat, quod aegroto cuidam dicebat necessarium, 30 qui morbi inextricabilis veterno vehementer implicitus vitae se cruciatui subtrahere gestiret.

“Sic inductus signavit pecuniam, quam exinde, ut iste 10 reprezentatus est iudicio, iussi de meis aliquem curriculo taberna promptam adferre et en ecce perlatam coram exhibeo. Videat et suum sigillum recognoscat. Nam quem ad modum eius veneni frater insimulari potest, quod iste comparaverit?”

15 Ingens exinde verberonem corripit trepidatio et in vicem humani coloris succedit pallor infernus perque universa membra frigidus sudor emanabat; tunc pedes incertis alternationibus commovere, modo hanc, modo illam capitis partem scalpere et ore semiclauso balbuttiens nescio quas 20 afannas effutire, ut eum nemo prorsus a culpa vacuum merito crederet; sed revalescente rursus astutia constans negare et accersere mendacii non desinit medicum. Qui praeter iudicii religionem cum fidem suam coram lacerari videret, multiplicato studio verberonem illum contendit 25 redarguere, donec iusu magistratum ministeria publica contrectatis nequissimi servi manibus anulum ferreum deprehensum cum signo sacculi conferunt, quae comparatio praecedentem roboravit suspicionem. Nec rota vel eculeus more Graecorum tormentis eius apparata iam deerant, sed 30 affirmatus mira praesumptione nullis verberibus ac ne ipso quidem succumbit igni.

Tum medicus: “Non patiar,” inquit, “hercules, non patiar vel contra fas de innocentे isto iuvene supplicium vos sumere vel hunc ludificato nostro iudicio poenam noxii facinoris evadere. Dabo enim rei praesentis evidens argumentum. Nam cum venenum peremptorium comparare pessimus iste gestiret nec meae sectae crederem convenire 5 causas ulli praebere mortis nec exitio, sed saluti hominum medicinam quaesitam esse didicisse, verens ne si daturum me negassem, intempestiva repulsa viam sceleri subministrarem et ab alio quopiam exitiabilem mercatus hic potionem vel postremum gladio vel quovis telo nefas inchoatum per- 10 ficeret, dedi venenum, sed somniferum, mandragoram illum gravedinis compertae famosum et morti simillimi soporis efficacem. Nec mirum desperatissimum istum latronem certum extremae poenae, quae more maiorum in eum competit, cruciatus istos ut leviores facile tolerare. Sed si vere 15 puer meis temperatam manibus sumpsit potionem, vivit et quiescit et dormit et protinus marcido sopore discusso remeabit ad diem lucidam; quod sive peremptus est sive morte praeventus est, quaeratis licet causas mortis eius alias.” 20

Ad istum modum seniore adorante placuit, et itur confessim magna cum festinatione ad illud sepulchrum, quo corpus pueri depositum iacebat. Nemo de curia, de optimatibus nemo ac ne de ipso quidem populo quisquam, qui non illuc curiose confluxerit. Ecce pater, suis ipse manibus 25 coperculo capuli remoto, commodum discusso mortifero sopore surgentem postliminio mortis deprehendit filium eumque complexus artissime, verbis impar praesenti gaudio, producit ad populum. Atque ut erat adhuc feralibus amiculis instrictus atque obditus deportatur ad iudicium puer. 30

novercae quidem perpetuum indicitur exilium, servus vero patibulo suffigitur et omnium consensu bono medico sinuntur aurei, opportuni somni pretium. Et illius quidem senis famosa atque fabulosa fortuna providentiae divinae condig-5 num accepit exitum, qui momento modico immo puncto exiguo post orbitatis periculum adulescentium duorum pater repente factus est.

THE JEALOUS WIFE

Maritum habuit, cuius pater peregre proficisciens mandavit uxori suae, matri eiusdem iuvenis—quod enim sarcina praegnacionis oneratam eam relinquebat—ut, si sexus sequioris edidisset fetum, protinus quod esset editum necaretur. At illa, per absentiam mariti nata puella, insita 5 matribus pietate praeventa descivit ab obsequio mariti eamque prodidit vicinis alumnandam, regressoque iam marito natam necatamque nuntiavit.

Sed ubi flos aetatis nuptiale virgini diem flagitabat nec ignaro marito dotare filiam pro natalibus quibat, quod 10 solum potuit, filio suo tacitum secretum aperuit. Nam et oppido verebatur ne quo casu, caloris iuvenalis impetu lapsus, nescius nesciam sororem incurreret. Sed pietatis spectatae iuvenis et matris obsequium et sororis officium religiose dispensat et arcanis domus venerabilis silentii 15 custodiae traditis, plebeiam facie tenus praetendens humitatem, sic necessarium sanguinis sui munus adgreditur, ut desolatam vicinam puellam parentumque praesidio viduatam domus suae tutela receptaret ac mox artissimo multumque sibi dilecto contubernali, largitus de proprio dotem, 20 liberalissime traderet.

Sed haec bene atque optime plenaque cum sanctimonia disposita feralem Fortunae nutum latere non potuerunt, cuius instinctu domum iuvenis protinus se direxit saeva

Rivalitas. Et illico haec eadem uxor eius, quae nunc bestiis propter haec ipsa fuerat addicta, coepit puellam velut aemulam tori succubamque primo suspicari, dehinc detestari, dehinc crudelissimis laqueis mortis insidiari. Tale 5 denique comminiscitur facinus.

Anulo mariti surrepto rus profecta mittit quandam servulum sibi quidem fidelem, sed de ipsa Fide pessime merentem, qui puellae nuntiaret, quod eam iuvenis profectus ad villulam vocaret ad sese, addito ut sola et sine ullo comite 10 quam maturissime perveniret. Et ne qua forte nasceretur veniendi cunctatio, tradit anulum marito subtractum, qui monstratus fidem verbis adstipularetur.

At illa mandatu fratri obsequens—hoc enim nomen sola sciebat—respecto etiam signo eius, quod offerebatur, 15 naviter, ut praeceptum fuerat, incomitata festinat. Sed ubi fraudis extremae lapsa decipulo laqueos insidiarum accessit, tunc illa uxor egregia sororem mariti libidinosae furiae stimulis efferata primum quidem nudam flagris ultime verberat, dehinc quod res erat clamantem quodque 20 frustra paelicatus indignatione bulliret fratrisque nomen saepius iterantem velut mentitam atque cuncta fingentein crudelissime necavit.

Tunc acerbae mortis exciti nuntiis frater et maritus accurrunt variisque lamentationibus defletam puellam tradunt 25 sepulturae. Nec iuvenis sororis suae mortem tam miseram et quae minime par erat inlatam aequo tolerare quivit animo, sed medullitus dolore commotus acerrimaeque bilis noxio furore perfusus exin flagrantissimis febris ardebat, ut ipsi quoque iam medela videretur esse necessaria. Sed 30 uxor, quae iam pridem nomen uxorius cum fide perdiderat, medicum convenit quandam notae perfidae, qui iam inultarum palmarum spectatus proeliis magna dexterae suae tro-paea numerabat, eique protinus quinquaginta promittit sestertia, ut ille quidem momentarium venenum venderet, ipsa autem emeret mortem mariti sui. Quo confecto simulatur necessaria praecordiis leniendis bilique subtrahendae illa praenobilis potio, quam sacram doctiores nominant, sed 5 in eius vicem subditur alia Proserpinae sacra Saluti.

Iamque praesente familia et nonnullis amicis et adfinibus aegroto medicus poculum probe temperatum manu sua porrigebat. Sed audax illa mulier, ut simul et conscientiam sceleris amoliretur et quam desponderat pecuniam lucrare- 10 tur, coram detento calice “Non prius,” inquit, “medicorum optime, non prius carissimo mihi marito trades istam potionem quam de ea bonam partem hauseris ipse. Unde enim scio an noxium in ea lateat venenum? Quae res utique te tam prudentem tamque doctum virum nequaquam offendet, si religiosa uxor circa salutem mariti sollicita necessariam adfero pietatem.”

Qua mira desperatione truculentae feminae repente perturbatus medicus excussusque toto consilio et ob angustiam temporis spatio cogitandi privatus, antequam trepidatione 20 aliqua vel cunctatione ipsa daret malae conscientiae suspicionem, indidem de potionе gustavit ampliter. Quam fidem secutus adulescens etiam, sumpto calice, quod offerebatur hausit.

Ad istum modum praesenti transacto negotio medicus 25 quam celerrime domum remeabat, salutifera potionе pestem praecedentis veneni festinans extinguere. Nec eum obstinatione sacrilega, qua semel cooperat, truculenta mulier ungue latius a se discedere passa est—“Priusquam,” inquit, “digesta potionе medicinae proventus appareat”—, sed 30 aegre precibus et obtestationibus eius multum ac diu fatigata tandem abire concessit. Interdum perniciem caecam totis visceribus furentem medullae penitus adtraxerant, multum denique saueius et gravedine somnulenta iam demersus domum pervadit aegerrime. Vixque, enarratis cunctis, ad uxorem mandato saltem promissam mercedem 5 mortis geminatae deposeceret, sie elisus violenter spectatis-simus medieus effundit spiritum.

Nee ille tamen iuvenis diutius vitam tenuerat, sed inter fietas mentitasque lacrimas uxoris pari easu mortis fuerat extinctus. Iamque eo sepulto, paucis interiectis diebus, 10 quis feralia mortuis litantur obsequia, uxor mediei pretium geminae mortis petens aderat. Sed mulier usquequaque sui similis, fidei suppressim faciem, praetendens imaginem, blandicule respondit et omnia prolixo accumulateque pollicetur et statutum praemium sine mora se reddituram con-15 stituit, modo pauxillum de ea potionē largiri sibi vellet ob-inepti negotii perseecutionem. Quid pluribus? Laqueis fraudum pessimarum uxor indueta mediei facile consensit et, quo se gratiorem locupleti feminae faceret, properiter domo petitam totam prorsus veneni pyxidem mulieri tradi-20 dit. Quae grandem scelerum naneta materiam longe late-que cruentas suas manus porrigit.

Habebat filiam parvulam de marito, quem nuper necave-rat. Huic infantulae quod leges neeessariam patris succesionem deferrent, sustinebat aegerrime inhiansque toto 25 filiae patrimonio inminebat et capiti.

Ergo certa defunctorum liberorum matres seeleratas hereditates excepere, tales parentem praebuit, qualem exhibuerat uxorem, prandioque eomento pro tempore et uxorem medici simul et suam filiam veneno eodem pereutit.
30 Sed parvulae quidem tenuem spiritum et delicata ae tenera praecordia conficit protinus virus infestum, at uxor medici, dum noxiis ambagibus pulmones eius pererrat tempestas detestabilis potionis, primum suspicata, quod res erat, mox urgente spiritu iam certo certior contendit ad ipsam praesidis domum magnoque fidem eius protestata clamore et populi concitato tumultu, utpote tam immania detectura flagitia, efficit statim sibi simul et domus et aures praesidis 5 patefierent.

Iamque ab ipso exordio crudelissimae mulieris cunctis atrocitatibus diligenter expositis, repente mentis nubilo turbine correpta semihiantes adhuc compressit labias et, attritu dentium longo stridore reddito, ante ipsos praesidis 10 pedes exanimis corruit.

Nec ille vir, alioquin exercitus, tam multiforme facinus excetrae venenatae dilatione languida passus marcescere, confestim cubiculariis mulieris adtractis vi tormentorum veritatem eruit atque illam, minus quidem quam merebatur, sed quod dignus cruciatus alius excogitari non poterat, certe bestiis obiciendam pronuntiavit.

TALE OF THE TUB

Is gracili pauperie laborans fabriles operas praebendo parvis illis mercedibus vitam tenebat. Erat ei tamen uxorecula etiam satis quidem tenuis et ipsa, verum tamen postrema laseivia famigerabilis. Sed die quadam, dum 5 matutino ille ad opus susceptum proficiscitur, statim latenter inrexit eius hospitium temerarius adulter.

Ae dum Veneris conluationibus securius operantur, maritus ignarus rerum ac nihil etiam tum tale suspicans improviso hospitium repetit. Iamque clausis et obseratis 10 foribus uxoris laudata continentia ianuam pulsat, sibilo etiam praesentiam suam denuntiante.

Tunc mulier callida et ad huius modi flagitia perastutula tenacissimis amplexibus expeditum hominem dolio, quod erat in angulo semiobrutum, sed alias vacuum, dissimulanter 15 abscondit, et patefactis aedibus adhuc introeuntem maritum aspero sermone accipit: “Sieine vacuus et otiosus insinuatis manibus ambulabis mihi nec obito consueto labore vitae nostrae prospicies et aliquid eibatui parabis? At ego misera pernoct et per diem lanificio nervos meos contorqueo, 20 ut intra cellulam nostram saltem lucerna luceat. Quanto me felicior Daphne vicina, quae mero et prandio matutino saucia cum suis adulteris volutatur!”

Sic confutatus maritus “Et quid istie est?” ait; “nam licet forensi negotio officinator noster attentus ferias nobis fecerit, tamen hodiernae cenulae nostrae prospexi. Vide sis, ut dolium, quod semper vacuum, frustra locum detinet tantum et re vera praeter impedimentum conversationis nostrae nihil praestat amplius? Istud ego quinque denariis 5 cuidam venditavi, et adest, ut dato pretio secum rem suam ferat. Quin itaque praecingeris mihi manum tantisper accommodas, ut exobrutum protinus tradatur emptori."

E re nata fallaciosa mulier temerarium tollens cachinnum, "Magnum," inquit, "istum virum ac strenuum negotiatorem 10 nacta sum, qui rem, quam ego mulier et intra hospitium contenta iam dudum septem denariis vendidi, minoris distraxit."

Additamento pretii laetus maritus "Et quis est ille," ait, "qui tanto praestinavit?" 15

At illa "Olim, inepte," inquit, "descendit in dolium sedulo soliditatem eius probaturus."

Nec ille sermoni mulieris defuit, sed exsurgens alacriter "Vis," inquit, "verum scire, mater familias? Hoc tibi dolium nimis vetustum est et multifariam rimis hiantibus 20 quassum" ad maritumque eius dissimulanter conversus "Quin tu, quicumque es, homuncio, lucernam," ait, "actutum mihi expidis, ut erasis intrinsecus sordibus diligenter, aptumne usui, possim dinoscere, nisi nos putas aes de malo habere?" 25

Nec quicquam moratus ac suspicatus acer et egregius ille maritus accensa lucerna "Discede," inquit, "frater, et otiosus adsiste, donec probe percuratum istud tibi repraesentem;" et cum dicto nudatus ipse delato lumine scabiem vetustam cariosae testae occipit exculpere. At vero adulter bellis-30 simus ille pusio inclinatam dolio pronam uxorem fabri superincurvatus secure dedolabat.

Ast illa capite in dolium demisso maritum suum astu meretricio tractabat ludicre; hoc et illud et aliud et rursus aliud purgandum demonstrat digito suo, donec utroque opere perfecto acceptis septem denariis calamitosus faber collo 5 suo gerens dolium coactus est ad hospitium adulteri perferre.

CUPID AND PSYCHE

Erant in quadam civitate rex et regina. Hi tres numero filias forma conspicuas habuere, sed maiores quidem natu, quamvis gratissima specie, idonee tamen celebrari posse laudibus humanis credebantur, at vero puellae iunioris tam praecipua, tam praeclera pulchritudo nec exprimi ac ne 5 sufficierenter quidem laudari sermonis humani penuria poterat. Multi denique civium et advenae copiosi, quos eximii spectaculi rumor studiosa celebritate congregabat, inaccessae formositas admiratione stupidi et admoventes oribus suis dexteram primore digito in erectum pollicem residente eam 10 ut ipsam prorsus deam Venerem religiosis venerabantur adorationibus.

Iamque proximas civitates et attiguas regiones fama per-vaserat deam, quam caerulum profundum pelagi peperit et ros spumantium fluctuum educavit, iam numinis sui passim 15 tributa venia in mediis conversari populi coetibus, vel certe rursum novo caelestium stellarum germine non maria, sed terras Venerem aliam virginali flore praeditam pullulasse.
Sic immensum procedit in dies opinio, sic insulas iam proximas et terrae plusculum provinciasque plurimas fama por- 20 recta pervagatur.

Iam multi mortalium longis itineribus atque altissimis maris meatibus ad saeculi specimen gloriosum confluabant.
Paphon nemo, Cnidon nemo ac ne ipsa quidem Cythera ad conspectum deae Veneris navigabant; sacra differuntur, templa deformantur, pulvinaria praetereuntur, caerimoniae negleguntur; incoronata simulacra et arae viduae frigido cinere foedatae. Puellae supplicatur et in humanis vultibus deae tantae numina placantur, et in matutino progressu virginis victimis et epulis Veneris absentis nomen propitiatum, iamque per plateas commeantem populi frequenter floribus sertis et solutis adprecantur.

Haec honorum caelestium ad puellae mortalis cultum in modica translatio verae Veneris vehementer incendit animos et inpatiens indignationis capite quassanti fremens altius sic secum disserit: "En rerum naturae prisca parens, en elementorum origo initialis, en orbis totius alma Venus, quae cum mortali puella partiario maiestatis honore tractor et nomen meum caelo conditum terrenis sordibus profanatur! Nimirum communi numinis piamento vicariae venerationis incertum sustinebo et imaginem meam circumferet puella moritura. Frustra me pastor ille, cuius iustitiam fidemque magnus comprobavit Iuppiter, ob eximiam speiem tantis praetulit deabus. Sed non adeo gaudens ista, quaecumque est, meos honores usurpabit: iam faxo eam huius etiam ipsius inlicitae formonsitatis paeniteat."

. Et vocat confestim puerum suum pinnatum illum et satis temerarium, qui malis suis moribus contempta disciplina publica, flammis et sagittis armatus, per alienas domos nocte discurrens et omnium matrimonia corrumpens impune committit tanta flagitia et nihil prorsus boni facit.

Hunc, quanquam genuina licentia procaceem, verbis quoque insuper stimulat et perdueit ad illam civitatem et Psychen — hoc enim nomine puella nuncupabatur — coram ostendit et tota illa perlata de formonsitatis aemulatione fabula gemens ae fremens indignatione: "Per ego te," inquit, “ maternae caritatis foedera deprecor, per tuae sagittae dulcia vulnera, per flammæ istius mellitas uredines, vindictam tuae parenti sed plenam tribue et in pulchritudinem contumacem severiter vindica idque unum et pro omnibus unicum volens effice: virgo ista amore fraglantissimo teneatur hominis extremi, quem et dignitatis et patrimonii simul et incolumitatis ipsius Fortuna damnavit, tamque infirmi, ut per totum orbem non inveniat miseriae suae comparem.”

Sic effata et osculis hiantibus filium diu ac pressule saviata proximas oras refluì litoris petit plantisque roseis vibrantium fluctuum summo rore calcato ecce iam profundum maris sudo resedit vertice, et ipsum quod incipit velle, quasi pridem praeceperit, non moratur marinum obsequium. Adsunt Nerei filiae chorum canentes et Portunus caerulis barbis hispidus et gravis piscoso sinu Salacia et auriga parvulus delfini Palaemon; iam passim maria persultantes Tritonum catervae hic concha sonaci leniter bucinate, ille serico tegmine flagrantiae solis obsistit inimici, aliis sub oculis dominae speculum progerit, curru biuges alii subnatant. Talis ad Oceanum pergentem Venerem comitatur exercitus.

Interea Psyche cum sua sibi perspicua pulchritudine nullum decoris sui fructum percipit. Spectatur ab omnibus, laudatur ab omnibus nec quisquam, non rex, non regius, nec de plebe saltem cupiens eius nuptiarum petitor accedit. Mirantur quidem divinam speciem, sed ut simul lacrum fabre politum mirantur omnes.

Olim duae maiores sorores, quarum temperatam formositatem nulli diffamarant populi, procis regibus responsae iam beatas nuptias adeptae, sed Psyche virgo vidua domi residens deflet desertam suam solitudinem aegra corporis, animi saucia et quamvis gentibus totis complacitam odit inse suam formositatem.

Sie infortunatissimae filiae miserrimus pater suspectatis caelestibus odiis et irae superum metuens dei Milesii vetustissimum percontatur oraculum et a tanto numine precibus et victimis ingratae virginis petit nuptias et maritum. Sed
 5 Apollo, quanquam Graecus et Ionicus, propter Milesiae conditorem sic Latina sorte respondit

“ Montis in excelsi scopulo, rex, siste puellam ornatam mundo funerei thalami.
 nec spes generum mortali stirpe creatum, 10 sed saevum atque ferum vipereumque malum, quod pennis volitans super aethera cuncta fatigat flammaque et ferro singula debilitat, quod tremit ipse Iovis, quo numina terrificantur fluminaque horrescunt et Stygiae tenebrae.”

15 Rex olim beatus affatu sanctae vaticinationis accepto pi-gens tristisque retro domum pergit suaequi coniugi praecepta sortis enodat infastiae. Maeatur, fletur, lamentatur diebus plusculis. Sed dirae sortis iam urget taeter effectus.
 Iam feralium nuptiarum miserrimae virginis choragium 20 struitur, iam taedae lumen atrae fuliginis cinere marcescit, et sonus tibiae zygiae mutatur in querulum Ludii modum cantusque laetus hymenaei lugubri finitur ululatu et puella nuptura deterget lacrimas ipso suo flammeo. Sie adfectae domus triste fatum cuncta etiam civitas congregabat luetu-25 que publico confestim congruens edicitur iustitium.

Sed monitis caelestibus parendi necessitas misellam Psychen ad destinatam poenam efflagitabat. Perfectis igitur feralis thalami cum summo maerore sollemnibus toto prosequente populo vivum producitur funus et lacrimosa 30 Psyche comitatur non nuptias, sed exequias suas. Ae dum maesti parentes et tanto malo perciti nefarium facinus perficere cunctantur, ipsa illa filia talibus eos adhortatur vocibus. “Quid infelicem senectam fletu diutino cruciatis? Quid spiritum vestrum, qui magis meus est, crebris eiulatibus fatigatis? Quid lacrimis inefficacibus ora mihi veneranda foedatis? Quid laceratis in vestris oculis mea 5 lumina? Quid canitiem scinditis? Quid pectora, quid ubera sancta tunditis? Haec erunt vobis egregiae formositatis meae praeclera praemia. Invidiae nefariae letali plaga percussi sero sentitis. Cum gentes et populi celebrent nos divinis honoribus, cum novam me Venerem ore 10 consono nuncuparent, tunc dolere, tunc flere, tunc me iam quasi peremptam lugere debuistis. Iam sentio, iam video solo me nomine Veneris perisse. Duce me et cui sors ad dixit scopulo sistite. Festino felices istas nuptias obire, festino generosum illum maritum meum videre. Quid dif-15 fero, quid detrecto venientem, qui totius orbis exitio natus est?”

Sic profata virgo conticuit ingressuque iam valido pompa populi prosequentis sese miscuit. Itur ad constitutum scopulum montis ardui, cuius in summo cacumine statutam 20 puellam cuncti deserunt, taedasque nuptiales quibus praeluxerant ibidem lacrimis suis extinetas relinquentes deiectis capitibus domitionem parant. Et miseri quidem parentes eius tanta clade defessi, clausae domus abstrusi tenebris, perpetuae nocti sese dedidere. Psychen autem paventem 25 ac trepidam et in ipso scopuli vertice deflentem mitis aura molliter spirantis Zephyri, vibratis hinc inde laciniis et reflato sinu sensim levatam suo tranquillo spiritu vehens paulatim per devexa rupis excelsae, vallis subditae florentis cespitis gremio leniter delapsam reclinat. 30

conquievit. Iamque sufficienti recreata somno placido resurgit animo. Videt lucum proceris et vastis arboribus consitum, videt fontem vitreo latice perlucidum; medio luci meditullio prope fontis adlapsum domus regia est, 5 aedificata non humanis manibus, sed divinis artibus. Iam scies ab introitu primo dei cuiuspam luculentum et amoenum videre te diversorium. Nam summa laquearia citro et ebore curiose cavata subeunt aureae columnae, parietes omnes argenteo caelamine conteguntur bestiis et id genus
10 pecudibus occurrentibus ob os introeuntum. Mirus prorsum homo, immo semideus vel certe deus, qui magnae artis suptilitate tantum efferavit argentum. Enimvero pavimenta ipsa lapide pretioso caesim deminuto in varia picturae genera discriminantur; vehementer, iterum ac saepius 15 beatos illos qui super gemmas et monilia caleant.

Iam ceterae partes longe lateque dispositae domus sine pretio pretiosae totique parietes solidati massis aureis splendore proprio coruscant, ut diem suum sibi domus faciat licet sole nolente: sie cubicula, sie porticus, sie ipsae 20 valueae fulgurant. Nec setius opes ceterae maiestati domus respondent, ut equidem illud recte videatur ad conversationem humanam magno Iovi fabrieatum caeleste palatum.

Invitata Psyche talium locorum oblectatione propius accessit et paulo fidentior intra limen sese facit, mox prolectante studio pulcherrimae visionis rimatur singula et altrinsecus aedium horrea sublimi fabrica perfecta magnisque congesta gazis conspicit. Nec est quicquam, quod ibi non est. Sed praeter eeteram tantarum divitiarum admirationem hoc erat praecipue mirificum, quod nullo vinculo, nullo claustro, nullo custode totius orbis thensaurus ille muniebatur.

Hacc ei summa cum voluptate visenti offert sese vox quaedam corporis sui nuda et "Quid," inquit, "domina, tantis obstupescis opibus? Tua sunt haec omnia. Prohinc cubiculo te refer et lectulo lassitudinem refove et ex arbitrio lavaerum pete. Nos, quarum voces accipis, tuae famulæ sedulo tibi praeministrabimus nec corporis curatae tibi regales 5 epulæ morabuntur."

Sensit Psyche divinae providentiae beatitudinem monitusque, voces informes audiens, et prius somno et mox lavacro fatigationem sui diluit, visoque statim proximo semirotundo suggestu, propter instrumentum cenatorium 10 rata refectui suo commodum, libens accumbit.

Et ilico vini nectarei eduliumque variorum fercula copiosa nullo serviente, sed tantum spiritu quodam impulsa subministrantur. Nec quemquam tamen illa videre poterat, sed verba tantum audiebat excidentia et solas voces famulas 15 habebat. Post opimas dapes quidam introcessit et cautavit invisus et alius eitharam pulsavit, quae videbatur nec ipsa. Tunc modulatae multitudinis conferta vox aures eius affertur, ut, quamvis hominum nemo pareret, chorus tamen esse pateret. 20

Finitis voluptatibus vespera suadente concedit Psyche cubitum. Iamque proiecta nocte clemens quidam sonus aures eius accedit. Tunc virginitati suaे pro tanta solitudine metuens et pavet et horrescit et quovis malo plus timet quod ignorat. Iamque aderat ignobilis maritus et torum inscendeat et uxorem sibi Psychen fecerat et ante lucis exortum propere discesserat.

Statim voces cubiculo praestolatae novam nuptam interfæcœ virginitatis curant. Haec diutino tempore sic agebantur. Atque ut est natura redditum, novitas per assiduam 30 consuetudinem delectationem ei commendarat et sonus vocis incertæ solitudinis erat solacium.

5 Interea parentes eius indefesso luctu atque maerore consenescabant, latiusque porrecta fama sorores illae maiores cuncta cognorant propereque maestae atque lugubres deserto lare certatim ad parentum suorum conspectum adfatumque 5 perrexerant. Ea nocte ad suam Psychen sic infit maritus — namque praeter oculos et manibus et auribus sentiebatur “Psyche dulcissima et cara uxor, exitiabile tibi periculum minatur fortuna saevior, quod observandum pressiore cautela censeo. Sorores iam tuae mortis opinione turbatae tuumque 10 vestigium requirentes scopulum istum protinus aderunt, quarum si quas forte lamentationes acceperis, neque respon-deas, immo nec prospicias omnino; ceterum mihi quidem gravissimum dolorem, tibi vero sumnum creabis exitium.”

Annuit et ex arbitrio mariti se facturam spopondit, sed 15 eo simul cum nocte dilapo diem totum lacrimis ac plangoribus misella consumit, se nunc maxime prorsus perisse iterans, quae beati carceris custodia septa et humanae conversationis colloquio vidiuata nec sororibus quidem suis de se maerentibus opem salutarem ferre ac ne videre eas quidem omnino 20 posset. Nec lavacro nec cibo nec ulla denique refectione recreata, flens ubertim decessit ad somnum. Nec mora, cum paulo maturius lectum maritus accubans eamque etiam nunc lacrimantem complexus sic expostulat “Haecine mihi pollicebare, Psyche mea? Quid iam de te tuus maritus 25 expecto, quid spero? Et perdia et pernox nec inter amplexus coniugales desinis cruciatum. Age iam nunc, ut voles, et animo tuo damnosa poscenti pareto! Tantum memi-neris meae seriae monitionis, cum coepcris sero paenitere.”

Tunc illa precibus et dum se morituram comminatur 30 extorquet a marito, cupitis adnuat ut sorores videat, luctus mulceat, ora conferat. Sie ille novae nuptiae precibus ve-niām tribuit et insuper, quibuscumque vellet eas auri vel monilium donare, concessit, sed identidem monuit ac saepe terruit, ne quando sororum perniciose consilio suasa de forma mariti quaerat neve se sacrilega curiositate de tanto fortunarum suggestu pessum deiciat nec suum postea contingat amplexum.

Gratias egit marito iamque laetior animo “Sed prius,” inquit, “centies moriar quam tuo isto dulcissimo conubio caream. Amo enim et efflictim te, quicumque es, diligo aequa ut meum spiritum, nec ipsi Cupidini comparo. Sed istud etiam meis precibus, oro, largire et illi tuo famulo 10 Zephyro praecipe, simili vectura sorores hie mihi sistat”; et imprimens oscula suasoria et ingerens verba mulcentia et inserens membra cogentia haec etiam blanditiis astruit “Mi mellite, mi marite, tuae Psychae dulcis anima.” Vi ac potestate Venerii susurrus invitus succubuit maritus et 15 cuncta se facturum spopondit atque, etiam luce proxumante, de manibus uxoris evanuit.

At illae sorores percontatae scopulum locumque illum, quo fuerat Psyche deserta, festinanter adveniunt ibique difflebant oculos et plangebant ubera, quoad crebris earum 20 heiulatibus saxa cautesque parilem sonum resultarent. Iamque nomine proprio sororem miseram ciebant, quoad sono penetrabili vocis ululabilis per prona delapso amens et trepida Psyche procurrat e domo et “Quid,” inquit, “vos miseris lamentationibus necquicquam effligitis? Quam 25 lugetis, adsum. Lugubres voces desinite et diutinis lacrimis madentes genas siecate tandem, quippe cum iam possitis quam plangebatis amplecti.”

Tunc vocatum Zephyrum praecepti maritalis admonet. Nec mora, cum ille parens imperio statim clementissimis 30 flatibus innoxia vectura deportat illas. Iam mutuis amplexibus et festinantibus saviis sese perfruuntur et illae sedatae lacrimae postliminio redeunt prolectante gaudio.

“Sed et teatum,” inquit, “et larem nostrum laetae succedite et afflictas animas cum Psyche vestra recreate.”

Sic allocuta summas opes domus aureae vocumque ser-5 videntium populosam familiam demonstrat auribus earum lavaeroque pulcherrimo et inhumanae mensae lautitiis eas opipare reficit, ut illarum prorsus caelestium divitiarum copiis affluentibus satiatae iam praecordiis penitus nutriment invidiam. Denique altera earum satis scrupulose curioseque 10 percontari non desinit, quis illarum caelestium rerum dominus, quisve vel qualis ipsius sit maritus.

Nec tamen Psyche coniugale illud praeceptum ullo pacto temerat vel pectoris arcanis exigit, sed e re nata configit esse iuvenem quendam et speciosum, commodum lanoso 15 barbitio genas inumbrantem, plerumque rurestribus ac montanis venatibus occupatum, et ne qua sermonis procedentis labe consilium tacitum proderetur, auro facto gemmosisque monilibus onustas eas statim vocato Zephyro tradit reportandas.

20 Quo protenus perpetrato sorores egregiae domum redeuntes iamque gliscentis invidiae felle fraglantes multa secum sermonibus mutuis perstrepebant. Sic denique infit altera “En orba et saeva et iniqua Fortuna! Hocine tibi complacuit, ut utroque parente prognatae diversam sortem 25 sustineremus? Et nos quidem, quae natu maiores sumus, maritis advenis ancillae deditae, extorres et lare et ipsa patria degamus longe parentum velut exulantes, hacc autem novissima, quam fetu satiante postremus partus effudit, tantis opibus et deo marito potita sit, quae nec uti recte 30 tanta bonorum copia novit? Vidisti, soror, quanta in domo iacent et qualia monilia, quae praenitent vestes, quae splendificant gemmacae, quantum praeterea passim calcatur aurum.

“Quodsi maritum etiam tam formonsum tenet, ut affirmat, nulla nunc in orbe toto felicior vivit. Fortassis tamen procedente consuetudine et affectione roborata deam quoque illam deus maritus efficiet. Sic est hercules, sic se gerebat ferebatque. Iam iam sursum respicit et deam spirat mu- 5 lier, quae voces ancillas habet et ventis ipsis imperat. At ego misera primum patre meo seniorem maritum sortita sum, dein cucurbita calviorem et quovis pueru pusilliorem, cunctam domum seris et catenis obditam custodientem.”

Suscipit alia “Ego vero maritum articulari etiam morbo 10 complicatum curvatumque ac per hoc rarissimo venerem meam recollentem sustineo, plerumque detortos et duratos in lapidem digitos eius perfriens, fomentis olidis et pannis sordidis et faetidis cataplasmatibus manus tam delicatas istas adurens nec uxoris officiosam faciem, sed medicae 15 laboriosam personam sustinens.

“Et tu quidem soror videris, quam patienti vel potius servili—dicam enim libere quod sentio—haec perferas animo; enimvero ego nequeo sustinere ulterius tam beatam fortunam allapsam indignae. Recordare enim, quam su- 20 perbe, quam adroganter nobiscum egerit et ipsa iactatione immodicae ostentationis tumentem suum prodiderit animum deque tantis divitiis exigua nobis invita proiecerit confestimque praesentia nostra gravata propelli et efflari exsibilarique nos iusserit. Nec sum mulier nec omnino 25 spiro, nisi eam pessum de tantis opibus deicero.

“Ac si tibi etiam, ut par est, inacuit nostra contumelia, consilium validum requiramus ambae. Iamque ista, quae ferimus, non parentibus nostris ac nec ulli monstremus alii, immo nec omnino quicquam de eius salute norimus. Sat 30 est quod ipsae vidimus quae vidisse paenituit, nedum ut genitoribus et omnibus populis tam beatum eius differamus praeconium. Nec sunt enim beati, quorum dixitias nemo novit. Sciet se non ancillas, sed sorores habere maiores. Et nunc quidem concedamus ad maritos et lares pauperes nostros, sed plane sobrios revisamus diuque cogitationibus 5 pressioribus instructae, ad superbiam poeniadam firmiores redeamus."

Placet pro bono duabus malis malum consilium totisque illis tam pretiosis muneribus absconditis comam trahentes et proinde ut merebantur ora lacerantes simulatos redintegrum fletus. Ac sic parentes quoque reducerato prorsum dolore raptim deterrentes, vesania turgidae, domus suas contendunt dolum scelestum, immo vero parricidium struentes contra sororem insontem.

Interea Psychen maritus ille, quem neseit, rursum suis
 15 illis nocturnis sermonibus sie commonet "Videsne, quantum tibi periculum? Velitatur Fortuna eminus, ac nisi longe firmiter praecaves, mox comminus congregietur. Perfidae lupulae magnis conatibus nefarias insidias tibi comparant, quarum summa est, ut te suadeant meos explo-20 rare vultus, quos, ut tibi saepe praedixi, non videbis si videris.

"Ergo igitur si posthac pessimae illae lamiae noxiis animis armatae venerint — venient autem, scio —, neque omnino sermonem conferas et si id tolerare pro genuina simplicitate 25 proque animi tui teneritudine non potueris, certe de marito nil quiequam vel audias vel respondeas. Nam et familiam nostram iam propagabimus et hic adhue infantilis uterus gestat nobis infantem alium, si texeris nostra secreta silentio, divinum; si profanaveris, mortalem."

30 Nuntio Psyche laeta florebat et divinae subolis solacio plaudebat et futuri pignoris gloria gestiebat et materni nominis dignitate gaudebat.

Sed iam pestes illae taeterrimaeque Furiae anhelantes vipereum virus et festinantes impia celeritate navigabant.
Tunc sic iterum momentarius maritus suam Psychen admonet “Dies ultima et casus extremus et sexus infestus et sanguis inimicus iam sumpsit arma et castra commovit et 5 aciem direxit et classicum personavit; iam muerone de-stricto iugulum tuum nefariae tuae sorores petunt. Heu quantis urguemur cladibus, Psyche dulcissima. Tui nos-trique miserere religiosaque continentia domum maritum teque et istum parvulum nostrum imminentis ruinae infor- 10 tunio libera. Nec illas scelestas feminas, quas tibi post inter-necivum odium et calcata sanguinis foedera sorores appellare non licet, vel videas vel audias, cum in morem Sirenum scopulo prominentes funestis vocibus saxa personabunt.”

Suscipit Psyche singultu lacrimoso sermonem incertans 15 “Iam dudum, quod sciam, fidei atque parciloquio meo perpendisti documenta, nec eo setius adprobabitur tibi nunc etiam firmitas animi mei. Tu modo Zephyro nostro rursum praecipe fungatur obsequio, et in vicem denegatae sacrosanctae imaginis tuae redde saltem conspectum sororum. 20 Per istos cinnameos et undique pendulos crines tuos, per teneras et teretis et mei similes genas, per pectus nescio quo calore fervidum, sic in hoc saltem parvulo cognoscam faciem tuam; supplicis anxiae piis precibus erogatus germani complexus indulge fructum et tibi devotae Psychae 25 animam gaudio recrea. Nec quiquam amplius in tuo vultu requiro, iam nil officiunt mihi nec ipsae nocturnae tene-brae; teneo te, meum lumen.”

His verbis et amplexibus mollibus decantatus maritus lacrimasque eius suis crinibus detergens se facturum spo- 30 pondit et praevertit statim lumen nascentis diei.

Iugum sororium consponsae factionis ne parentibus

quidem visis recta de navibus scopulum petunt illum praecipiti cum velocitate nec venti ferentis oppertae praesentiam licentiosa cum temeritate prosiliunt in altum. Nec immemor Zephyrus regalis edicti, quamvis invitus, suscep⁵tas eas gremio spirantis aurae solo reddidit.

At illae incunctatae statim conferto vestigio domum penetrant complexaeque praedam suam sorores nomine mentientes thensaurumque penitus abditae fraudis vultu laeto tegentes sic adulant: "Psyche, non ita ut pridem 10 parvula, et ipsa iam mater es. Quantum, putas, boni nobis in ista geris perula! Quantis gaudiis totam domum nostram hilarabis! O nos beatas, quos infantis aurei nutrimenta laetabunt! Qui si parentum, ut oportet, pulchritudini responderit, prorsus Cupido nascetur."

15 Sic affectione simulata paulatim sororis invadunt animum. Statimque eas lassitudine viae sedilibus refotas et balnearum vaporosis fontibus curatas pulcherrime triclinio mirisque illis et beatis edulibus atque tuccetis oblectat. Inbet citharam loqui, psallitur; tibias agere, sonatur; choros 20 canere, cantatur. Quae cuncta nullo praesente dulcissimis modulis animos audientium remulcebant.

Nec tamen scelestarum feminarum nequitia vel illa mellita cantus dulcedine mollita conquievit, sed ad destinatam fraudum pedicam sermonem conferentes dissimulanter occipiunt sciscitari, qualis ei maritus et unde natalium, secta cuia proveniret. Tunc illa simplicitate nimia pristini sermonis oblita novum commentum instruit aitque maritum suum de provincia proxima magnis pecuniis negotiantem iam medium cursum aetatis agere, interspersum rara canitie. Nec in sermone isto tantillum morata rursum opiparis muneribus eas onustas ventoso vehiculo reddidit.

Sed dum Zephyri tranquillo spiritu sublimatae domum redeunt, sic secum altercantes: “Quid, soror, dicimus de tam monstruoso fatuae illius mendacio? Tunc adolescens modo florenti lanugine barbam instruens, nunc aetate media candidi canitie lucidus. Quis ille, quem temporis 5 modici spatium repentina senecta reformavit? Nil aliud repperies, mi soror, quam vel mendacia istam pessimam feminam confingere vel formam mariti sui nescire; quorum utrum verum est, opibus istis quam primum exterminanda
est. Quodsi viri sui faciem ignorat, deo profecto denupsit 10 et deum nobis praegnationale ista gerit. Certe si divini puelli — quod absit — haec mater audierit, statim me laqueo nexili suspendam. Ergo interim ad parentes nostros redeamus et exordio sermonis huius quam concolores fallacias adtexamus.”

Sic inflammatae, parentibus fastidienter appellatis et nocte turbata vigiliis, perditae matutino scopulum per-volant et inde solito venti praesidio vehementer devolant lacrimisque pressura palpebrarum coactis hoc astu puel-lam appellant: “Tu quidem felix et ipsa tanti mali igno- 20 rantia beata sedes incuriosa periculi tui, nos autem, quae pervigili cura rebus tuis excubamus, cladibus tuis misere cruciamur.

“Pro vero namque comperimus nec te, sociae scilicet doloris casusque tui, celare possumus immanem colubrum multi- 25 nodis voluminibus serpentem, veneno noxio colla sanguinantem hiantemque ingluvie profunda tecum noctibus latenter adquiescere. Nunc recordare sortis Pythiae, quae te trucis bestiae nuptiis destinata esse clamavit. Et multi coloni qui que circumsecus venantur et accolae plurimi vide- 30 runt eum vespera redeuntem e pastu proximique fluminis vadis innatantem.

“Nec diu blandis alimoniarum obsequiis te saginaturum omnes adfirmant, sed, cum primum praegnationem tuam plenus maturaverit uterus, opimiore fructu praeditam devoraturum. Ad haec iam tua est existimatio, utrum 5 sororibus pro tua cara salute sollicitis adsentiri velis et declinata morte nobiscum secura periculi vivere an saevisimae bestiae sepeliri visceribus. Quodsi te ruris huius vocalis solitudo vel clandestinae veneris faetidi periculosique concubitus et venenati serpentis amplexus delectant, certe 10 piae sorores nostrum fecerimus.”

Tunc Psyche misella, utpote simplex et animi tenella, rapitur verborum tam tristium formidine; extra terminum mentis suae posita prorsus omnium mariti monitionum suarumque promissionum memoriam effudit et in profundum calamitatis sese praecepitavit tremensque et exanguis colore lurida tertiana verba semihianti voce substrepens sic ad illas ait “Vos quidem, carissimae sorores, ut par erat, in officio vestrae pietatis permanetis, verum et illi qui talia vobis adfirmant, non videntur mihi mendacium fingere. 20 Nec enim umquam viri mei vidi faciem vel omnino cuiatis sit novi, sed tantum nocturnis subaudiens vocibus maritum incerti status et prorsus lucifugam tolero bestiamque aliquam recte dicentibus vobis merito consentio. Meque magnopere semper a suis terret aspectibus malumque 25 grande de vultus curiositate praeminatur. Nunc si quam salutarem opem periclitanti sorori vestrae potestis adferre, iam nunc subsistite; ceterum incuria sequens prioris providentiae beneficia conrumpet.”

Tunc nanctae iam portis patentibus nudatum sororis 30 animum facinerosae mulieres, omissis teetae machinae latibulis, destriktis gladiis fraudium simplicis puellae paventes cogitationes invadunt.

Sic denique altera : “ Quoniam nos originis nexus pro tua incolumitate ne periculum quidem ullum ante oculos habere compellit, viam, quae sola deducit iter ad salutem, diu diuque cogitatam monstrabimus tibi. Novaculae p[ro]aeacutam, ad pulsu etiam palmulae lenientis exasperatam, tori qua parte 5 cubare consuesti, latenter absconde lucernamque concinnem, completam oleo, claro lumine praemicantem subde aliquo claudentis aululae tegmine omniq[ue] isto apparatu tenacissime dissimulato, postquam sulcatos intrahens gressus cubile solitum concenderit iamque porrectus et exordio somni pre- 10 mentis implicitus altum soporem flare cooperit, toro delapsa nudoque vestigio pensilem gradum paullulatim minuens, cae- cae tenebrae custodia liberata lucerna, p[ro]aeclari tui facinoris opportunitatem de luminis consilio mutuare et ancipi[re] telo illo audaciter, prius dextera sursum elata, nisu quam valido 15 noxii serpentis nodum cervicis et capitis abscinde. Nec nostrum tibi deerit subsidium ; sed cum primum illius morte salutem tibi feceris, anxiae p[ro]estolabimur cunctisque istis manibus sociis tecum relatis votivis nuptiis hominem te iungemus homini.” 20

Tali verborum incendioflammata viscera sororis iam prorsus ardentis deserentes ipsae protinus, tanti mali confinium sibi etiam eximie metuentes, fatus alitis impulsu solito porrectae super scopulum illico pernici se fuga proripiunt statimque consensis navibus abeunt. 25

At Psyche relicita sola, nisi quod infestis Furiis agitata sola non est, aestu pelagi simile maerendo fluctuat et, quamvis statuto consilio et obstinato animo, iam tamen facinori manus admovens adhuc incerta consilii titubat multisque calamitatis suaे distrahitur affectibus. Festinat differt, 30 audet trepidat, diffidit irascitur et, quod est ultimum, in eodem corpore odit bestiam, diligit maritum. Vespera tamen iam noctem trahente praecipi festinatione nefarii sceleris instruit apparatum.

Nox aderat et maritus advenerat. Tunc Psyche, et corporis et animi alioquin infirma, fati tamen saevitia sub-5 ministrante, viribus roboratur et prolata lucerna et adrepta novacula sexum audacia mutatur. Sed eum primum luminis oblatione tori secreta claruerunt, videt omnium ferarum mitissimam duleissimamque bestiam, ipsum illum Cupidinem formonsum deum formonse cubantem, cuius aspectu lucernae 10 quoque lumen hilaratum increbruit et aeuminis saerilegi novacula praenitebat.

At vero Psyche tanto aspectu deterrita et impos animi, marcido pallore defecta tremensque desedit in imos poplites et ferrum quaerit abscondere, sed in suo pectore; quod profecto fecisset, nisi ferrum timore tanti flagitii manibus temerariis delapsum evolasset.

Iamque lassa, salute defecta, dum saepius divini vultus intuetur pulchritudinem, recreatur animi. Videt capitis aurei geniale caesariem ambrosia temulentam, cervices 20 lacteas genasque purpureas pererrantes erinium globos deco-riter impeditos, alias antependulos, alias retropendulos, quorum splendore nimio fulgurante iam et ipsum lumen lucernae vacillabat; per umeros volatilis dei pinnae roseidae micanti flore candieant et quamvis alis quiescentibus exti-25 mae plumulae tenellae ac delicate tremule resultantes inquieta laseiviant; eeterum corpus glabellum atque luelentum et quale peperisse Venerem non paeniteret.

Ante lectuli pedes iacebat arcus et faretra et sagittae, magni dei propitia tela. Quae dum insatiabili animo Psyche, 30 satis et curiosa, rimatur atque pertrectat et mariti sui miratur arma, deponit unam de pharetra sagittam et puneto pollicis extremam aciem periclitabunda trementis etiam nunc articuli nisu fortiore pupugit altius, ut per summam cutem roraverint parvulae sanguinis rosei guttae. Sic ignara Psyche sponte in Amoris incidit amorem. Tunc magis magisque cupidine fraglans Cupidinis, prona in eum efflictim inhians, patulis ac petulantibus saviis festinanter ingestis 5 de somni mensura metuebat. Sed dum bono tanto percita saucia mente fluctuat, lucerna illa sive perfidia pessima sive invidia noxia sive quod tale corpus contingere et quasi basiare et ipsa gestiebat, evomuit de summa luminis sui stillam ferventis olei super umerum dei dexterum. Hem! 10 audax et temeraria lucerna et amoris vile ministerium, ipsum ignis totius deum aduris, cum te scilicet amator aliquis, ut diutius cupitis etiam nocte potiretur, primus invenerit.

Sic inustus exiluit deus visaque detectae fidei colluvie 15 prorsus ex osculis et manibus infeliciissimae coniugis tacitus avolavit. At Psyche statim resurgentis eius crure dextero manibus ambabus adrepto sublimis evectionis adpendix miseranda et per nubilas plagas penduli comitatus extrema consequia tandem fessa delabitur solo. 20

Nec deus amator humi iacentem deserens involavit proximam cypressum deque eius alto cacumine sic eam graviter commotus adfatur “Ego quidem, simplicissima Psyche, parentis meae Veneris praeceptorum immemor, quae te miseri extremique hominis devinetam cupidine infimo ma-25 trimonio addici iusserat, ipse potius amator advolavi tibi. Sed hoc feci leviter, scio, et praeclarus ille sagittarius ipse me telo meo percussi teque coniugem meam feci, ut bestia scilicet tibi viderer et ferro caput excideres meum, quod istos amatores tuos oculos gerit. 30

gliae tuae tam perniciosi magisterii dabunt actutum mihi poenas, te vero tantum fuga mea punivero.” Et cum termino sermonis pinnis in altum se proripuit.

Psyche vero humi prostrata et, quantum visi poterat, 5 volatus mariti prospiciens extremis affligebat lamentationibus animum. Sed ubi remigio plumae raptum maritum proceritas spatii fecerat alienum, per proximi fluminis marginem praecipitem sese dedit. Sed mitis fluvius in honorem dei scilicet, qui et ipsas aquas urere consuevit, 10 metuens sibi, confestim eam innoxio volumine super ripam florentem herbis exposuit. Tunc forte Pan deus rusticus iuxta supercilium amnis sedebat complexus Echo montanam deam eamque voculas omnimas edocens reccinere, proxime ripam vago pastu lasciviuunt comam fluvii tondentes capellae. 15 Hireuosus deus sauciam Psychen atque defectam, utcumque casus eius non inscius, clementer ad se vocatam sic permulcet verbis lenientibus “Puella scitula, sum quidem rusticus et upilio, sed senectutis prolixae beneficio multis experimentis instructus.

20 “Verum si recte coniecto, quod profecto prudentes viri divinationem autumant, ab isto titubante et saepius vaccillante vestigio deque nimio pallore corporis et assiduo spiritu, immo et ipsis maerentibus oculis tuis, amore nimio laboras. Ergo mihi ausulta nec te rursus praecipitio vel ullo mortis 25 accessitae genere perimas. Luctum desine et pone maerorem precibusque potius Cupidinem deorum maximum percole et utpote adolescentem delicatum luxuriosumque blandis obsequiis promere.”

Sic locuto deo pastore nulloque sermone reddito, sed 30 adorato tantum numine salutari Psyche pergit ire. Sed cum aliquam multum viae laboranti vestigio pererrasset, insecio quodam trainite iam die labente accedit quandam civitatem, in qua regnum maritus unius sororis eius optinebat.

Qua re cognita Psyche nuntiari praesentiam suam sorori desiderat; mox inducta mutuis amplexibus alternae salutationis expletis percontanti causas adventus sui sic incipit: 5 “Meministi consilium vestrum, scilicet quo mihi suasistis ut bestiam, quae mariti mentito nomine mecum quiescebat, prius quam ingluvie voraci me misellam hauriret, ancipi novacula peremerem. Set cum primum, ut aequa placuerat, conscientia lumine vultus eius aspexi, video mirum divinumque 10 prorsus spectaculum, ipsum illum deae Veneris filium, ipsum inquam Cupidinem, leni quiete sopitum. Ac dum tanti boni spectaculo percita et nimia voluptatis copia turbata fruendi laborarem inopia, easu scilicet pessumo lucerna fervens oleum rebullivit in eius umerum. 15

Necdum sermonem Psyche finierat; illa vesanae libidinis et invidiae noxiae stimulis agitata, vafre concinnato mendacio fallens maritum, quasi de morte parentum aliquid 25 conperisset, statim navem ascendit et ad illum scopulum protinus pergit et quamvis alio flante vento, caeca spe tamen inhians, “Accipe me,” dicens, “Cupido, dignam te coniugem et tu, Zephyre, suscipe dominam” saltu se maximo praecipitem dedit. 30

dissipatis et proinde, ut merebatur, laceratis visceribus suis alitibus bestiisque obvium ferens pabulum interiit.

Nec vindictae sequentis poena tardavit. Nam Psyche rursus errabundo gradu pervenit ad civitatem aliam, in qua 5 pari modo soror morabatur alia. Nec setius et ipsa fallacie germanitatis inducta et in sororis sceleratas nuptias aemula festinavit ad scopulum inque simile mortis exitium cecidit.

Interim, dum Psyche quaesitioni Cupidinis intenta 10 pulos circumibat, ille vulnere lucernae dolens in ipso thalamo matris iacens ingemebat. Tunc avis peralba illa gavia, quae super fluctus marinos pinnis natat, demergit sese propere ad Oceani profundum gremium.

Ibi commodum Venerem lavantem natantemque propter 15 assistens indicat: adustum filium eius, gravi vulneris dolore maerentem, dubium salutis iacere iamque per cunctorum ora populorum rumoribus conviciisque variis omnem Veneris familiam male audire, quod ille quidem montano scortatu, tu vero marino natatu secesseritis ac per hoc non 20 voluptas ulla, non gratia, non lepos, sed incompta et agrestia et horrida cuncta sint, non nuptiae coniugales, non amicitiae sociales, non liberum caritates, sed enormis eluvies et squalentium foederum insuave fastidium.

Haec illa verbosa et satis curiosa avis in auribus Veneris 25 fili lacerans existimationem ganniebat. At Venus irata solidum exclamat repente "Ergo iam ille bonus filius meus habet amicam aliquam? Prome agedum, quae sola mihi servis amanter, nomen eius, quae puerum ingenuum et investem sollicitavit, sive illa de Nympharum populo seu 30 de Horarum numero seu de Musarum choro vel de mearum Gratiarum ministerio."

Nec loquax illa conticuit avis, sed "Nescio," inquit,

“domina; puto puellam — si probe memini, Psyches nomine dicitur — eum efflicte cupere.”

Tunc indignata Venus exclamavit vel maxime: “Psychen ille meae formae succubam, mei nominis aemulam si vere diligit, nimirum illud incrementum lenam me putavit, cuius 5 monstratu puellam illam cognosceret.”

Haec quiritans properiter emergit e mari suumque protinus aureum thalamum petit et reperto, sicut audierat, aegroto pueru iam inde a foribus quam maxime boans “Honesta,” inquit, “haec et natalibus nostris bonaeque tuae 10 frugi congruentia, ut primum quidem tuae parentis, immo dominae praecepta calcares nec sordidis amoribus inimicam meam cruciares, verum etiam hoc aetatis puer tuis licentiosis et immaturis iungeres amplexibus, ut ego nurum scilicet tolerarem inimicam?

“Sed utique praesumis nugo et corruptor et inamabilis te solum generosum nec me iam per aetatem posse concipere. Velim ergo scias multo te meliorem filium alium me genitaram, immo ut contumeliam magis sentias, aliquem de meis adoptaturam vernulis eique donaturam istas pinnas et flamas et arcum et ipsas sagittas et omnem meam supellectilem, quam tibi non ad hos usus dederam; nec enim de patris tui bonis ad instructionem istam quicquam concessum est. Sed male prima pueritia inductus es et acutas manus habes et maiores tuos irreverenter pulsasti totiens et ipsam 25 matrem tuam, me inquam ipsam, parricida denudas cotidie et percussisti saepius et quasi viduam utique contemnis nec vitricum tuum fortissimum illum maximumque bellatorem metuis. Quidni? Cui saepius in angorem mei paelicatus puellas propinare consuesti. Sed iani faxo te lusus huius 30 paeniteat et sentias acidias et amaras istas nuptias.

“Sed nunc iurisui habita quid agam? Quo me conferam?

Quibus modis stelionem istum cohibeam? Petamne auxilium ab inimica mea Sobrietate, quam propter huius ipsius luxuriam offendi saepius? At rusticae squalentisque feminae conloquium prorsus horresco. Nec tamen vindictae 5 solacium undeunde spernendum est.

Sic effata foras sese proripit infesta et stomachata biles Venerias. Sed iam protinus Ceres et Iuno continentur 15 visamque vultu tumido quaesiere, cur truci supercilio tantam venustatem micantium oculorum coerceret. At illa “Oportune,” inquit, “ardenti prorsus isto meo pectori volentiam scilicet perpetraturaे venitis. Sed totis, oro, vestris viribus Psycheen illam fugitivam volaticam mihi 20 requirite. Nec enim vos utique domus meae famosa fabula et non dicendi filii mei facta latuerunt.”

Tunc illae non ignarae, quae gesta sunt, palpare Veneris iram saevientem sic adortae: “Quid tale, domina, deliquit tuus filius, ut animo pervicaci voluptates illius impugnes et, 25 quam ille diligit, tu quidem perdere gestias? Quod autem, oramus, isti crimen, si puellae lepidae libenter adratis? An ignoras eum masculum et iuvenem esse vel certe iam quot sit annorum, obliterata es? An, quod aetatem portat bellule, puer tibi semper videtur? Mater autem tu et praeterea 30 cordata mulier filii tui lusus semper explorabis curiose et in eo luxuriem culpabis et amores revinees et tuas artes tuasque delicias in formonso filio reprehendes? Quis autem te, deum, quis hominum patietur passim cupidines populis disseminantem, cum tuae domus amores amare coerceas et vitiorum muliebrium publicam praecludas officinam?"

Sic illae metu sagittarum patrocinio gratioso Cupidini, quamvis absenti, blandiebantur. Sed Venus indignata ridicule tractari suas iniurias praeversis illis alterorsus concito gradu pelago viam capessit.

Interea Psyche variis iactabatur discursibus, dies noctesque mariti vestigationibus intenta et quanto magis inquieta animo, tanto cupidior iratum licet, si non uxoriis blanditiis lenire, certe servilibus precibus propitiare.

Et prospecto templo quodam in ardui montis vertice "Unde autem," inquit, "scio, an istie meus degat dominus?" Et ilico dirigit citatum gradum, quem defectum prorsus adsiduis laboribus spes incitabat et votum. Iamque 15 naviter emensis celsioribus iugis pulvinaribus sese proximam intulit.

Videt spicas frumentarias in acervo et alias flexiles in corona et spicas hordei. Erant et falces et operae messoriae mundus omnis, sed cuncta passim iacentia et incuria confusa et, ut solet aestu, laborantium manibus proiecta. Haec singula Psyche curiose dividit et discretim remota rite componit, rata scilicet nullius dei fana et caerimonias neclegere se debere, sed omnium benivolam misericordiam corrogare.

Haec eam sollicite seduloque curantem Ceres alma deprehendit et longum exclamat protinus: "Ain, Psyche miseranda? Totum per orbem Venus anxia disquisitione tuum vestigium furens animi requirit teque ad extremum supplicium expetit et totis numinis sui viribus ultionem 30 flagitat; tu vero rerum mearum tutelam nunc geris et aliud quiequam cogitas nisi de tua salute?"

Tunc Psyche pedes eius advoluta et uberi fletu rigans deae vestigia humumque verrens erinibus suis multiiugis precibus editis veniam postulabat: “Per ego te frugiferam tuam dexteram istam deprecor, per laetificas 5 messium caerimonias, per tacita secreta cistarum et per famulorum tuorum draconum pinnata curricula et glebae Siculae sulcamina et currum rapacem et terram tenacem et inluminarum Proserpinae nuptiarum demeacula et luminosarum filiae inventionum remeacula et cetera, quae 10 silentio tegit Eleusinis Atticae sacrarium, miserandae Psyches animae, supplicis tuae, subsiste. Inter istam spicarum congeriem patere vel pauculos dies delitescam, quoad deae tantae saeviens ira spatio temporis mitigetur vel certe meae vires diutino labore fessae quietis inter- 15 vallo leniantur.”

Suscipit Ceres: “Tuis quidem lacrimosis precibus et commoveor et opitulari cupio, sed cognatae meae, cum qua etiam foedus antiquum amicitiae colo, bonae praeterea feminae, malam gratiam subire nequeo. Decede 20 itaque istis aedibus protinus et quod a me retenta custoditaque non fueris, optimi consule.”

Contra spem suam repulsa Psyche et afflita dupli maestitia iter retrorsum porrigens inter subsitae convallis sublucidum lucum prospicit fanum sollerti fabrica structum 25 nec ullam vel dubiam spei melioris viam volens omittere, sed adire cuiuscumque dei veniam, sacratis foribus proximat. Videt dona pretiosa et lacinias auro litteratas ramis arborum postibusque suffixas, quae cum gratia facti nomen deae, cui fuerant dicata, testabantur.

30 Tunc genu nixa et manibus aram tepentem amplexa detersis ante lacrimis sic adprecatur: “Magni Iovis germana et coniuga, sive tu Sami, quae sola partu vagituque et alimonia tua gloriatur, tenes vetusta delubra, sive celsae Carthaginis, quae te virginem vectura leonis caelo commantem percolit, beatas sedes frequentas, seu prope ripas Inachi, qui te iam nuptam Tonantis et reginam dearum memorat, inclitis Argivorum praesides moenibus, quam cunctus 5 oriens Zygiam veneratur et omnis occidens Lucinam appellat, sis meis extremis casibus Iuno Sospita meque in tantis exanclatis laboribus defessam imminentis periculi metu libera. Quod sciam, soles praegnatibus pericitantibus ultro subvenire.”

Ad istum modum supplicanti statim sese Iuno cum totius sui numinis augusta dignitate praesentat et protinus “Quam vellem,” inquit, “per fidem nutum meum precibus tuis accommodare. Sed contra voluntatem Veneris, nurus meae, quam filiae semper dilexi loco, praestare me pudor 15 non sinit. Tunc etiam legibus, quae servos alienos perfugas invitis dominis vetant suscipi, prohibeor.”

Isto quoque fortunae naufragio Psyche perterrita nec indipisci iam maritum volatilem quiens, tota spe salutis deposita, sic ipsa suas cogitationes consuluit: “Iam quae 20 possunt alia meis aerumnis temptari vel adhiberi subsidia, cui nec dearum quidem, quamquam volentium, potuerunt prodesse suffragia? Quo rursum itaque tantis laqueis inclusa vestigium porrigam quibusque tectis vel etiam tenebris abscondita magnae Veneris inevitabiles 25 oculos effugiam? Quin igitur masculum tandem sumis animum et cassae speculae renuntias fortiter et ultroneam te dominae tuae reddis et vel sera modestia saevientes impetus eius mitigas? Qui scias, an etiam, quem diu quaeritas, illic in domo matris repperias?” Sic ad du-30 bium obsequium, immo ad certum exitium praeparata, principium futurae secum meditabatur obsecrationis.

At Venus terrenis remediis inquisitionis abnuens caelum petit. Iubet instrui currum, quem ei Vulcanus aurifex subtili fabrica studiose poliverat et ante thalami rudimentum nuptiale munus obtulerat, limae tenuantis detrimento 5 conspicuum et ipsius auri damno pretiosum.

De multis, quae circa cubiculum dominae stabulant, procedunt quattuor candidae columbae et hilaris incessibus pietate colla torquentes iugum gemmeum subeunt susceptaque domina laetae subvolant. Currum deae prosequentes 10 gannitu constrepenti laseiviant passerem et ceterae, quae dulce cantitant, aves melleis modulis suave resonantes adventum deae pronuntiant. Cedunt nubes et Caelum filiae panditur et summus aether eum gaudio suscepit deam, nec obvias aquilas vel accipitres rapaces pertimescit magnae 15 Veneris canora familia.

Tune se protinus ad Iovis regias arces dirigit et petitu superbo, Mercuri, dei vocalis, operae necessariam usuram postulat. Nec rennuit Iovis caerulum supereilium. Tune ovans ilico, comitante etiam Mercurio, Venus caelo demeat 20 eique sollicite serit verba : “ Frater Areadi, seis nempe sororem tuam Venerem sine Mercuri praesentia nil unquam fecisse nec te praeterit utique, quanto iam tempore delitescentem ancillam nequiverim repperire. Nil ergo superest quam tuo praeconio praemium investigationis publicitus 25 edicere.

“ Fac ergo mandatum matures meum et indicia, qui possit agnoscere, manifeste designes, ne, si quis oecultationis illicitae crimen subierit, ignorantiae se possit excusatione defendere ”; et simul dicens libellum ei porrigit, ubi Psyches nomen 30 continebatur et cetera. Quo facto protinus domum secessit.

Nec Mercurius omisit obsequium. Nam per omnium ora populorum passim discurrens sie mandatae praedicationis munus exsequebatur: “Si quis a fuga retrahere vel occultam demonstrare poterit fugitivam regis filiam, Veneris ancillam, nomine Psychen, conveniat retro metas Murtias Mercurium praedicatorem, accepturus indicivae nomine ab ipsa Venere septem savia suavia et unum blandientis adpulsu linguae 5 longe mellitum.”

Ad hunc modum pronuntiante Mercurio tanti praemii cupidio certatim omnium mortalium studium adrexerat. Quae res nunc vel maxime sustulit Psyches omnem cunctationem. Iamque fores ei dominae proximanti occurrit una 10 de famulitione Veneris nomine Consuetudo statimque, quantum maxime potuit, exclamat: “Tandem, ancilla nequissima, dominam habere te seire coepisti? An pro cetera morum tuorum temeritate istud quoque nescire te fingis, quantos labores circa tuas inquisitiones sustinuerimus? Sed bene, 15 quod meas potissimum manus incidisti et inter Orci caneros iam ipsos haesisti datura scilicet actutum tantae contumaciae poenas,” et audaciter in capillos eius inmissa manu trahebat eam nequaquam renitentem.

Quam ubi primum inductam oblatamque sibi conspexit 20 Venus, latissimum cachinnum extollit et qualem solent furenter irati, caputque quatiens et ascalpens aurem dexteram “Tandem,” inquit, “dignata es soerum tuam salutare? An potius maritum, qui tuo vulnere periclitatur, interviseri venisti? Sed esto secura, iam enim excipiam te, 25 ut bonam nurum condeceret”; et “Ubi sunt,” inquit, “Sollicitudo atque Tristities, ancillae meae?”

Quibus intro vocatis torquendam tradidit eam. At illae sequentes erile praeceptum Psychen misellam flagellis afflictam et ceteris tormentis excruciatam iterum dominae 30 conspectui reddunt. Tunc rursus sublato risu Venus “Et ecce,” inquit, “nobis turgidi ventris sui lenocinio commovet miserationem, unde me praeclara subole aviam beatam scilicet faciat. Felix vero ego, quae in ipso aetatis meae flore vocabor avia et vilis ancillae filius nepos Veneris audiet. Quanquam inepta ego frustra filium dicam; impares enim 5 nuptiae et praeterea in villa sine testibus et patre non consentiente factae, legitimae non possunt videri ac per hoc spurius iste nascetur, si tamen partum omnino perferre te patiemur.”

His editis involat eam vestemque plurifariam diloricat 10 capilloque discesso et capite conquassato graviter affligit et accepto frumento et hordeo et milio et papavere et cicere et lente et faba commixtisque acervatim confusis in unum grumulum sic ad illam: “Videris enim mihi tam deformis ancilla nullo alio, sed tantum sedulo ministerio amatores 15 tuos promerer; iam ergo et ipsa frugem tuam periclitabor. Discerne seminum istorum passivam congeriem singulisque granis rite dispositis atque seiugatis ante istam vesperam opus expeditum approbato mihi.”

Sic assignato tantorum seminum cumulo ipsa cenae nup- 20 tiali concessit. Nec Psyche manus admolitur inconditae illi et inextricabili moli, sed immanitate praecepti consternata silens obstupescit. Tunc formicula illa parvula atque ruricola, certa difficultatis tantae laborisque, miserta contubernialis magni dei socrusque saevitiam execrata, discurrens 25 naviter convocat corrogatque cunctam formicarum accolaram classem: “Miseremini terrae omniparentis agiles alumnae, miseremini et Amoris uxori, puellae lepidae, perielitanti prompta velocitate succurrite.”

Ruunt aliae superque aliae sepedum populorum undae 30 summoque studio singulae granatim totum digerunt acervum separatinque distributis dissitisque generibus e conspectu perniciter abeunt.

Sed initio noctis e convivio nuptiali vino madens et fraglans balsama Venus remeat totumque revincta corpus rosis micantibus visaque diligentia miri laboris: "Non tuum," inquit, "nequissima, nec tuarum manuum istud opus, sed illius, cui tuo, immo et ipsius malo placuisti"; 5 et frusto cibarii panis ei projecto cubitum facessit. Interim Cupido solus interioris domus unici cubiculi custodia clausus coercebatur acriter, partim ne petulanti luxurie vulnus gravaret, partim ne cum sua cupita conveniret. Sic ergo distentis et sub uno tecto separatis amatoribus tetra 10 nox exanclata.

Sed Aurora commodum inequitante vocatae Psychae Venus infit talia. "Videsne illud nemus, quod fluvio praeterluentri ripisque longis attenditur, cuius imi gurgites vicinum fontem despiciunt? Oves ibi nitentes aurique co-15 lore florentes incustodito pastu vagantur. Inde de coma pretiosi velleris floccum mihi confestim quoquo modo quae- situm afferas censeo."

Perrexit Psyche volenter non obsequium quidem illa functura, sed requiem malorum praecipitio fluvialis rupis 20 habitura. Sed inde de fluvio musicae suavis nutricula leni crepitu dulcis aurae divinitus inspirata sic vaticinatur arundo viridis: "Psyche, tantis aerumnis exercita, neque tua miserrima morte meas sanctas aquas polluas nec vero istud horae contra formidabiles oves feras aditum, quoad de 25 solis fraglantia mutuatae calorem truci rabie solent efferi cornuque acuto et fronte saxea et non nunquam venenatis morsibus in exitium saevire mortalium; sed dum meridies solis sedaverit vaporem et pecua spiritus fluvialis serenitate conquieverint, poteris sub illa procerissima platano, quae 30 mecum simul unum fluentum bibit, latenter abscondere. Et cum primum mitigata furia laxaverint oves animum, percussis frondibus attigui nemoris lanosum aurum repperries, quod passim stirpibus convexis obhaerescit."

Sic arundo simplex et humana Psythen aegerrimam salutem suam docebat. Nec auscultatu inpaenitendo dili-5 genter instructa illa cessavit, sed observatis omnibus furatrina facilis flaventis auri mollitie congestum gremium Veneri reportat.

Nec tamen apud dominam saltem secundi laboris pericu-lum secundum testimonium meruit, sed contortis superciliis 10 subridens amarum sic inquit: "Nec me praeterit huius quoque facti auctor adulterinus. Sed iam nunc ego sedulo periclitabor an oppido forti animo singularique prudentia sis praedita. Videsne insistentem celsissimae illi rupi montis ardui verticem, de quo fontis atri fuscae defluunt 15 undae proxumaeque conceptaculo vallis inclusae Stygias inrigant paludes et rauca Cocytii fluenta nutriunt? Indidem mihi de summi fontis penita scaturrigine rorem rigentem hauritum ista confestim defer urnula." Sic aiens crustallo dedolatum vasculum, insuper ei graviora comminata, 20 tradidit.

At illa studiose gradum celerans montis extremum petit tumulum certe vel illic inventura vitae pessimae finem. Sed cum primum praedicti iugi conterminos locos appulit, videt rei vastae letalem difficultatem. Namque saxum immanni 25 magnitudine procerum et inaccessa salebritate lubricum mediis e faueibus lapidis fontes horridos evomebat, qui statim proni foraminis lacunis editi perque proclive delapsi et angusti canalis exarato contecti tramite proxumam convallem latenter incidebant.

30 Dextra laevaque cautibus cavatis prosperrunt et longa colla porrecti saevi dracones inconivae vigiliae luminibus addictis et in perpetuam lucem pupulis excubantibus. Iam-que et ipsae semet muniebant vocales aquae. Nam et “Discede” et “quid facis? vide” et “quid agis? Cave” et “fuge” et “peribis” subinde clamant. Sic impossibilitate ipsa mutata in lapidem Psyche, quamvis praesenti corpore, sensibus tamen aberat et inextricabilis periculi mole 5 prorsus obruta lacrumarum etiam extremo solacio carebat.

Nec Providentiae bonae graves oculos innocentis animae latuit aerumna. Nam supremi Iovis regalis ales illa repente propansis utrimque pinnis affuit rapax aquila memorque veteris obsequii, quo ducto Cupidinis Iovi pocillatorem Fry-10 gium substulerat, oportunam ferens opem deique numen in uxoris laboribus percolens alti culminis diales vias deserit et ob os puellae praevolans incipit: “At tu, simplex aliquin et expers rerum talium, sperasne te sanctissimi nec minus truculenti fontis vel unam stillam posse furari vel 15 omnino contingere? Diis etiam ipsique Iovi formidabiles aquas istas Stygias vel fando comperisti, quodque vos deieratis per numina deorum, deos per Stygis maiestatem solere? Sed cedo istam urnulam” et protinus adreptam complexamque festinat libratisque pinnarum nutantium 20 molibus inter genas saevientium dentium et trisulca vibamina draconum remigium dextra laevaque porrigens volentes aquas et, ut abiret innoxius, praestantes excipit, commentus ob iussum Veneris petere eique se praeministrare, quare paulo facilior adeundi fuit copia. Sic acceptam 25 cum gudio plenam urnulam Psyche Veneri citata rettulit.

Nec tamen nutum deae saevientis vel tune expiare potuit. Nam sic eam maiora atque peiora flagitia comminans appellat renidens exitiabile: “Iam tu quidem magna videris quaedam mihi et alta prorsus malefica, quae talibus prae-30 ceptis meis obtemperasti naviter. Sed adhuc istud, mea pupula, ministrare debebis. Sume istam pyxidem,” et dedit; “protinus usque ad inferos et ipsius Orci ferales penates te derige. Tunc conferen pyxidem Proserpinae: ‘Petit de te Venus,’ dicio, ‘modicum de tua mittas ei formositate vel ad unam saltem dieculam sufficiens. Nam 5 quod habuit, dum filium curat aegrotum, consumpsit atque contrivit omne.’ Sed haud immaturius redito, quia me necesse est indidem delitam theatrum deorum frequentare.”

Tunc Psyche vel maxime sensit ultimas fortunas suas et velamento reiecto ad promptum exitium sese compelli mani-10 feste comperit. Quidni? Quae suis pedibus ultro ad Tartarum manesque commeare cogeretur. Nec cunctata diutius pergit ad quamquam turrim praealtam, indidem sese datura praecipitem; sic enim rebatur ad inferos recte atque pulcherrime se posse descendere.

15 Sed turris prorumpit in vocem subitam et, “Quid te,” inquit, “praecipitem, o misella, quaeris extingue? Quidque iam novissimo periculo laborique isto temere succubis? Nam si spiritus corpore tuo semel fuerit seiugatus, ibis quidem profecto ad imum Tartarum, sed inde nullo pacto 20 redire poteris. Mihi ausulta. Lacedaemo Achaiae nobilis civitas non longe sita est; huius conterminam deviis abditam locis quaere Taenarum. Inibi spiraculum Ditis, et per portas liantes monstratur iter invium, cui te limine transmeato simul commiseris, iam canale directo perges ad ipsam 25 Orci regiam. Sed non hactenus vacua debebis per illas tenebras incedere, sed offas polentae mulso concretas ambabus gestare manibus, at in ipso ore duas ferre stipes.

“Iamque confecta bona parte mortiferae viae continaberis clandum asinum lignorum gerulum cum agasone simili, qui 30 te rogabit, accidentis sarcinae fusticulos aliquos porrigas ei, sed tu nulla voce deprompta tacita praeterito. Nec mora, cum ad flumen mortuum venies, cui praefectus Charon, pro-

tenus expetens portorium, sic ad ripam ulteriorem sutili cumba deducit commeantes. Ergo et inter mortuos avaritia vivit nec Charon ille vel Ditis pater, tantus deus, quicquam gratuito facit, set moriens pauper viaticum debet quaerere et aes si forte pre manu non fuerit, nemo eum expirare 5 patietur. Huic squalido seni dabis nauli nomine de stipibus, quas feres, alteram, sic tamen, ut ipse sua manu de tuo sumat ore.

“Nec setius tibi pigrum fluentum transmeanti quidam supernatans senex mortuus putris adtollens manus orabit, 10 ut eum intra navigium trahas, nec tu tamen inlicita adflectare pietate. Transito fluvio modicum te progressam textrices orabunt anus telam struentes manus paulisper accommodes, nec id tamen tibi contingere fas est. Nam haec omnia tibi et multa alia de Veneris insidiis orientur, ut 15 vel unam de manibus omittas offulam.

“Nec putas futile istud polentacium damnum leve; altera enim perdata, lux haec tibi prorsus denegabitur. Canis namque praegrandis, teriugo et satis ampio capite praeditus, immanis et formidabilis, tonantibus oblatrans faueibus mor- 20 tuos, quibus iam nil mali potest facere, frustra territando ante ipsum limen et atra atria Proserpinæ semper excubans servat vacuam Ditis domum. Hunc offrenatum unius offulae praeda facile praeteribis ad ipsamque protinus Proserpinam introibis, quae te comiter excipiet ac benigne, ut 25 et molliter assidere et prandium opipare suadeat sumere.

“Sed tu et humi reside et panem sordidum petitum esto, deinde nuntiato, quid adveneris, susceptoque quod offeretur rursus remeans canis saevitiam offula reliqua redime ac deinde avaro navitae data, quam reservaveras, stipe tran- 30 sitoque eius fluvio, recolens priora vestigia ad istum caelestium siderum redies chorum. Sed inter omnia hoc observandum praecipue tibi censeo ne velis aperire vel inspicere illam, quam feres, pyxidem vel omnino divinae formonsitatis abditum scrutari curiosius thensaurum."

Sic turris illa prospicua vaticinationis munus explicuit.
5 Nec morata Psyche pergit Taenarum sumptisque rite stipibus illis et offulis infernum decurrit meatum transitoque per silentium asinario debili et amnica stipe vectori data, neglecto supernatantis mortui desiderio et spretis textricum subdolis precibus et offulæ cibo sopita canis horrenda rabie 10 domum Proserpinæ penetrat.

Nec offerentis hospitae sedile delicatum vel cibum beatum amplexa, sed ante pedes eius residens humilis cibario pane contenta Veneriam pertulit legationem. Statimque secreto repletam conclusamque pyxidem suscepit et offulæ sequentis 15 fraude caninis latratibus obseratis residuaque navitae red-dita stipe longe vegetior ab inferis recurrit. Et repetita atque adorata candida ista luce, quanquam festinans obse-quium terminare, mentem capitur temeraria curiositate et “Ecce,” inquit, “inepta ego divinae formonsitatis gerula, 20 quae nec tantillum quidem indidem mihi delibo vel sic illi amatori meo formonso placitura,” et cum dicto reserat pyxidem.

Nec quicquam ibi rerum nec formonsitas ulla, sed infernus somnus ac vere Stygius, qui statim coperculo revelatus 25 invadit eam crassaque soporis nebula cunctis eius membris perfunditur et in ipso vestigio ipsaque semita conlapsam possidet. Et iacebat immobilis et nihil aliud quam dormiens cadaver.

Sed Cupido iam cicatrice solidâ revalescens nec diutinam 30 suæ Psychæ absentiam tolerans per altissimam cubiculi, quo cohibebatur, elapsus fenestram refectisque pennis aliquanta quiete longe velocius provolans Psychen accurrit suam detersoque somno curiose et rursum in pristinam pyxidis sedem recondito Psychen innoxio punctulo sagittae suae suscitat et "Ecce," inquit, "rursum perieras, misella, simili curiositate. Sed interim quidem tu provinciam, quae tibi matris meae praecepto mandata est, exsequere naviter, 5 cetera egomet videro." His dictis amator levis in pinnas se dedit, Psyche vero confestim Veneri munus reportat Proserpinæ.

Interea Cupido amore nimio peresus et aegra facie, matris suae repentinam sobrietatem pertimescens, ad armillum reddit 10 alisque pernicibus caeli penetrato vertice magno Iovi supplicat suamque causam probat.

Tunc Iuppiter prehensa Cupidinis buccula manuque ad os suum relata consaviat atque sic ad illum "Licet tu," inquit, "domine fili, numquam mihi concessu deum decretum serva- 15 ris honorem, sed istud pectus meum, quo leges elementorum et vices siderum disponuntur, convulneraris assiduis ictibus crebrisque terrenae libidinis foedaveris casibus contraque leges et ipsam Iuliam disciplinamque publicam turpibus adulteriis existimationem famamque meam laeseris in ser- 20 pentes, in ignes, in feras, in aves et gregalia pecua serenos vultus meos sordide reformando, at tamen modestiae meae memor quodque inter istas meas manus creveris, cuncta proficiam, dum tamen scias aemulos tuos cavere ac, si qua nunc in terris puella pœpollet pulcritudine, praesentis 25 beneficii vicem per eam mihi repensare te debere."

Sic fatus iubet Mercurium deos omnes ad contionem protinus convocare ac, si qui coetu caelestium defuisset, in poenam decem milium nummum conventum iri pronuntiare. Quo metu statim completo caelesti theatro pro sede sublimi 30 sedens procerus Iuppiter sic enuntiat: "Dei conscripti Musarum albo, adolescentem istum quod manibus meis alum-natus sim, profecto scitis omnes. Cuius primae inventutis caloratos impetus freno quodam coercendos existimavi; sat est cotidianis eum fabulis ob adulteria cunctasque corruptelas infamatum. Tollenda est omnis occasio et luxuria 5 puerilis nuptialibus pedicis alliganda. Puellam elegit et virginitate privavit; teneat, possideat, amplexus Psychen semper suis amoribus perfruatur.”

Et ad Venerem conlata facie “Nec tu,” inquit, “filia, quicquam contristere nec prosapiae tantae tuae statuque de 10 matrimonio mortali metuas. Iam faxo nuptias non impares, sed legitimas et iure civili congruas,” et illico per Mercurium arripi Psychen et in caelum perduci iubet. Porrecto am-brosiae poculo “Sume,” inquit, “Psyche, et immortalis esto nec umquam digredietur a tuo nexu Cupido, sed istae vobis 15 erunt perpetuae nuptiae.”

Nec mora, cum cena nuptialis affluens exhibetur. Ac-cumbebat summum torum maritus, Psychen gremio suo complexus. Sic et cum sua Iunone Iuppiter ac deinde per ordinem toti dei. Tunc poculum nectaris, quod vinum 20 deorum est, Iovi quidem suus pocillator ille rusticus puer, ceteris vero Liber ministrabat, Vulcanus cenam coquebat; Horae rosis et ceteris floribus purpurabant omnia, Gratiae spargebant balsama, Musae quoque canora personabant;
 Apollo cantavit ad citharam, Venus suavi musicae suppari
 25 gressu formonsa saltavit, scaena sibi sic concinnata, ut Musae quidem chorum canerent aut tibias inflarent, Saturus et Paniscus ad fistulam dicerent. Sic rite Psyche convenit in manum Cupidinis et nascitur illis maturo partu filia, quam Voluptatem nominamus.

I. TALE OF ARISTOMENES

(Apuleius, Metamorphoses, I, 5-19.)

Page 1. 1. cuiatis: archaic for cuias. sim: the story is narrated to Lucius by a commercial traveller (see Introduction, p. xxviii) as they are travelling together to Thessaly.

3. cauponarum: caupona is a retail shop. The buyer purchased these commodities wholesale to resell them at retail.

4. Comperto: ablative absolute; the substantive is the following infinitive clause.

6. distrahi: "be disposed of." The verb here has the general meaning of "sell," not the specific meaning, "sell at retail."

7. praestinaturus: praestinare is ante- and post-classical for emere.

9. negotiator magnarius: "wholesale dealer."

11. commodum: "just," adverb modifying orientē.

13. palliastro: "ragged cloak." Apuleian; note the force of the termination -astrum.

14. decernina: "outcasts"; literally, dead leaves or branches plucked from the living plant.

20. iuridici: "judge"; the word is used in the Digests of Justinian.

22. captivitatem: "blindness"; cf. the common phrases, capi oculis, auribus, membris, etc.

Page 2. 1. suis sibi: sibi emphasizes the possessive adjective pronoun suis; "by her own parents." She is forced by her parents to change the sorrow of the family to joy, by a new marriage.

2. cum summo dedecore nostro: that is, for allowing him to be in such a plight.

3. ne: the emphatic particle equivalent to immo; "you are indeed ignorant."

5. utili centunculo: "his patchwork robe."

6. ab umbilico pube tenus: freely, "from the waist down." The prepositional phrase modifies cetera corporis.

11. diutius: "still further."

12. effeci sequatur: efficio may in classical prose be followed by a substantive clause of purpose or result. It is only in poetry, however, that the ut may be omitted. laciniis: post-classical for vestibus.

14. quod unctui quod tersui: datives of purpose; supply erat.

15. curato: ablative absolute for the normal curatum.

18. adlubentia: Apuleian for voluntas. scitum etiam cavillum: "clever railing too."

19. intimida: this adjective does not occur elsewhere; cf. adverb intimide.

23. secundum: "in pursuit of"; "following"; equivalent here to propter.

24. mense decimo ibidem attentus: "after being detained there ten months."

25. modico prius: sc. tempore; "just before."

26. per transitum: "en passant." obiturus: may mean either "to visit" or "to view."

29. admodum scitulam: "quite attractive."

32. nimis quam: the intensive adverb for the classical perquam, nimis being in this sense archaic.

Page 3. 1. ut cum illa adquievi: "from the very time that I was entertained by her."

2. ab unico congressu: "as a result of this one meeting."

4. operulas: "earnings," post-classical.

5. saccariam: saccarius, "ones who carrie sacks"; saccaria, the labor itself. The latter is found only here and is probably an adjective with ellipsis of ars.

10. scortum scorteum: note play on words, "wrinkled harlot." Scorteum, "like leather"; cf. post-classical meaning of scortum, "leather."

11. digitum a pollice proximum: also known as the index or salutaris. The next finger is known as the medius; the ring finger was called minimo proximus or medicinalis.

12. circumspiciens tutamenta sermonis: "looking around to see whether it was safe to speak."

15. ain tandem: ain = aisne: "What do you mean, pray?"

16. quid mulieris: "what kind of woman?"

21. aulaeum: the large curtain of the stage; siparium, the small curtain raised between the scenes.

22. cedo: "speak"; literally, "here," "give." An archaic imperative.

25. Aethiopes utriusque : "both tribes of the Aethiopians." Aethiopia was divided into eastern and western. Cf. Hor. Od. 2, 2, 11, uterque Poenus.

26. Anticthones : "antipodes." She could influence the most out of the way people. folia : "trifles"; practically synonymous with nugae.

30. adventores : "customers." roncis : "croakings"; also spelled rhonchis.

31. de foro : prepositional phrase modifying alium, "a lawyer."

Page 4. 1. nocerentur : note the very rare personal passive construction. Cf. Hor. Epist. 1, 5, 21. publicitus : ante- and post-classical for publice.

2. die altera : meaning after the deliberation.

4. virtutibus : "by the efficacy" or "potency."

5. unius dieculae . . . indutiis : "truce of one short day"; the time Medea was allowed by Creon to remain, after he had decided to send her away.

6. coronalibus : according to one account the consuming poison was smeared on the bride's crown; according to another, upon her robe.

7. in scroberem : "on," that is, "over a trench."

8. suis sibi : see note, p. 2, l. 1.

9. numinum : that is, of the nether divinities she invoked.

15. coetus illius : i.e. of those who had condemned her.

20. novo hospiti : i.e. for the occupant of the house she was carrying off and consequently for the house itself.

27. noctis antelucio : antelucio is an adverb; noctis a genitive depending thereon; "that part of night just before dawn."

32. grabatulo . . . adgesto : "drawing up and propping my bed well against the door."

Page 5. 1. super eum me recipio : "I stretched myself upon it."

3. commodum quieveram : "I had just gone to sleep."

10. tunc . . . provenire : "I then experienced that not uncommon revulsion of feeling"; naturalitus post-classical for naturaliter.

13. testudo factus : the bed formed his shell, as it were.

19. Catamitus : the Latin transliteration of Ganymede.

28. sero : "too late," as usual. The passage, however, well brings out the real meaning of sero, "late" rather than "too late," for she adds immo statim, immo vero iam nunc.

32. quatior: "my very vitals quake with fear"; middle force of passive.

16. rebulliret: as active verb.

18. cave . . . transeas: "see to it that thou, born in the sea, crosseth no running stream."

21. resurgunt: they had been knocked down. resident: "settle into the sockets." It will be remembered that the cardo was a peg-and-socket arrangement.

22. repagula: "bars." pessuli: "pins."

26. Quid me fiet: me, it will be remembered, is ablative in this idiom.

28. proclamares saltem suppetiatum: "at least you should have called for aid." Suppetiatum is the supine of suppetior, an Apuleian word. In classical style the supine in um is restricted to its ordinary use and to the phrases formed with dare, nuptum, venum, pessum.

31. crudelitas: abstract for concrete. vel propter indicium: "even to bear testimony to the crime." Sceleris is in double construction, being felt with arbitro also.

32. illo: adverb, i.e. ad mortem.

2. anteluculo: adverb; cf. antelucio, p. 4, l. 27.

3. licet: equivalent to quamquam or in post-Ciceronian Latin quamvis; to be construed with trepido vestigio.

4. subdita clavi: "inserting the key"; literally, placing the key beneath, because one form of the Roman key consisted of a hook which caught the bolt and raised or shot it. Cf. p. 20, l. 17, where the robber uses his arm in place of a clavis.

8. stabuli: "tavern," as frequently.

13. cucurbitae: in the sense of blockhead. Cf. the Greek term apocolocytosis used of Claudius.

15. de summa pauperie: the use of the preposition, approximating its use in the Romance languages, is noteworthy.

19. convectore: "fellow-traveller"; cf. use of verb reho, both in active and passive construction.

20. fugae mandes praesidium: "you are seeking safety in flight"; literally, "entrusting safety to flight."

23. esurientem me: the transitive use of this verb is rather rare.

Page 8. 2. intextus: this refers to the meshes of rope which served the purpose of the modern spring.

4. obdita: "fastened."

6. sublimatus: ante- and post-classical for sublimis.

12. exerte: equivalent to clare.

4. extrema somniasti: "have had awful dreams."

8. autumant: "affirm"; ante-classical.

14. iugulum istum: doleo with accusative of part affected is a late Latin construction. Genua, l. 16, is a similar construction.

23. vitalis color turbaverat: "he had become deadly pale."

28. crebritas . . . commeantium: "the great number as well of those travelling in the same direction."

30. satis detruncaverat: "had well punished the food."

32. radices: accusative following longe.

Page 10. 2. in colorem: the ordinary construction would be ablative of specification, but cf. the classical in altitudinem.

3. explere: middle with reflexive force. lacteo: "pure"; Hieron. Epist. 53, 1, Livius lacteo eloquentiae fonte manans.

4. opportus: note the spelling; from opperior, not operio.

6. poculum: "a drink."

8. patorem: "gap"; post-classical.

10. cernuat: ante- and post-classical for praecipitatur.

13. sempiterna: adverb; a poetical use of the neuter plural of the adjective.

16. ultroneum: late Latin for voluntarium.

II. DIOPHANES THE CHALDEAN

(Apuleius, Metamorphoses, II, 13-14.)

Page 11. 1. Nam: the following tale is related to Lucius by his Thessalian host, Milo.

2. donaret: the subject of the verb is Diophanes, a Chaldean or astrologer, of whom Lucius and Milo have been speaking.

4. electum destinasset: "had selected and determined."
5. centum denarium: centum is here used as an indeclinable noun, a construction seemingly not mentioned by the grammars. The earlier genitive form denarium is more common than denariorum. The same is true of the genitive form nummum.

- 7. lacinia: cf. note, p. 2, l. 12.
11. Quam olim: "how long ago?"
13. Commodum: see note, p. 5, l. 3.
18. necdum suus: "not yet quite himself."
19. incident: the classical construction requires in and the accusative, or the dative.
21. regimine: poetical for gubernaculo.

Page 12. 4. mercedi destinaverat: "had intended to pay."

7. circumsecus: "around about"; only found in Apuleius.

III. TELYPHRON'S TALE OF THE WITCHES

(Apuleius, Metamorphoses, II, 21-30.)

Page 13. 1. Pupillus: he was still a minor. ego: Telyphron tells the following tale at the request of Byrrena, a lady who is entertaining Lucius at an elaborate dinner party.

- 2. provinciae: Achaea.
3. fuscis avibus: the adjectives malus or sinister are more commonly used in this connection.
5. fomenta: "remedies."
8. liceretur: "make a bid," from liceor.
10. oppido: the colloquial adverb.
11. Thessaliae: locative; a poetical use.
12. demorsicant: Apuleian for demordent.
13. supplementa: "ingredients."
15. perpetem: perpes is ante- and post-classical for perpetuus.
16. exertis: Apuleian for apertis.

Page 14. 3. si qui: for the more common si quis.

- 5. desecto: ablative of instrument with sarcire.
8. cedo: see note, p. 3, l. 22.
9. Mille: here construed as noun, a construction generally restricted to ante- and post-classical Latin; for nummum see note, p. 11, l. 5.
deponentur: "will be set aside."

- 14. oculeum: adjective agreeing with hominem.
23. quam expergite: "how wide awake," introducing an indirect question.
24. corollarium: "gratuity."
26. sic placito: "with this understanding"; ablative absolute.
29. fleto: ablative absolute; cf. note, p. 2, l. 15.
30. concepta de industria: "carefully formulated"; the exact words are quoted below.

- 8. discus: "a plate," late Latin.
10. partes: equivalent to reliquiae cenarum. totiugis: from totiugus, "so many," an Apuleian word.
16. ad cadaveris solacium: "to keep the corpse company."
19. concubia altiora: "deeper night when all men are asleep."
nox intempesta: "the dead of night."
20. oppido: modifying cumulatior with the force of multo; cf. note, p. 13, l. 10.
25. nostri: for the more usual nostrum. vim praesentariam: "the effect of my strength."
27. exterminatur: "banishes itself from the room," with middle force.
30. quis: for the more exact uter.

- 2. expergitus: the word used in ordinary prose is experrectus.
4. quae cuncta convenerant: this clause, mistranslated in our opinion by Butler and in the Loeb Library, means "all of which had been agreed upon," or, more freely, "with reference to all of which the agreement had been made," that is, in the presence of the witnesses; cf. the enumeration on p. 14, l. 31, seq.

8. actorem: "steward."
14. in aureos: the classical construction would be ablative of cause, but is influenced by the preceding in gaudium; cf. note, p. 7, l. 15.

ventilabam: "was jingling."

15. attonus: "beside myself."
23. Adonei: Helm reads Aonii. musici vatis Pipleii: "the musical bard of Pimpla"; Orpheus is meant.

31. genialem: "luxuriant."

18. postliminio mortis: "after death"; postliminio as adverbial ablative in the sense of "after" or "again" is Apuleian; cf. note, p. 74, l. 1.

19. pedesque: Greek accusative with inductum; "his feet covered."

20. baxeis: rare ante- and post-classical word for a kind of woven sandal or soletā. adusque: adverb modifying deraso; "entirely shaved."

25. adyta Coptica: the shrine of Isis at Coptos.

26. arcana Memphytica: "the mysteries of Memphis." sistra Phariaca: "the sistra of Pharos."

32. obversus: obversus with simple accusative is Apuleian.

5. lapidem: the accusative with insisto in place of the dative or the ablative is poetic.

6. arbitrabar: "was observing"; ante- and post-classical meaning. salubris vena pulsari: "the pulse of life began to beat"; for the passive cf. the expression renae morentur.

9. momentariae: post-classical for brevis.

17. adorat: archaic for alloquitur. addictus: a legal term, "bound over to," "given over to."

18. mancipavi: also a legal term, "gave into the hand."

19. praesentem audaciam: "ever ready andacity."

20. altercat: ante- and post-classical for altercatur.

24. distinxit: "ended"; in this sense Apuleian.

29. exortam: cf. note, p. 12, l. 16. cantatrices: Apuleian in this sense. exuvias: "the garb of flesh which I had cast off."

30. reformatae saepius: "having repeatedly changed their forms."

6. ultroneus: equivalent here to the classical ultro.

9. ut . . . convenient: the Helm text reads convenissent.

11. examussim: modifies adplicant; "fitted perfectly to him."

IV. THE ROBBER'S TALE

(Apuleius, Metamorphoses, IV, 9-21.)

Page 20. 1. accessimus: the following story is narrated by a member of a robber band, which after a rather unsuccessful venture in Boeotia has returned and joined in their lair the band which had captured Lucius, who stands by and hears the following account. heptapylos: a Greek word ; "of the seven gates."

5. munerum publicorum : "public games."

8. incubabat : the accusative with the verb is Apuleian.

11. Nec mora, cum : "immediately" ; a favorite expression with Apuleius.

12. praestolamur : with the dative case and the force of praesto esse ; the use is archaic.

16. clavi immittendae foramen : see note, p. 7, l. 4.

17. gestiebat : note how in Apuleius the meaning of this verb approaches that of an intensified conabatur.

19. gradum et obnixum silentium : note the collocation of the abstract and concrete, in the style of Tacitus.

22. patibulatum : "crucified" ; archaic.

4. opprimendi nostri : "of being caught ourselves."

5. e re nata : prepositional phrase modifying remedium ; "that arose from the necessity," or "as the circumstances required."

8. temperato : "carefully directed."

11. religionis . . . tumultu : "perturbation aroused by our obligation."

18. supervivere : rhetorical question in indirect discourse ; hence infinitive.

20. spontale : post-classical for voluntarium.

27. minus saevum adducere : "to draw a more kindly nod from fortune" ; minus, the reading of Bluemner, for the meaningless eum, is adopted.

8. astu : sc. anus.

11. certus erroris : "informed of his mistake."

16. attonitum: the usual meaning of the word is "stunned." It seems here to have the meaning of "absorbed."

20. imitus: post-classical for funditus.

28. fortunae: genitive following dignus, a poetic construction.

30. multiiugi: cf. totiugis, p. 15, l. 10.

Page 23. 1. perdita securitate: "beyond hope of redemption"; the construction may be regarded as ablative of characteristic or possibly ablative absolute. suis epulis: "with the feast they furnished."

2. configilis machinae sublicae: "beams that formed a contrivance that could be joined together"; configilis is Apuleian. turres . . . nexibus: "towers built with several platforms."

3. ad instar circumforaneae domus: "like a movable house." floridae picturae: "gayly painted"; the expression is best disposed of as an appositive with turres.

4. decora . . . receptacula: "fitting cages to contain the beasts that were to appear in the hunt."

6. forinsecus: literally, "from without"; seems to be used here with the force of peregre. generosa . . . funera: "noble tombs"; that is, the beasts who were to devour the criminals.

9. totis utcumque: "with practically all." Cf. p. 26, l. 24 and note. immanis ursae: "of huge bears"; generic singular.

20. quos: constructio ad sensum.

21. ventri: dative with supplementa.

23. accurrunt: the classical construction requires ad or in. e re nata: a favorite expression with Apuleius; see note, p. 21, l. 5.

26. cibo: dative. The more common classical prose construction is, perhaps, ad and the accusative.

31. examurgatur: "was being cured"; an Apuleian word.

32. instanti . . . sacramentum: "make the following solemn agreement for our impending campaign."

8. ancipitis . . . aleam: "took the risk of playing the dangerous rôle."

9. habili corio: in would ordinarily be used in prose unless the construction be viewed as instrumental ablative. Mollitie is ablative of cause with tractabili.

10. sarcimine: an Apuleian word, equivalent to sutura.

16. praestinatae: the classical word is emptae.

19. Sciscitati: "having learned by questioning."

20. proditus: ordinarily thus used of plants; equivalent to ortus.

27. ut ipse habebat: "as he was constituted," i.e. as he was naturally generous; se habere is the more common idiom.

29. ad repentinās visionēs: "to satisfy immediately their eyes."

30. mirabundi bestiam: adjectives in -bundus have so nearly the force of present participles that in Apuleius they often take an object.

31. satis callenter curiosos aspectus: "very cunningly prying gaze."

Page 25. 5. fraglantia: this is the usual spelling in Apuleius, both for the noun and all forms of the verb, instead of flagro.

9. conterminum: poetical for vicinum.

11. incubare: the classical construction of this, the literal meaning of the verb, requires in with the ablative or the dative; cf. the figurative use, p. 20, l. 8 and note.

22. valefacto: ablative absolute with subject unexpressed.

30. velut expilationis vadimonium: "as a guaranty of our purpose to plunder the house."

32. examussim: "precisely"; archaic. latrocinali: "suitable for robbery."

6. Quo . . . violentia: "and when we had immediately broken this open by the force of our united band."

16. visitata: ante- and post-classical in this sense.

21. vel divinitus: "or else by divine will."

23. premens obnixum silentium: "maintaining strict silence."

24. utcumque cunctis: "to all, whoever they might be"; cf. totis utcumque, p. 23, l. 9 and note.

27. sebaciis: sebaeius, "a tallow candle," is Apuleian.

7. scaenam: "rôle."

9. schemis: "postures"; ante-classical.

14. agminatim: late Latin for agmine.

18. turbelis: the diminutive is colloquial.

27. factionis: "band."

5. ursae: dative following despoliarit; "stript him of the bear." Though the construction is without precedent, it seems more natural than it would to consider ursae as appositional genitive.

7. nobis . . . perivit, etc.: "lost to us but not vanished from glory"; cf. Pl. Capt. 537, peristi e patria tua.

11. nostra: i.e. "of man's."

12. demigrarit: that is, in the persons of Lamachus and Thrasyleon.

V. TRAGEDY OF TLEPOLEMUS AND CHARITE

(Apuleius, Metamorphoses, VIII, 1-14.)

Lucius, in the form of an ass, stabled near by, hears the following story told by one of the servants of Charite.

Page 29. 1. fuit: i.e. "has passed away."

5. in historiae specimen, etc.: not "in the guise of history," as it is sometimes taken, but "embody in writing in the manner of formal narrative," as contrasted with his off-hand account; chartis is probably ablative of instrument.

8. quo . . . eo: equivalent to quanto . . . tanto, the idea being that his wealth corresponded to his high birth. The ablative of degree of difference is used in classical Latin in connection with the comparative of the adjective or adverb. luxuriae popinalis: predicate genitive; supply fuit.

14. petitionis eius: it is difficult to say whether eius agrees with petitionis or is the objective genitive following it. In either case the meaning is "of courting her."

15. id genus viris: "men of that class"; i.e. of suitors. The accusative is adverbial.

17. morum: genitive with inprobatus.

18. erilis puella: "our young mistress." in manum venerat: convenire is more common. See note, p. 102, l. 27.

22. praesentiae sua: probably dative; the idea is, an occasion suitable for presenting himself.

24. praedonum mucronibus . . . liberata: this refers to Charite's rescue from the robber band, an adventure previously narrated by Lucius.

Page 30. 2. salutique praesenti . . . gaudibundus: dative case following gaudibundus, a peculiar construction. A slight zeugma is felt in connection with the second dative suboli. The idea is that of congratulating them on their present safety and expressing the hope that the union would be blessed with offspring.

4. prosapiae: "of his (i.e. Thrasylus) high birth."

7. conversatione: care should be taken to give the proper meaning to this word.

16. affectionis firmissimum vinculum: that is, between Charite and her husband. Note the post-Ciceronian meaning of affectio.

18. furatrinae coniugalis . . . rudimentum: "inexperience in conjugal deception."

20. contentiosa pernicie: the phrase suggests persistence in a course that would result disastrously.

31. venationis indagini generosae: indagini, dative of purpose; "fine bred dogs (and trained) to run down game." mandato . . . invaderent: the subject of the ablative absolute is the clause of which invaderent is the verb.

Page 31. 1. partitae: i.e. in different packs.

11. genis: i.e. his tusks.

12. qua: either "where" or "because of which."

13. alioquin: see note, p. 97, l. 13.

16. fraudum opportunum decipulum: literally, "an opportune snare of treachery," i.e. an opportunity to ensnare his friend treacherously.

21. indipiscimur: "begin," a rare meaning; also found in Aulus Gellius. The verb is ante- and post-classical for adipiscor.

30. amputat: "cut through" or "deep into."

Page 32. 2. lacinias: see note, p. 2, l. 12.

3. vel suae saevitiae . . . expleri: "nor when he saw success smile upon his cruel purpose was he content with the great danger to which his companion was exposed." The force of the preceding negative is carried over into this clause.

5. plagosa: "covered with blows"; a post-classical meaning.

8. prosecutu: dative case.

11. familia maesta: in apposition with the subject of concurrimus.

12. laetus ageret: note idiom agere, "to behave"; the more usual expression is se agere.

27. paenissime: "very nearly"; the superlative is an archaism.

29. funus: equivalent to cadaver, a poetical use.

31. nimium nimius: a forced expression, but quite characteristic; nimium is adverb, nimius adjective; "in excess beyond measure."

Page 33. 3. nomine lugubri: a difficult phrase; perhaps we may give lugubri adverbial force and say, "adding his name in sorrowful tones."

7. studium adhibere: the idea is that he made his zealous services as commiserating friend the pretext of caressing her.

19. confoveret: this forms the object of extorquet; “ prevailed upon her to care for.”

20. parentum: genitive following reverens. The accusative is also used.

26. adfixo servitio: this would seem to mean “ with devoted service,” rather than “ appointing slaves,” as it is sometimes understood.

28. alioquin: see note, p. 97, l. 13. de ipso nomine: Thrasyllus is a name connected with a Greek adjective, θρασύς, meaning “ bold.”

32. impudentiae labe: “ with disgraceful shamelessness.”

Page 34. 3. procella sideris: “ violent wind of heaven”; sideris suggests the violent winds that attend the rising or setting of certain constellations. The word may, however, suggest the baleful influence of some constellation.

4. diali: see note, p. 97, l. 12. corruit: unusual transitive use. This seems better than to construe corpus as Greek accusative.

7. scaenam: “ the deception.”

8. ad limam, etc.: “ put off her ardent suitor in order to sharpen her own wits.”

12. permaret: “ fades”; the compound does not occur elsewhere. Pectori is to be construed as dative of reference, though it may possibly be an archaic locative not found elsewhere.

14. in manum convenias: see note, p. 102, l. 27.

17. parricidio . . . auspicari: the technical meaning of auspicari is to be kept in mind; the idea is that of marriage under the auspices of murder.

20. scaenam sceleris: the phrase means not so much the tragedy of the crime as the trickery and deception in which the crime had been veiled.

25. prolixum: adverb; not “ greatly” or “ violently,” as given in Harper’s lexicon, but “ gave utterance to a prolonged wail.” Cf. Suet. Tit. 7, 2, fovere prolixius = “ longer.”

Page 35. 2. fratri: that is, companion.

5. Boni et optimi consules: “ take it in good part, nay, for the best”; the genitives are predicate genitives.

14. simulanter revicta: “ apparently overcome.”

17. clandestinos coitus obeamus: “ have secret meetings.”

19. oppressus: "caught."
20. prolix: "readily" or "eagerly."
21. uno . . . studio: dative; note archaic form uno. The construction could be taken as an ablative of cause.
26. Nec setius: "so too."
28. scaena feralium nuptiarum: "the funeral setting of his marriage"; feralium suggests both the darkness and mystery of the arrangement and the fact that the union was to work his doom.
29. sequius aliquid: "anything untoward."
32. pronus spei: much stronger than our "inclined to hope."

Page 36. 4. quasi: introducing an alleged reason, as often in Tacitus.

13. male placui: "it was my ill fate to please." qui . . . antecedunt: "which, as it were, by eagerly awaiting the coming darkness, anticipate their coming doom." Note the not displeasing conceit.

14. somniare: the rare deponent use.
20. nuptias: archaic accusative construction.
24. de quo queraris: "of whom you have to complain."
26. dignum cruciatum lucraris: a peculiar expression, "gain a profit from the torture you deserve"; that is to say, by not suffering at once the penalty he so richly deserves, he is gaining an advantage.

Page 37. 1. orbitatem: "blindness"; cf. the similar use of the adjective orbus.

5. nescio: from nescius, in the rare passive sense. The source of the pain is unknown.

8. nescio quod scelus gestiens: "eagerly intent upon some awful deed."

9. monumentum: for classical ad monumentum.

16. punita sum: note deponent form of verb, which also occurs in Ciceronian Latin.

18. isto: see note, p. 72, l. 10.

29. Ultronea: see note, p. 9, l. 27.

VI. EATEN ALIVE

(Apuleius, Metamorphoses, VIII, 22.)

Page 38. 3. deverteramus: "had put up." This story was suggested to Lucius by a certain locality where the former servants of Charite stopped in their flight to rest. famulitio: ante- and post-classical for familia.

5. Quo dolore paelicatus: "Now by her resentment at this infidelity." instricta: "incited."

9. infantulum: post-classical.

13. servulum: note force of the diminutive "miserable slave."

15. arbori ficulneae: archaic and poetic for fico.

17. nidificia: nidificium is Apuleian for nidus. borriebant: "swarm," Apuleian for the prosaic concurrebant.

18. scaturrigine: "gushing stream"; the word occurs in other authors usually in the plural.

23. nitore nimio cendentia: "gleaming with excessive whiteness."

24. cohaerenter arbori: the classical prose construction is preferably cum and the ablative.

VII. THE LOST SLIPPERS

(Apuleius, Metamorphoses, IX, 17-21.)

Page 39. 1. Barbarus iste: this Barbarus, a senator, has just been mentioned, and Lucius overhears a disreputable old woman narrate the following tale to the wife of a baker, Lucius' present master.

4. custodelam: ante-classical and vulgar Latin for custodia.

6. defamem: defamis is Apuleian for infamis.

8. deierans: ante- and post-classical for iurans.

13. destrictam: "busy."

25. solitatem: ante- and post-classical for solitudinem.

6. suadelis: suadela is ante- and post-classical for suasio.

12. oculos: the accusative with exire in the sense of "leave" is Apuleian.

13. quam procul: "however far."

15. salo: "current." The word is also used by Cicero as applied to agitation of spirit.

20. Nec saltem: the emphatic word is frequently placed between nee and saltem; see note, p. 67, l. 24. spatio: "by space," that is, by being away from the temptation.

26. auctorata est: a legal term like addicere; hence the dative metallo; excerando has adjectival force.

15. clave . . . subiecta : see note, p. 7, l. 4.

20. cubiculo : for e cubiculo.

22. e re nata : "as was natural"; cf. note, p. 21, l. 5.

23. cordolio : ante- and post-classical for dolorē animi.

30. coram noxae : the genitive with coram is Apuleian.

Page 42. 3. enim : with its intensive, not inferential, force.

7. clementer : that is, he was apparently beating him severely.

9. perduint : archaic for perdant.

14. postliminio : adverb ; post-classical for rursus or denuo; cf. note, p. 74, l. 1.

VIII. THE FULLER'S WIFE

(Apuleius, Metamorphoses, IX, 24-25.)

The baker, Lucius' present owner, narrates to his wife the following experience at the home of his friend the fuller.

5. nostra : that is, of himself and the fuller, who had unexpectedly arrived.

6. illum : the adulterum mentioned above. subiectum contegit : "placed him beneath and concealed him."

7. quae . . . inalbabat : "which, constructed with flexible rounded twigs in the form of a rising mound and filled with the white fumes of sulphur, was used to bleach the garments that were hung around it."

12. vivacis metalli : "of the pungent mineral."

16. solito sermone : he probably said salve; cf. Petronius, c. 98. imprecatus : this word is usually used in a bad sense; not so here.

21. moriturum : he was already half suffocated.

24. suapte : supply noxa, i.e. not by our, but because of his own guilt. The alternative is to make it agree with violentia and refer to the oblique case sulpuris.

8. cogitare : infinitive following non erat dubius.

IX. THE THREE BROTHERS

(Apuleius, Metamorphoses, IX, 35-38.)

Page 45. 1. is : the pronoun refers to a certain householder who, having been entertained at the house of Lucius' master, returns the courtesy. While they are at table certain prodigies occur which give warning of coming disaster. As a matter of fact, a slave soon arrives and reports the matter that is incorporated in the following tale.

6. pollens factionibus: "strong with his political backing."

11. gestiebat: on the force of the word, see note, p. 20, l. 17. inani commota quaestione: "starting litigation for which there was no ground."

13. suo saltem sepulchro: "if only to serve for his grave"; dative of purpose. All but the land had been taken; that he resolved to keep.

14. ad demonstrationem finium: "to bear testimony as to the boundaries."

16. quantulum quantulum: "such little as they could."

19. licet non rapinis: "though not his plundering."

20. voluit: note that he is said to have been at first moderate in his language.

Page 46. 3. liberali legum praesidio: "by the generous protection of the laws."

6. iste: see note, p. 72, l. 10.

8. suspendium sese . . . mandare proclamans: "telling all of them and their laws to go hang."

11. esitare: ante- and post-classical for edo.

12. passivis: ante- and post-classical for passim. laxari: the infinitive construction following praecipere is classical but not so common as the ut-construction.

17. compercunt: also spelled comparcunt. nec . . . saltem: cf. note, p. 67, l. 24.

20. offenso lapide atque obtunsis digitis: "stubbing his toes against a stone." terrae: this may be dative of direction, but more likely a locative construction, in imitation of humi prosterni.

24. accurrunt suppetias: cf. the more common ire or venire suppetias, and similar expressions.

5. Nec: the negative modifies the verb concidit.

6. terrae: dative of direction.

7. nisus violentia: "by the force of the east."

8. rigore librato: literally "its stiffness balanced in the air."

11. per . . . transcurrentes: that is, it simply grazed his finger tips.

- 14. humanior: that is, than the spear which had slain his brother.
15. speculam: the diminutive of spes.
26. sui molliorem: "milder than himself." The genitive with the comparative is occasionally found in early and late Latin.

X. THE ENAMORED STEPMOTHER

(Apuleius, Metamorphoses, X, 2-12.)

Page 48. 1. Dominus aedium: Lucius recalls a most abominable crime which took place in the house where he was stabled, and narrates it in the following tale.

- 3. vel: "even" or "just."
6. adaequo: the meaning of the word here seems to be "just" or "about."
16. vulnus animi . . . valetudine: "falsely attributed her heart's wound to bodily illness." The expression is a forced one and probably was suggested by the constructions mentiri aliquid and mentiri in aliqua re.
18. cetera, etc.: "the other ravages, that is, to health and countenance."
19. examussim: see note, p. 19, l. 11.
24. coloris intemperantia: "flushing of cheeks."

Page 49. 1. utrimquesecus: instead of the more common utrimque.

- 6. vocari praecipit: see note, p. 46, l. 12.
10. utcumque debitum: "in a certain sense due."
14. nutante etiam nunc pudore: the idea is that she still possessed some sense of shame, though it was on the point of disappearing.
15. decunctatur: Apuleian for cunctatur.
21. medela: post-classical for cura.
32. exasperandum: eām is to be supplied as object, according to the archaic construction of which Lucretius presents several examples.

- 3. impendio: "earnestly"; a colloquialism.
10. vel: see note, p. 48, l. 3.
12. maturatae spei vesania: "with the madness of a hope to be fulfilled."
20. emancipato: figuratively, "ready for any crime."

23. praesentarium: ante- and post-classical for promptum.
 32. terrae: see note, p. 46, l. 20.

Page 51. 2. varie quisque: "each according to his own views."

7. in vindictae compendium: "to compass her vengeance."

12. Et hoc . . . mentiebatur: the preceding expression, privigni veneno, changes its meaning according as one regards privigni as subjective or objective genitive, hence the present remark.

20. incoram: Apuleian for coram. For genitive, see note, p. 41, l. 30.

29. in exitium: the verb operor in classical style is construed with the dative.

30. plenis affectibus: "with all the force of his will." illum incestum, etc.: the indirect discourse depends upon a verb of saying suggested by the words fletu and precibus.

Page 52. 2. remoto iudicandi taedio: "without the tedium of a trial." Remotis is to be supplied with probationibus and ambagibus.

5. vindicari: classical prose usage would require an ut construction.

10. utrimquesecus: see note, p. 49, l. 1.

16. loca residentibus: residentibus from resideo, not resido. This accusative outside of Apuleius is very rare. Cf. meum dorsum residebat, Apul. Met. 8, 17, and me . . . residens, Met. 10, 18. The ordinary construction is in with the ablative.

18. Martii iudicii: "of the court of the Areopagus."

19. principia dicere: "deliver introductory speeches"; the usual construction with denuntio in this sense would be ne and the subjunctive.

21. ad istum modum: see note, p. 72, l. 10.

26. ad estas litteras: "in this account to you." Simul: poetic for simil ac.

30. sisti: "be brought into court."

Page 53. 3. quod se vocasset: "the fact that he had summoned him"; the subjunctive is that of implied indirect discourse.

7. sua manu: not the speaker's, but the young man's. reddiderit: sc. sibi or better ipsci, referring to the speaker.

8. reservatum poculum neclexisse: that is, had not administered the cup, but had kept it in evidence.

9. sua manu: the direct use of suus.

10. eximic ac nimis . . . imaginem: "skilfully and only too strikingly like the truth."

15. ad unum sermonem: that is, to the one word condemno.

17. cum rei fortuna transacto : "the culprit's fate being sealed once for all"; transacto is ablative absolute without substantive. Rei is probably genitive of reus.

20. orificium : post-classical for os.

21. ad ordinem : ordo is the regular word for the provincial senate.

22. Quod aetatis sum : "all my life."

29. non olim : "not long ago."

31. veterno : the word suggests the loss of physical and mental power.

Page 54. 1. blaterantem : blaterno is colloquial.

2. causificantem : causifigor is very rare, being used for the classical causor.

10. repraesentatus : "produced in court"; iudicio is dative.

20. afannas : Apuleian for nugas.

26. contrectatis : "examined."

29. tormentis : dative of purpose.

Page 55. 3. rei praesentis : "of the point at issue."

5. sectae : the word is also used by Seneca in the sense of a school of medicine.

11. mandragoram : "mandrake."

12. gravedinis compertae : descriptive genitive; "of tested lethargy-producing properties."

14. in eum competit : "fit his case."

18. quod sive : "but whether."

21. adorante : cf. note, p. 18, l. 17.

27. postliminio mortis : see note, p. 17, l. 18.

Page 56. 3. somni : that is, the trance into which he had cast the boy.

XI. THE JEALOUS WIFE

(Apuleius, Metamorphoses, X, 23-28.)

Page 57. 1. habuit : "she had." The subject is a woman condemned to be thrown to the beasts. The story of her crime is narrated by Lucius.

2. eiusdem iuvenis : that is, the husband just mentioned.

4. sexus sequioris : "of the inferior sex"; genitive of characteristic; sequior is post-classical. protinus quod : "as soon as."

6. praeventa: "prevented"; the word agrees with illa.
 10. pro natalibus: "in accordance with her birth"; natales in the plural, meaning "origin" or "birth," is post-Augustan.
 13. incurreret: "do violence to."
 14. matris . . . dispensat: "scrupulously carried out his mother's wish and did his duty by his sister."
 16. plebeiam humanitatem: "ordinary feeling." facie tenus: "as far as appearances went."
 19. receptaret: "received"; but traderet, below, is to be rendered "would betroth," as indicated by the word mox.
 22. plenaque cum sanctimonia: correlative with the two preceding adverbs.

- Page 58. 1. bestiis . . . addicta: see note, p. 57, l. 1.
 3. succubam: "supplanter." In this sense succuba is Apuleian.
 8. quod: note quod-clause instead of the classical infinitive construction.
 12. adstipularetur: "to cause to agree with"; adstipulor as a transitive verb is Apuleian.
 13. mandatu: dative.
 19. quod res erat: "the truth of the matter." quodque: note quod-clause instead of classical infinitive construction.
 20. frustra . . . bulliret: that is, that there was no cause for her jealousy; paelicatus is objective genitive following indignatione.
 23. maritus: "he who was to be her husband." Gener is used in the same anticipatory sense in Latin.
 29. medela: for classical cura.
 31. multarum palmarum, etc.: note the figurative language taken from the military sphere.

Page 59. 6. Proserpinæ Saluti: that is, death. Saluti is in apposition with Proserpinæ.

25. Ad istum modum: see note, p. 72, l. 10.
 30. proventus: "the issue."

Page 60. 2. saucius: the word is also used of the drowsiness of intoxication.

4. mandato: the substantive of this ablative absolute is the clause of which deposceret is the verb.
 5. elitus: "in convulsions." spectatissimus: "most worthy." The expression is probably not ironical. The narrator seems to have forgotten, in the physician's terrible plight, his previous reputation.

10. quis : ablative case.
 12. faciem : "the reality."
 13. blandicule : Apuleian. prolix : see note, p. 35, l. 20.
 24. toto : archaic for toti. Cf. uno, note, p. 35, l. 21.

Page 61. 2. urgente spiritu : "by the difficulty of breathing." praesidis : "governor's."

6. patefierent : note omission of ut, which is ordinarily used with efficio; cf. note, p. 2, l. 12.

13. excetrae venenatae : "venomous serpent."

XII. TALE OF THE TUB

(Apuleius, Metamorphoses, IX, 1-7.)

Page 62. See Introduction, xxxvii.

(Apuleius, Metamorphoses, IV, 28-VI, 24.)

Page 65. 1. civitate : for urbe, as often.

6. sufficienter : a word found only in late Latin; satis would be the classical word.

7. denique : often a weak inferential "then" in Apuleius.

8. studiosa celebritate : "in curious throngs." inaccessae : poetic; singularis or unicus would be the ordinary word.

9. formonsitatis : archaic spelling.

10. primore digito . . . residente : "the thumb held upright with the tip of the finger resting thereon." To kiss one's hand was a common mark of reverence to the gods. Why the particular position of the thumb and finger here indicated we cannot say.

11. ipsam prorsus deam : "the very goddess in person."

13. attiguas : a rare and late word; vicinus is the ordinary word.

15. iam numinis . . . venia : "now blessing all with the gift of her divine presence." The construction is ablative absolute.

16. populi : the poetic use of populus as synonymous with homines.

18. pullulasse : the rare transitive use of pullulare. It will be remembered that the real Venus was fabled to have sprung from the foam of the sea.

19. immeusum: adverbial use; the more usual expression is in immeusum.

20. plusculum: "quite a bit."

22. altissimis: transferred epithet.

23. saeculi specimen: "perfection of the age." As we say, "the greatest beauty of her day."

Page 66. 4. supplicatur: impersonal construction.

5. in matutino progressu: that is, as she came forth of a morning, fresh and beautiful.

6. absentis: the idea is, though no Venus was there.

12. En rerum . . . parens: cf. Lucretius' invocation to Venus, De Rerum Natura I, 1 seq.

13. orbis: probably possessive.

14. partiario: construed with cum puella, "shared with a mortal girl"; partiarius is used by the legal writers. honore tractor: this seems to mean "treated or handled with," rather than "dragged in the dust," as rendered by Purser.

15. caelo conditum: "with heaven as its home"; in caelo is more common, while in caelum is the ordinary expression.

16. Nimirum . . . sustinebo: "I am forsooth to submit to the dubious honor of a vicarious worship by sharing the offering to my divinity with another."

18. pastor ille: Paris.

20. deabus: Juno and Minerva.

21. faxo . . . paeniteat: "I warrant she will repent"; faxo is the archaic form so common in Plautus.

24. disciplina publica: "public morality."

28. genuina licentia: "by reason of ingrained wantonness."

31. perlata . . . fabula: "going over the story."

32. Per: this governs foedera.

Page 67. 1. deprecor: here the intensified precor; the other meaning is "deprecate."

2. uredines: "stings."

3. sed plenam: "full, you understand."

4. severiter: the usual word is severe.

5. fraglantissimo: see note, p. 25, l. 5.

6. extremi: "of the lowest sort."

7. damnavit: "condemned to be deprived of"; the genitives are those of the penalty.

9. pressule: this adverb and the adjective pressulus are Apuleian. Presse is the classical word.

10. reflui litoris: a bold use of refluus to express the idea of the shore from which the waves recede.

11. ecce iam profundum maris: "behold at length the deep sea!" i.e. the goddess had at length reached the deep sea. Profundum may be either nominative or accusative.

12. sudo resedit vertice: "and she paused upon its bright surface."

13. marinum obsequium: "the obedience of the sea," abstract for the concrete "the obedient deities of the sea."

14. Portunus: the god of harbors.

15. Salacia: goddess of the salt waves.

19. curru: dative. biiuges: "in pairs."

21. sua sibi: see note, p. 2, l. 1. perspicua: conspicuus is more usual in this sense.

24. regius: "prince." In classical style the word is always used with a noun. nec . . . saltem: equivalent to nec . . . quidem, often used by Apuleius with the force of ne . . . quidem.

27. Olim: "long ago"; slightly exaggerated expression for iam.

28. diffamarant: elsewhere the word has a bad meaning. populi: use of plural of populus for the classical homines. For singular, cf. note, p. 65, l. 16.

30. corporis: poetic construction for corpore; animi, however, is probably locative.

Page 68. 2. irae: genitive with metuens; the dative would mean "fearing for." dei Milesii . . . oraculum: an oracle situated at Didymi, about ten miles from Miletus. On the possible significance of the words dei Milesii, see Introduction, p. xx, note 2.

5. propter Milesiae conditorem: "on account of the writer of the story." That is, because he wrote in Latin. On the force of Milesia here, see Introduction, p. xx, note 2.

8. mundo: "apparel."

13. Iovis: archaic nominative.

15. pigeus: "with regret"; this form is not found in the classical period.

17. maeretur: note impersonal passive construction.

19. choragium: "the paraphernalia." Note the mingling of the idea of funeral and marriage in the whole passage.

20. marcescit: "grows dim."

21. zygiae: a Greek word derived from ζυγόν, "yoke." Cf. the Latin Juno jugalis. Ludii: i.e. Lydii; moduli is understood. Cf. modulus Phrygius and modulus Dorius.

23. Sic affectae: "thus affected."

24. luctu: dative with congruens.

29. vivum funus: funus is occasionally used in poetic style for "corpse." The living corpse is, of course, Psyche.

Page 69. 5. Quid laceratis . . . lumina: Psyche means that it is torture for her to see the tears in her parents' eyes.

9. percussi . . . sentitis: the Greek idiom for the Latin, vos percussos sentitis.

14. scopulo: for the usual in scopulo.

16. exitio: dative of purpose.

18. pompa: dative of association, a poetic construction.

21. quibus praeluxerant: "with which they had lighted her on her way."

23. domuitionem: archaic.

27. vibratis . . . sinu: "swaying her raiment on either side and filling its folds."

29. per devexa: "over the slopes."

Page 70. 3. medio meditullio: "in the very centre"; meditullium, an archaism, is a favorite word with Apuleius. Cicero says the force of tullius, from tellus, had long been lost; cf. Cic. Topica 36.

6. scies: "you may know"; cf. the poetic use of future indicative with imperative force. Subjunctive of the second person indefinite would be the ordinary construction.

9. id genus pecudibus: "herds of that type," i.e. wild animals. Id genus refers to bestiis and the expression is tautological. Purser's explanation, "herds of that kind, i.e. of the type of wild beasts, as wild horses and asses," seems somewhat forced. ob: the usual construction with occurrere is dative.

12. efferavit argentum: a strained but striking way of saying "fashioned the silver into the forms of wild beasts." pavimentum . . . discriminantur: "for even the floors are marked off by the use of precious stones cut into small pieces so as to represent objects of various sort." The reference is of course to the commonly used mosaie work.

16. sine pretio pretiosae: note the alliteration.

18. suum sibi: see note, p. 2, l. 1.

19. licet: "although"; cf. the classical construction of nisi with the ablative absolute.

21. ad conversationem humanam: "for his sojourning among men."

24. sese facit: "betakes herself." A late Latin use; the simple verb is also so used. In addition to the cases referred to in Purser's note, the phrase aquam facientes, Peregrinatio Sanctae Silvae, 37, is interesting.

26. altrinsecus: "on the other side of"; this prepositional use of the word is only met with in Apuleius. horrea . . . perfecta: "loftily constructed store rooms."

30. thensaurus: the word may mean either "treasure" or "treasure chamber." The form is archaic for thesaurus.

2. prohinc: "accordingly."

3. cubiculo: poetic dative of direction.

5. corporis curatae tibi: "for you when you have cared for your person"; corporis is genitive with curatae, an extension of the poetic genitive construction with adjectives. Purser explains otherwise, citing the words interfectae virginitatis curant, p. 71, l. 28, as an example of the genitive case with curo; but should this not be taken as descriptive genitive, with novam nuptam, "the bride who had lost her virginity," making nuptam the object of curant, and taking praestolantes absolutely?

9. fatigationem sui: sui equivalent to suam, a construction constantly employed by Apuleius.

10. semirotundo suggestu: this would be a semicircular table.

17. quae . . . ipsa: "nor was this seen either."

23. aures accedit: for the usual ad aures. pro tanta solitudine: "seeing that she was absolutely alone."

24. malo: the ablative with the comparative.

28. cubiculo: for in cubiculo. interfectae virginitatis: "who had lost her virginity"; descriptive genitive; but see note, p. 71, l. 5.

30. natura redditum: "ordained by nature."

Page 72. 6. namque praeter oculos, etc.: "for he is perceived by the sense of touch and hearing, but not by that of sight." The manuscript reading ius nihil sentiebatur, makes no sense. For the conjectures, see Purser's note on the passage. The text given is quite in Apuleian style.

10. scopulum istum: cf. similar construction with accedo, p. 35, l. 71, note. Iustum is probably equivalent to hunc, as it certainly is in the common Apuleian phrase ad istum modum (cf. p. 91, l. 11), and in other expressions. This is interesting as indicating the beginning of a practice which resulted in the entire disappearance of hic in popular speech and the employment of iste instead, as the testimony of the Romance Languages proves.

11. neque : for the more usual nere.
12. ceterum : in place of alioquin; a frequent use in Apuleius.
21. nec mora, cum : see note, p. 20, l. 11.
22. lectum accubans : Apuleius frequently uses the accusative with acebare.
25. perdia et pernox : equivalent to noctu atque interdiu; perdius is post-classical and pernox is poetical.
26. desinis cruciatum : cruciatus would be the classical construction.
29. dum . . . comminatur : this use of dum is well rendered in English by the participial construction "threatening."
30. adnuat : this verb follows extorquet without ut; the introduction of ut before videat would indicate that this clause depends directly upon cupitis. Note the striking rhythm of the sentence.
31. ora conferat : "hold converse with them"; ora is equivalent to the usual sermones.

4. pessum : this adverb is common in Plautus and late Latin.
8. efflictim : Purser remarks, "the only difficulty in this passage is efflictim used with the weaker verb diligo." He cites, however, an example of this use from Symmachus. But it is possible and quite in accord with Apuleian style to construe thus: "for I love you even to distraction, whoever you are; I value you as my life, nor would I compare you to Cupid." As Psyche little dreams that she is speaking to Cupid, Purser calls attention to the "irony" of the passage.
12. imprimens : note the effect of the repetition of the syllable in of the words imprimens, ingerens, inserens; in fact, the whole structure of the sentence is rhythmically striking.
15. susurrus : genitive. succubuit : used absolutely.
21. parilem : poetic for parem.
25. effligitis : this rather rare verb is much stronger than the more common affligere. For adverb, cf. p. 73, l. 8.
26. voces : for construction, see note, p. 72, l. 26.
30. nec mora cum : see note, p. 20, l. 11.

32. sese perfruuntur: the archaic construction of the accusative with frui; the phrase is interesting, as it is used in connection with the ablative of means saviis.

Page 74. 1. postliminio: "back again," a meaning confined to Apuleius; when followed by genitive, as on p. 17, l. 18, it means "back again from." In classical times postliminium was a legal term meaning the right of return to one's native country with all civil rights. prolectante gaudio: "led by the allurement of joy."

6. inhumanae: "supernatural"; only so used in Apuleius.

13. e re nata: see note, p. 21, l. 5.

14. commodum: "just."

15. barbitio: only found in Apuleius; the classical word is barba.

16. ne qua . . . labe: "lest by any slip as the conversation continued."

17. consilium tacitum: "the secret." auro facto: "golden gifts."

21. fraglantes: on the form, see note, p. 25, l. 5.

22. perstrepebant: that is, the discourse was long and loud.

23. orba: sc. oculis.

24. utroque parente prognatae: "born of the same parents."

27. degamus: "are we to pass our days?" This subjunctive, as well as potita sit, expresses the indignation of the speaker. longe parentum: "far from our parents"; a Graecism; procul ab is the ordinary prose idiom.

28. quam . . . effudit: "to whom our mother, already weary with the bearing of children, gave birth as her last offspring."

31. iacent: the indicative in an indirect question; a colloquialism often occurring in Plautus and Terence. splendicant: splendicare is Apuleian for splendere.

Page 75. 5. deam spirat: "aspires to be a goddess"; deam is cognate accusative.

8. pusilliorem: "more puny"; she means that he is an unsatisfactory bed-fellow. Note the alliteration which indicates her contempt.

10. articulari . . . morbo: "rheumatism" or "gout."

11. venerem meam recolentem: "satisfying my amorous moods."

15. istas; she shows her hands as she pronounces this word. Cf. note, p. 72, l. 10. uxoris . . . sustinens: "not appearing as a dutiful wife, but playing the rôle of an overworked nurse"; officiosam and laboriosam are transferred epithets.

17. videris: future perfect. It may be rendered "it is for you to consider"; video is the only verb so used in classical prose.

26. pessum: cf. note, p. 73, l. 4.

27. inacuit: from inacesco "to become bitter"; inacuit therefore means "is bitter."

29. ac nec: the use of ac gives nec an intensive force, "and not indeed."

31. nedium: "much less."

32. beatum . . . praetorium: "spread the news of her good fortune."

Page 76. 4. sed plane: on the force of sed, cf. note, p. 67, l. 3. diuque . . . instructae: "and having equipped ourselves with long and carefully considered plans"; strictly, diu modifies instructae, which has middle force.

8. comam trahentes: Purser remarks that the usual word is scindere. But the phrase must surely mean "trailing their locks."

10. ac sic . . . deterrentes: "and thus quickly frightening their parents too with this fresh burst of grief."

17. longe: that is, eminus.

18. lupulae: "wretches"; the word lupa is common in the sense of abandoned woman.

19. te suadeant: cf. note, p. 73, l. 2. explorare: the poetical construction of the infinitive with suadere.

20. non videbis si videris: "you will not see if but once you see"; the expression is purposely mystical; he means that he will disappear forever if she gets but a glimpse of him.

24. pro: "in virtue of."

31. plaudebat: "was exulting." Note the assonance of the four imperfect endings.

Page 77. 3. momentarius: "who stays but a short time." Elsewhere in Apuleius the word has the meaning of "instantaneous"; cf. p. 59, l. 2.

4. sexus infestus et sanguis inimicus: "your sisters hostile and your kin turned foe."

6. classicum: the accusative is cognate.

10. istum: see note, p. 72, l. 10.

11. nec . . . vel . . . vel: for the ordinary neve . . . neve.

14. scopulo prominentes: "perched on a jutting crag."

15. singultu . . . incertans: "her words broken with tearful sobs."

16. quod sciam: "I imagine"; literally, "as far as I know." fidei . . . perpendisti: "you have weighed the proofs of my fidelity and discretion"; literally, "for my fidelity"; the dative is that of reference.

24. germani complexus . . . fructum: "the enjoyment of my sisters' embraces."

32. iugum . . . factionis: "the pair of sisters who concocted the plot"; the genitive is that of description. The compound conspondere is very rare.

6. incunctatae: in is the negative particle. The word is found only here. conferto vestigio: the expression means little more than "together." One naturally thinks of the idiom gradum conferre, and probably Apuleius used the word confertus, strange in this connection, purposely.

7. nomine mentientes: "lying in respect to the name." Purser adopts the conjecture, sororis nomen ementientes. The reading as given appeals to us, however, as Apuleian in tone.

8. thensaurumque . . . fraudis: "the guile stored deep and treasured in their hearts." For the form thensaurus, cf. note, p. 70, l. 30.

9. adulant: the classical word is deponent. ut pridem: "as a short time before."

10. et ipsa: equivalent as frequently to ipsa etiam.

11. perula: affectionately used for uterus intumescens.

12. aurei: on the force of this word, cf. Introduction, p. xii.

13. laetabunt: the classical word is deponent.

14. prorsus Cupido: "a veritable Cupid"; another case of dramatic irony; cf. p. 70, l. 8, and note.

18. tuccetis: tuccetum was a rich sausage or, rather, meat pudding.

19. agere: "to play"; cf. the idiom partes agere, "to play a rôle."

24. sermonem conferentes: "guiding the talk."

25. unde natalium: Purser's note is confusing. He remarks that classical Latin used the ablative. Unde of course replaces the ablative. Natalium is partitive, as he correctly states.

26. secta cuia: "of what calling"; literally, "of whose calling."

27. pristini sermonis: cf. what she had said, p. 74, l. 14 seq.

2. altercantes: the word is probably used because of the doubt arising in their minds as to the true state of affairs. Note that the principal verb "said" is omitted in the sentence.

9. utrum: "whichever." The indefinite use of this word is occasionally met with in classical Latin. The ordinary word is utrumcumque.

11. nobis: ethical dative.

12. puelli: the diminutive, puellus, is archaic. mater audierit: "shall have the fame of being mother." Cf. the colloquial expression, male or bene audire, in classical Latin.

14. quam concolores: "quite harmonious." The use of quam with the positive of the adjective is rather rare in classical style, though not uncommon in Apuleius. Its use with positive adverbs is a common colloquialism.

16. fastidienter: the classical word is fastidiose.

17. matutino: late Latin for mane.

19. astu: the Ciceronian word is astutia.

22. rebus tuis: dative of interest.

26. sanguinantem: the poetic use of neuter verb as transitive.

28. sortis Pythicae: "Apollo's oracle." Pytho was the ancient name of Delphi, Apollo's most celebrated shrine. As the oracle was given near Miletus (see note, p. 68, l. 5), the adjective is loosely used.

30. circumsecus: cf. note, p. 12, l. 7.

Page 80. 1. blandis alimoniarum obsequiis: "by serving you with dainties"; blandis is a transferred epithet. Alimonia is an archaism.

11. misella . . . tenella: the partiality of Apuleius for the diminutive form of the adjective is noticeable.

16. tertiana substrepens: "stammering and uttering her words in a low, half-audible voice." Tertiata literally means that each word was uttered three times. Purser's stand that the expression does not mean stammering does not seem well taken.

20. cuiatis: for the classical cuias, an archaism. The accent cuiás is a reminiscence of the earlier form.

21. subaudiens: "giving dutiful obedience to."

30. tectae machinae: there is a play upon the meaning of machinae, "secret machination" and "mantlet." The whole sentence bristles with military terms.

Page 81. 4. praeacutam: "very sharp" rather than "sharp edged." adpulsu . . . exasperatam: "an edge put on by the stroke of the smoothing palm." She is to rub the blade over the palm to put, as it were, the finishing touch of keenness.

6. concinnem: "delicate little lamp." The size is probably the important idea. The classical form is concinnus.

8. aululae: the diminutive form of olla, "pot," the archaic form of which was aula. Ollula also occurs.

12. pensilem . . . minuens: literally, "diminishing little by little your suspended step." That is, walking on tiptoe and more slowly the nearer she approaches.

15. quam valido: see note, p. 79, l. 14. The rhythm of this long sentence is striking. It will be felt by reading with a slight pause after each clause.

21. viscera: "heart." The word is also used by the poets with the meaning "flesh."

26. nisi . . . non est: "except that harried by baleful furies she cannot be said to be alone."

27. aestu . . . fluctuat: "her grief surges like the tide of the sea"; aestu, dative; maerendo, ablative of manner with the same force as that of a present participle; simile, adverbial.

Page 82. 6. sexum audacia mutatur: "and becomes a man in boldness." Sexum is probably the direct object of mutatur used with middle force, though in the phrase mentem capit, p. 100, l. 18, we are forced to take mentem as the Greek accusative, and this may also be the construction of sexum in the present passage.

10. hilaratum: the flame is conceived as rendered joyous by the sight. acuminis sacrilegi: genitive of description.

11. praenitebat: "gleamed forth." Purser adopts the conjecture of Lipsius, paenitebat, and renders "and the razor felt a pang of sorrow for its wicked edge."

12. impos animi: "distracted"; cf. the legal term non compos mentis.

13. desedit in imos poplites: that is, she sank down with her knees doubled under her.

17. salute defecta: "in utter despair." Defecta is nominative case of the participle, "abandoned by safety," not the ablative absolute, which would indeed be a strange expression, as Purser objects. I cannot, however, follow him in the interpretation "overcome by the sense of being safe," which seems forced and out of harmony with the rest of the passage.

19. genialem: "gladsome"; his locks were a delight and joy to see.

ambrosia temulentam: "steeped in divine perfume"; ambrosia means unguent of the gods as well as food of the gods. cervices . . . impeditos: "the prettily tangled locks, sweeping the snow-white neck and rosy cheeks"; cervices is governed by pererrantes.

21. antependulos: a word found only here.

23. pinnae . . . candicant: "the dewy pinions are as bright as gleaming blossoms."

26. inquieta lasciviant: "play restlessly." Inquieta, poetic adverbial use of neuter plural of the adjective.

30. satis et: poetic post position of the conjunction.

31. puncto pollicis: "with the end of her thumb."

32. periclitabunda: this adjective has so much the force of a present participle that it is construed with a direct object. Cf. note, p. 24, l. 30.

Page 83. 1. articuli: "finger," that is, thumb; a somewhat poetic use of the word.

2. roraverint: "stood out like dew."

4. prona . . . inhians: "bending over him with distracted gaze."

6. de somni mensura: that is, she was afraid that he might soon awaken.

9. et ipsa: "it too."

13. cupitis: "his heart's desires."

15. visaque . . . colluvie: "seeing the ruin of his trust betrayed." detectae, literally, "disclosed," with a slight play upon the two meanings.

18. sublimis . . . consequia: "trailing pitifully after him in his lofty flight and following him for the last time as she hung upon him, accompanying him through the realm of clouds"; an almost repellently artificial passage. Consequia is an adjective used substantively and comitatus genitive depending thereon.

25. hominis: modifies cupidine, but is also felt with matrimonio.

26. addici: "be assigned to," a legal term.

30. istos . . . oculos: "these eyes that loved you"; cf. note, p. 72, l. 10.

31. semper cavenda: that is, she was ever to be on her guard against doing just what she had done, prying into his identity.

32. remonebam: the word does not seem to occur elsewhere.

Page 84. 1. magisterii: "instruction," which they had given Psyche.

2. punivero: if this differs at all from the simple future it emphasizes the immediate act.

4. quantum visi poterat: "as far as her eyes could see"; visi is probably impersonal.

7. proceritas spatii: proceritas emphasizes the height of his flight as well as the length. fecerat alienum: "had taken him from her."

12. supercilium amnis: "brow of the river," means bank of the river. Echo: accusative case.

13. voculas omnimodas: "soft notes of every kind." Note the force of the diminutive. The adjective omnimodus is post-classical.

14. comam fluvii: this means the grass growing on the bank of the river; cf. the common poetic use of coma to indicate foliage.

15. sauciam: the word is often used to express the woes of love. utcumque: "somehow or other," an adverb modifying non inscius.

17. Puella scitula: "pretty little girl"; both scitus and scitulus in the sense of pretty are ante- and post-classical.

21. autumant: "affirm"; the word is chiefly ante-classical or poetic.

27. utpote . . . luxuriosum: "since he is a youth given to self-indulgence and pleasure." blandis obsequiis promere: "win him over by loving service."

31. aliquam multum viae: "quite a distance"; viae is partitive genitive with multum, and aliquam is adverb. The idiom aliquam multus is found elsewhere in Apuleius. In Apol. 4, aliquam multum a me remota est, it is adverbial. In Apol. 72, aliquam multis diebus decumbo, we have the adjective use.

32. inscio: "unknown"; elsewhere inscius has the active meaning.

14. fruendi laborarem inopia: "I was distressed at not being able to enjoy it." The classical construction is dum labore.

16. quo dolore: "by the pain of which"; the ordinary idiom.

18. divorte: "be divorced"; the technical term; cf. divortium. tibique . . . habeto: the regular phrase used in announcing (renuntiatio) a divorce.

19. quo tu censeris: "by which you are called"; literally, by which you are enrolled.

20. confarreatis nuptiis: referring to the confarriatio or formal ceremony by which originally patricians were united in marriage. Even in strictly classical times this form had been largely superseded by the form known as usus.

22. efflaret: principal clause imperative in indirect discourse; the omission of the ut is common in Apuleius.

27. caeca spe inhians: "yet eager with groundless hope"; the ablative is one of cause. The natural expression would be caecae spei dative.

31. nec . . . vel saltem: vel intensifies saltem; literally, "not even at least."

Page 86. 2. alitibus . . . ferens: "providing a ready prey for beasts and birds"; the dative follows obvium.

6. germanitatis: abstract for concrete germanae. in sororis . . . festinavit: the clause in nuptias is governed by festinarit, but may also be felt with aemula.

7. mortis exitium: "doom of death."

9. quaesitioni: Plautus uses quaestio in this sense. In classical Latin the latter word is usually used in its technical sense.

12. gavia: "sea-mew."

14. Venerem . . . propter assistens: as Apuleius does use the accusative after assistere, it is difficult to decide whether propter is preposition or adverb. The imagination may play between the possibilities.

16. dubium salutis: poetic genitive with adjective.

18. male audire: consult note, p. 79, l. 12. Quod ille, etc.: with these words the construction passes from indirect to direct discourse.

21. non nuptiae . . . fastidium: "there are no marriage bonds nor social ties, no love for children, but filth unbounded and disgustingly repellent unions of low degree"; foederum is genitive of definition, not objective as Butler seems to take it.

24. haec . . . ganniebat: "was uttering these complaints." Butler's rendering "chattered" would in Latin be expressed by garrio rather than gannio.

25. irata solidum: "thoroughly angered." Solidum is the poetic use of the neuter accusative of the adjective with adverbial force, a construction restricted in classical prose to adjectives expressing quantity.

28. ingenuum et investem: consult lexicon for both meanings.

30. Horarum, etc.: the Horae, or goddesses of the seasons, particularly of the spring, were naturally connected with Venus, as were the Graces and Muses.

2. efflicte: this is an unusual word, perdite being more common in this connection. Cf. however efflictim, p. 73, l. 8, and elsewhere.

4. formae succubam: "supplanter of my charms."

5. illud incrementum: "that young upstart"; literally, "sprout."

7. quiritans: "shrieking out." properiter: the word is somewhat archaic; propere is the classical word.

10. Honesta haec: "honorable conduct this." bonaeque . . . congruentia: "in harmony with thy moral worth"; said ironically.

12. sordidis amoribus: "with passion for a degraded creature"; cf. Venus' command, p. 67, l. 5 seq.

16. te solum generosum: "that you alone are nobly born." Venus means that Cupid thinks that he is her only offspring.

22. patris: Mars, his foster father. His real father is not known.

23. ad instructionem istam: "for your equipment"; the pinnae, flammue, arcus, and sagittae mentioned above.

24. male . . . inductus es: "you have been a bad boy from your earliest years." acutas manus habes: "you are light-fingered"; cf. the charming lines of Hor., Od. I, 12, 9-42; there is, however, a slight play upon the word acutas, for in its relation to the words maiores pulsasti it means "impulsive."

29. cui . . . consuesti: "whom you are constantly accustomed to provide with mistresses to make me jealous." Butler renders in angorem mei paelicatus, "because thou art angry with my love for him," which is surely not the meaning. The literal rendering is "for grief at the concubinage I put up with."

32. inrisui: dative of purpose.

5. undeunde: "from any source."

6. illa . . . adhibenda est: she makes up her mind that she will have to employ Sobriety after all (prorsus).

10. litatum: impersonal perfect passive infinitive.

11. subinde: "forthwith"; "often," the rendering given by Purser does not seem to suit the context.

12. quas . . . infeci: "which as I held him in my arms I steeped with streams of nectar." The genitive seems to be used in imitation of the Greek construction with verbs of filling.

13. biles: cognate accusative. continantur: "join," or "meet"; this seems to be the proper spelling rather than continuantur. The verb is late and rare.

18. volentiam . . . perpetratuiae: "intending doubtless to accomplish the desire of my angry heart"; said ironically.

19. volatileam: "elusive."

28. portat bellule: "carries his years so prettily."

31. revinces: "will you suppress?"

Page 89. 2. amores amare: note the assonance; amare is the adverb.

3. vitiorum . . . officinam: "close up the public source of female frailties"; officina, literally, "manufactory."

6. praeversis alterorsus: "passing by them on the other side."

7. pelago: poetic dative of direction.

9. inquieta animo: animi is the usual construction.

10. iratum licet: "angry though he be."

13. Unde autem scio an: "how do I know but that." Scio an with the subjunctive in the sense of "know but that" occurs elsewhere in Apuleius; cf. p. 91, l. 29.

20. mundus: "tools."

27. longum exclamat; as we say, "cried out long and loud."

Page 90. 1. pedes eius advoluta: the more usual construction is the dative with adcolvere. Tacitus, too, uses the accusative.

2. multiiugis . . . editis: "uttering manifold prayers," as indicated by the repeated per-clauses.

5. cistarum: the cista was a cylindrical, covered basket containing sacred food used in the Eleusinian mysteries.

6. pinnata curricula: the winged car was drawn by dragons.

7. sulcamina: "furrows"; because Sicily was a great corn-growing land. The word does not occur elsewhere. Sulcus is the ordinary word.

currum . . . remeacula: "by the car that stole her and the land that held her, by the descent of Proserpina to her lampless wedding, by discovery with the lamp and her return."

21. optimi consule: "consider it most lucky"; optimi is predicate genitive.

26. proximat: Apuleius is fond of this post-classical verb. Appropinquuo is the ordinary word.

32. coniuga: the classical word is coniuncta.

Page 91. 2. Carthaginis: the Oriental goddess Tanit was identified with Juno. caelo: dative of direction.

6. Zygiam: a Greek word applied to Juno as goddess of marriage. Cf. note, p. 68, l. 21.

8. exanclatis: "endured."

11. ad istum modum: see note, p. 72, l. 10.

14. contra voluntatem . . . praestare: "to oppose the wishes."

27. ultroneam: late Latin for volunturiam.

29. Qui scias an etiam . . . repperias: see note, p. 89, l. 13.

32. principium . . . meditabatur obsecrationis: "was studying the way she should begin her plea."

Page 92. 1. remedii abnuens: the common construction is the accusative. We would at least expect de; cf. Sal. Jug. 84, 3: neque ille senatus de ullo negotio abnuere audebat.

3. ante thalami rudimentum: "before the consummation of their union."

5. ipsius auri damno pretiosum: "costly by the loss of the gold itself." The filing away of the valuable metal added to the artistic value of the object. Purser's rendering "and costly by the lavish use of gold itself," is palpably a misunderstanding of the author's rather striking expression.

11. suave: adverbial use of neuter of the adjective. The classical prose word is suaviter.

12. filiae: Venus was daughter of Heaven and of Day.

17. operae necessariam: "as necessary for her purpose."

18. caerulum supercilium: the poetic use of the word supercilium, in the sense of "nod."

19. demeat: a word peculiar to Apuleius, for the classical descendere.

20. Arcadi: called Arcadian because born on Mt. Cyllene in Arcadia.

26. qui: the archaic adverbial form; here equivalent to quibus.

29. libellum: this word is used to indicate any kind of a placard or notice.

31. per omnium ora populorum: "before the eyes of all the peoples of the world."

Page 93. 3. retro metas Murtias: "behind the metae of Murtia"; those were the southern metae of the Circus Maximus, so called from the neighboring shrine of Murtia, sometimes identified with Venus. Retro, preposition in place of post, is not found in classical Latin.

4. indicivae: sc. pecuniae; the word is exceedingly rare.

5. blandientis adpulsu linguae: "with the touch of her caressing tongue."

6. longe mellitum: longe is not used with the positive of the adjective in classical Latin.

11. famulitione: the classical word is famulatus.

15. circa tuas inquisitiones: "on account of searching for you"; tui would be more usual. Circa in the sense of de seems to be Apuleian.

16. manus incidisti: the classical construction is in manus, or at least the dative case. inter Orci cancros: "within the claws of Orcus," as we say, "in the jaws of death."

21. latissimum: the idea is "copious"; "a wild burst of laughter" is perhaps a fair rendering.

22. ascalpens aurem: as a sign of impatience; ascalpens occurs only here.

25. intervisere: the poetic infinitive of purpose.

32. lenocinio: "by the enticement."

4. dicam: probably subjunctive mood. impares: that is, between persons of unequal social position; in villa, that is, in an out-of-the-way place; hence there had not been the necessary publicity to make the marriage legally binding.

9. involat eam: the usual construction in this sense is in eam. plurifariam diloricat: "rent her garments in pieces"; plurifariam is adverb.

13. grumulum: the usual word is cumulus or acervus.

15. frugem: "capability."

16. passivam congeriem: "confused heap."

18. opus . . . mihi: "perform the task to my satisfaction."

19. cenae: poetic dative of direction.

23. certa difficultatis: "assured of the difficulty."

26. classem: "army"; an archaic use.

29. sepedum populorum: "six-footed host."

Page 95. 2. fragrans balsama: the usual construction with fragro is the ablative. revincta corpus: corpus is the accusative of specification, or object of revincta used as middle voice.

6. cibarii panis: "a ration of bread." The word cibaria is also used substantively with the meaning "rations." cubitum facessit: "went off to bed"; cubitum is supine.

9. cum sua cupita: "with his immorata."

11. exanclata: see note, p. 91, l. 8.

12. commodum inequitante: "just as Aurora was riding in," a picturesque phrase. She was just appearing in her car drawn by the Horae.

14. attenditur: "is bordered." cuius imi gurgites . . . despiciunt: a difficult passage to which I can assign no meaning. See Purser's elaborate note. I should prefer the emendation of Plasberg, recipient, and render "whose deep pools receive the waters of an adjacent spring."

- 18. afferas censeo: "I suggest that you bring," said with irony.
- 19. obsequium: the archaic construction of the accusative case with fungor.
- 25. istud horae: "this hour." See note, p. 72, l. 10. quoad: "as long as."
- 28. dum: "until."
- 31. fluentum: in classical Latin this word is poetical.
- 32. furia: classical word furor.

4. Nec . . . cessavit: "and carefully instructed, by giving ear to the advice she did not regret, she was not remiss." Inpaenitendo is Apuleian.

5. furatrina: for the classical furtum.

8. secundi laboris . . . secundum testimonium: a play upon the meanings of secundus; "second task" and "favorable recognition."

10. subridens amarum: the poetical adverbial construction of the adjective in place of the adverb amare.

11. auctor adulterinus: that is, Cupid; so called because Venus views his connection with Psyche as illicit.

12. oppido: the adverb.

15. proxumae . . . inclusae: "enclosed within the confines of the adjacent valley." Conceptaculum is for the classical receptaculum.

16. indidem . . . urnula: "from this same place draw the icy liquid from the deep bubbling water of the top of the spring and bring it straightway to me in this pitcher." The adjective penitus is archaic.

18. crustallo dedolatum: "cut from a crystal."

23. locos: for ad locos. appulit: in classical Latin appello is a nautical term meaning "to dock."

25. inaccessa salebritate: "by a ruggedness that prevents its being scaled." Salebritas is Apuleian.

27. proni . . . editi: "issuing from the rift of the sloping opening."

28. angusti . . . tramite: "concealed by the course it had hollowed out in a narrow channel." convalem: for in convalem.

31. colla: object of porrecti, used with middle force; a poetic usage. inconivae . . . addictis: "their eyes dedicated to a wakefulness that never closed a lid."

Page 97. 3. impossibilitate: post-classical. The ablative is that of cause with mutata, which agrees with Psyche.

7. graves oculos: "grave eyes"; a somewhat unusual meaning for gravis. The expression would ordinarily mean "heavy eyes," as with sleep or pain.

10. pocillatorem Frygium: Ganymede.

12. diales: in this sense the word is purely poetical.

13. simplex alioquin: "simple indeed." Alioquin frequently has this weakened force in Apuleius.

17. vel fando: "at least by hearsay." quodque vos deieratis: "and whereas you swear"; literally, "as to the fact that you swear."

19. cedo: the archaic imperative. See note, p. 3, l. 22.

21. genas: "jaws," poetical for maxillas. trisulca vibramina: "the darting of the forked tongues."

22. remigium: poetical for alas.

23. ut abiret innoxius, praestantes: "allowing him to depart unharmed." Innoxius agrees with ales, which is common gender and was used as a feminine at the beginning of the passage in line 8.

27. nutum expiare: "satisfy the will."

29. exitiabile: adverbial use of accusative.

32. pupula: a diminutive of affection ironically used. In classical Latin it means either "female ward" or "pupil of the eye."

Page 98. 7. indidem delitam: "anointed with the same." theatrum: "assembly."

13. praecipitem: that is, by throwing herself headlong.

17. isto: for classical isti.

21. huius conterminam: "adjacent to which."

24. simul: for simul ac, a poetical use. canale: "track"; literally, "channel."

26. offas . . . concretas: "pellets of meal moistened with mead."

27. stipes: that is, Charon's obolus.

28. continaberis: see note, p. 88, l. 14.

29. simili: that is, claudio.

31. nec mora cum: see note, p. 17, l. 11.

Page 99. 1. sutili cumba: the boat was made of hides stitched together. The same expression is found in the Aeneid, VI, 413.

3. Ditis: nominative. The usual form is Dis.

5. prae manu: "at hand." nemo . . . patietur: that is, no one will allow him to die without it, but will provide it himself.

6. nauli: naulum is a Greek word meaning "passage money."

9. fluentum: see note, p. 95, l. 31.

- 11. adflectare: short form of adlectaris.
17. leve: in the predicate.
27. esto: future imperative of edo.
28. quid adveneris: this indirect question is the logical subject of the ablative absolute nuntiato.
32. redies: archaic for redibis.

Page 100. 3. abditum: some infinitive form has been lost after this word; scrutari has been supplied; curare has also been suggested.

- 4. prospicua: "clear sighted" or "far seeing."
6. meatum: cognate accusative.
7. amnica: amnicus is post-classical.
12. cibario pane: see note, p. 95, l. 6.
18. mentem capitum: Greek accusative of specification; see note, p. 82, l. 6.
20. nec . . quidem: see note, p. 67, l. 24. vel sic: "even in this way"; that is, if not by her unadorned beauty.
24. coperculo revelatus: "revealed by the cover"; a forced expression.
32. Psychen: for ad Psychen.

Page 101. 3. perieras: "you had perished." The emphatic hypothetical indicative, instead of the subjunctive. The idea is that she would have inevitably perished had he not arrived.

- 10. ad armillum redit: "returns to his old tricks"; proverbial; according to popular etymology, armillum meant "wine-jar."

- 13. buccula: diminutive of affection.
15. domine fili: "dear son"; dominus, even as early as Pliny's time, had become a title indicating respect or affection. servaris: shorter form for servaveris, as also the perfects that follow.

- 19. ipsam Iuliam: even the Julian law, de adulteriis coercendis, passed in 17 B.C.

- 22. modestiae: "clemency."
25. puella praepolle pulcritudine: note alliteration.
26. vicem: this may be taken as object of repensare. Purser's stand that this should be avoided because we can cite no instance of vicem as direct object when modified by a genitive does not seem convincing.
29. in poenam . . . conventum iri: "he would be sued for 10,000 sesterces."
31. Dei conscripti: "gods enrolled on the records of the Muses"; the Muses kept the records.

32. adolescentem . . . scitis: "you all know that I have brought up this youth with my own hands"; literally, "know this youth that"; note substantive quod-clause following scire.

11. congruas: archaic.

19. toti dei: for the usual omnes dei. Totus is the word that has survived in French.

24. suppari: "in time to."

25. scaena . . . concinnata: "the celebration having been so arranged"; ablative absolute.

27. convenit in manum Cupidinis: conventio in manum was a legal term used to signify the coming of a woman into the power of her husband by marriage.

The Latin Language

A Historical Outline of its Sounds, Inflections, and Syntax, by CHARLES E. BENNETT, Goldwin Smith Professor of Latin in Cornell University. 12mo, cloth, 272 pages. Price, $1.00.

THIS is a text-book in advanced Latin Grammar for colleges and universities. It is a complete revision of the Appendix to Bennett's Latin Grammar, a book which was first prepared in 1896, from a series of lectures to advanced students on subjects not covered by any Latin Grammar published in America. The title, Appendix, was found to be misleading, and the author has given to the revision the new name of The Latin Language. The book gives such information regarding the history and development of the language as experience has shown to be of service to students who are specializing in Latin.

The subjects treated are: The Latin Alphabet, Accent, Inflections, Pronunciation, Orthography, Adverbs and Prepositions, Hidden Quantity, The Latin Sounds, and Syntax.

Syntax of Early Latin

By Professor CHARLES E. BENNETT, of Cornell University.

Vol. I: The Verb. 8vo, cloth, 525 pages. Price, $4.00.

Vol. II: The Case Constructions. 8vo, cloth, 419 pages. Price, $4.00.

THIS book is intended to replace the now long antiquated manual of Holtze, Syntaxis Priscorum Scriptorum Latinorum, Leipsic, 1861-62. Since that work was published our texts of all the Early Latin writers have been put upon a new foundation; new principles and standards have been set up in syntactical investigation; and scores of important monographs have appeared on the syntax of special authors and of special usages. The author's aim has been to incorporate in his work the results of all these labors. The book, while dealing primarily with the syntax of Early Latin, is of fundamental importance to every earnest student of the syntax of the later classical period, since Early Latin so often reveals the germ from which the classical idiom has developed.

COLLEGE LATIN SERIES—*ContinuedTusculan Disputations: Books I, II, V

With Introduction and Notes by Professor H. C. NUTTING, of the University of California. 12mo, cloth, 358 pages. Price $1.50.

THIS edition is well equipped with an introduction containing a brief discussion of Cicero's philosophical works and his relation to Greek philosophy; with synopses, giving a fairly full outline of the arguments and of the connection of thought of the text; with ample notes; and complete indices. The Tusculan Disputations have always been considered admirably adapted to college work and it is hoped that this excellent edition will extend their use.

The Mostellaria of Plautus

With Introduction and Notes by Professor EDWIN W. FAY, of the University of Texas. 12mo, cloth, 204 pages. Price, $1.00.

PROFESSOR FAY'S Introduction has sections on Plautus, the Man and the Writer; The Versification of the Mostellaria, with a classification of the metres and reference to all the lines where each occurs; and The Dialect of Plautus.

In the text the stage directions are inserted in English.

The notes are full of parallels from Elizabethan drama. They are also distinguished by the racy rendering of the idiomatic Latin. Synopses precede the comment on each scene.

The Andria of Terence

With Introduction and Notes by Professor HENRY R. FAIRCLOUGH, of Leland Stanford Junior University. 12mo, cloth, 266 pages. Price, $1.25.

AS the Andria is often the first Latin comedy to be read, the editor has made his Introduction exceptionally full. It contains sections on The Development of Roman Comedy; The Literary Awakening of Rome; The Plot and Characters of the Andria; The Theatre; Prosody; Metres and Music; The Language; and kindred matters.

COLLEGE LATIN SERIES—*ContinuedThe Captivi of Plautus

With Introduction and Notes by Professor H. C. ELMER, of Cornell University. 12mo, cloth, 231 pages. Price, $1.25.

PROFESSOR ELMER'S Introduction covers a Sketch of the History of Greek and Roman Comedy; The History of the Text of Plautus; Dramatic Entertainments—the Actor's Stage, etc.; The Division of the Plays into Acts and Scenes; The Metres of Plautus and their Appropriateness to Different Moods; Differences in the Manner of rendering Rhythms; Prosody; Language; Plot of the Captivi.

In the text each scene is preceded by an English synopsis. The stage directions are given in English.

The notes are full enough for beginners in Latin comedy.

Roman Constitutional History

By Professor J. E. GRANRUD, of the University of Minnesota. 12mo, cloth, 306 pages. Price, $1.25.

THE political institutions of Rome are treated historically so as to furnish collateral reading for students of Latin, and provide an admirable introduction to further study of the subject.

The book is divided into four periods: I. The Formation of the Roman State (753–509 B.C.), showing the Composition of the Roman Population and the Early Government; II. The Equalization of the Orders (509–287), with chapters on the Organization of the Plebeians, the Consular Tribunes and Censors, the Claudian Reforms and the Hortensian Laws; III. The Supremacy of the Senate (287–133); IV. The Overthrow of the Republic and the Establishment of a New Monarchy (133–44), with chapters on the Revolution of the Gracchi, the Constitution of Sulla, the First Triumvirate, and the Rule of Cæsar.

For those unfamiliar with Latin, technical terms have been translated.
